CHARACTERS

Jak

Jak is the ultimate hero. He can do all the cool stuff, like carrying Daxter on his shoulders, running, shooting, jumping, flying and hoverboarding. Since the Baron got his claws into Jak there's been a change in his character. A darker side of Jak's nature has been revealed and now Jak's fate rests entirely in your hands.

Dark Jak →

After having been subjected to Dark Eco injections during prison experiments, Jak's body has begun to change...

Now whenever Jak is exposed to small amounts of Dark Eco his blood starts to boil. If he reaches a certain rage threshold, he can transform into Dark Jak unleashing an invincible whirlwind of destruction and mayhem.

This shocking transformation is terribly exhausting, leaving Jak badly damaged and down to his last hit point. A dark power not to be taken lightly.

- Dark Jak is invincible.
- Dark Jak moves faster.
- Dark Jak fights with ferocious, rapid attacks.
- Dark Jak can use special items, which might otherwise cause him harm.

Jak's funky new slicked down hairdo makes him less conspicuous when hiding from the law.

Morph Gun-changes into four unique weapons and shrinks to fit into a holster carried on Jak's back.

Jet Board: Perfect for racing across tricky terrain. Folds away automatically for handy backpack storage.

Shoulder armour and arm plate for protection against sharp sidekick claws (Ottsel).

Iso-Absorption gloves- protection from Morph Gun recoil with racing grip for added control.

Kor

Kor is an ancient and venerable mystic hailing from the depths of the Wastelands. This mysterious wanderer is happy to share the wealth of his experiences as an adventurer with Jak & Daxter. Kor is the source of much vital information about ancient myths and legends. He also warns our heroes about the many dangers lurking beyond the sanctuary of the city walls.

Kor is currently an operative for the Underground, taking it upon himself to watch over Jak and guide him whenever possible. He is happy to assist Jak in his valiant efforts to foil the Baron's evil plans and to find the artefacts required to save Haven City.

Kor's odd behaviour is usually dismissed as the eccentric quirks of a lonely hermit, but could there be a dark and terrible secret lurking beneath the old man's kind and bumbling nature?

Torn

Torn used to be a Commander in the Krimzon Guard, but deserted when he became increasingly disillusioned by having to enforce the Baron's cruel orders. Since his defection Torn has risen to the rank of second-in-command in the Underground. Fuelled by a burning hatred of the Baron's wicked deeds, Torn has vowed to destroy the tyrant and everything he represents.

Torn's old contacts in the Krimzon Guard provide useful intelligence which he shares with Jak & Daxter. Soon this noble warrior's fierce loyalty will be put to the test...

Krew

Krew is a big cheese in the underworld. He's an arms dealer, rare artefact collector, and all-round repulsive piece of work. As boss of the seedy Hip-Hog Saloon, Krew's "business" is conducted beneath walls lined with scary Metal Head trophies.

Krew is a chaos junkie whose flexible loyalties are always for sale. He claims that he can get his mucky hands on anything if the price is right, even illegal weapons of mass destruction, and he boasts notorious clients such as Baron Praxis himself. A floating grav-basket supports all 300 kilos of Krew's festering flesh.

Sig

Sig is a veteran Wastelander and Krew's personal bodyguard. An accomplished Metal Head hunter, Sig proudly sports armour fashioned from the remains of his many kills. Sig's size 18 boots support a solid frame of muscle and attitude along with a lethal gun he affectionately calls the "Peacemaker".

Sig's hard-as-nails exterior may seem antagonistic at first, but those who earn his respect and trust will find a loyal and powerful ally.

Vin

Vin is the head engineer responsible for the smooth running of Haven City's power supply. It's his job to maintain the city's Eco defence system, and he takes his work a little too seriously. Constantly teetering on the edge of paranoid insanity, Vin is a loose cannon likely to explode at any moment.

Vin's obsession with conspiracy theories and terror of Metal Heads has driven him into the arms of the Underground who provide him with enough Eco to power the city's defence shields. For now.

Samos

He's hip, he's happy and he's got a huge shock of bushy hair! Who is this wonderful individual? Get ready for a big surprise. The Shadow, mysterious leader of the Underground, is none other than … (have a look at page 142, if you want to know).

Young Samos is a dedicated tree-hugger and environmentalist, fighting the good fight against anything and everything that threatens life, liberty and the pursuit of hempiness, er, happiness. The jolly Green Sage is a valuable ally to Jak in his struggle against evil.

Keira

Keira has been trying to reassemble the Rift Rider Machine ever since she travelled through time with Jak & Daxter and her father Samos. She's hoping that the machine that transported them all to this strange new world will eventually be able to help them return home.

A highly skilled mechanic who builds racing vehicles for a living, Keira is unsettled by her unfamiliar and dangerous surroundings. She's equally troubled by Jak's increasingly dark personality. However, as the adventure unfolds, she comes to realise that Jak's true nature shines as brightly as ever beneath the gruff exterior.

Onin & Pecker

The mysterious old soothsayer Onin seems to know much more than she's letting on. Her trusty interpreter Pecker, a Monkaw (half ape, half macaw, all attitude) adds his own unique spin to Onin's words of wisdom as she guides Jak & Daxter towards their date with destiny.

Aided by Onin's foresight and Pecker's pithy barbs, Jak can finally face his future and learn more about his past – or should that be face his past and learn more about his future? Time travel is so confusing! The bottom line? Onin and Pecker usually have Jak and Daxter's best interests at heart.

The Kid & his Crocodog

The Kid leads a quiet and humble existence, blissfully ignorant of all the amazing adventures happening around him. Nobody knows his name, but everyone senses that there's something special about him. The Kid wears the Seal of Mar amulet, which marks him out as the one true heir to the throne of Haven City.

Legend has it that only the true heir can open the Tomb of Mar and face the tests of manhood in order to obtain the Precursor Stone. Could this sweet little kid really be old enough for such a colossal challenge? Time is running out. In the end, Jak will discover that his own destiny is forever bound to this unassuming boy and the precious gift that Mar has left for him in a dusty tomb.

Brutter

Brutter has clearly benefited from attending some sort of dynamic self-help seminar. The former monster is now an upwardly mobile freelance knick-knack dealer. Brutter is the epitome of a thoroughly modern Lurker, working hard to climb the evolutionary ladder and achieve his ultimate aim of owning his very own timeshare.

Initially, Daxter does not trust Brutter, understandable when you consider that the Lurker is a dribbling monster with distressing personal hygiene issues. However, in the process of getting comfortable with his inner animal, Daxter learns that humans (and monsters) can always change for the better. In a moment of despair when all seems lost, Brutter emerges as a true hero.

Tess

Tess is an animal lover, but who are we to judge what she does in her spare time? More relevantly, Tess is a valued member of the Underground. She works undercover in the Hip Hog Saloon, spying on Krew in his own den. She passes on valuable secrets to Jak.

To Tess, Daxter is the cat's pyjamas and the icing on the cake all rolled up into one big yummy package. The Ottsel can't help but purr with pleasure whenever Tess feels the need to tickle his fluffy tummy.

Ashelin

Ashelin, daughter of Baron Praxis, renounced her privileged birthright and clawed her way up from the bottom of the pile to become a Commander in the Krimzon Guard. Ashelin's flame red hair matches her fiery temperament. She's stunning to look at, cunning in word and deed and an expert shot. A luscious and lethal combination.

Although still completely loyal to her father, Ashelin has recently been plagued by doubts about his unorthodox methods. Her mysterious secret connection with Torn enables the Underground to glean important information. When faced with the task of saving the city, she must decide once and for all which side she's really on ...

Krimzon Guard

The elite troops of Haven City proudly sport tattoos to show their uncompromising loyalty and dedication to the Baron. The notorious Krimzon Guards are trained to a high standard and armed to the hilt. They terrorise the entire city, controlling the citizens with an iron fist. Led by stern Captain Erol, they leave nothing but fear, misery and destruction in their murderous wake.

Erol

Erol has taken over Torn's position as Commander of the Krimzon Guard. He is the Baron's right hand man, ruthlessly carrying out his master's evil bidding. Rumour has it that Erol is mad; a trait which perfectly suits the Baron's nefarious needs.

Erol is also the city's racing champion, largely because of his suicidal driving style. Erol took a strong dislike to Jak from the minute he laid eyes on him and there's clearly no love lost between the two. Not only are they intense rivals on the track in their pursuit of the Championship Trophy, they are also now both in hot romantic pursuit of the lovely Keira. It's plain to all that there can be only one winner. Erol demands victory at any price and he'll stop at nothing to get it.

The Baron

Horrifically scarred by his many battles with the Metal Heads, the Baron will do anything to finish them off once and for all. He took the throne of the city by force with the sole purpose of carrying out his own personal vendetta.

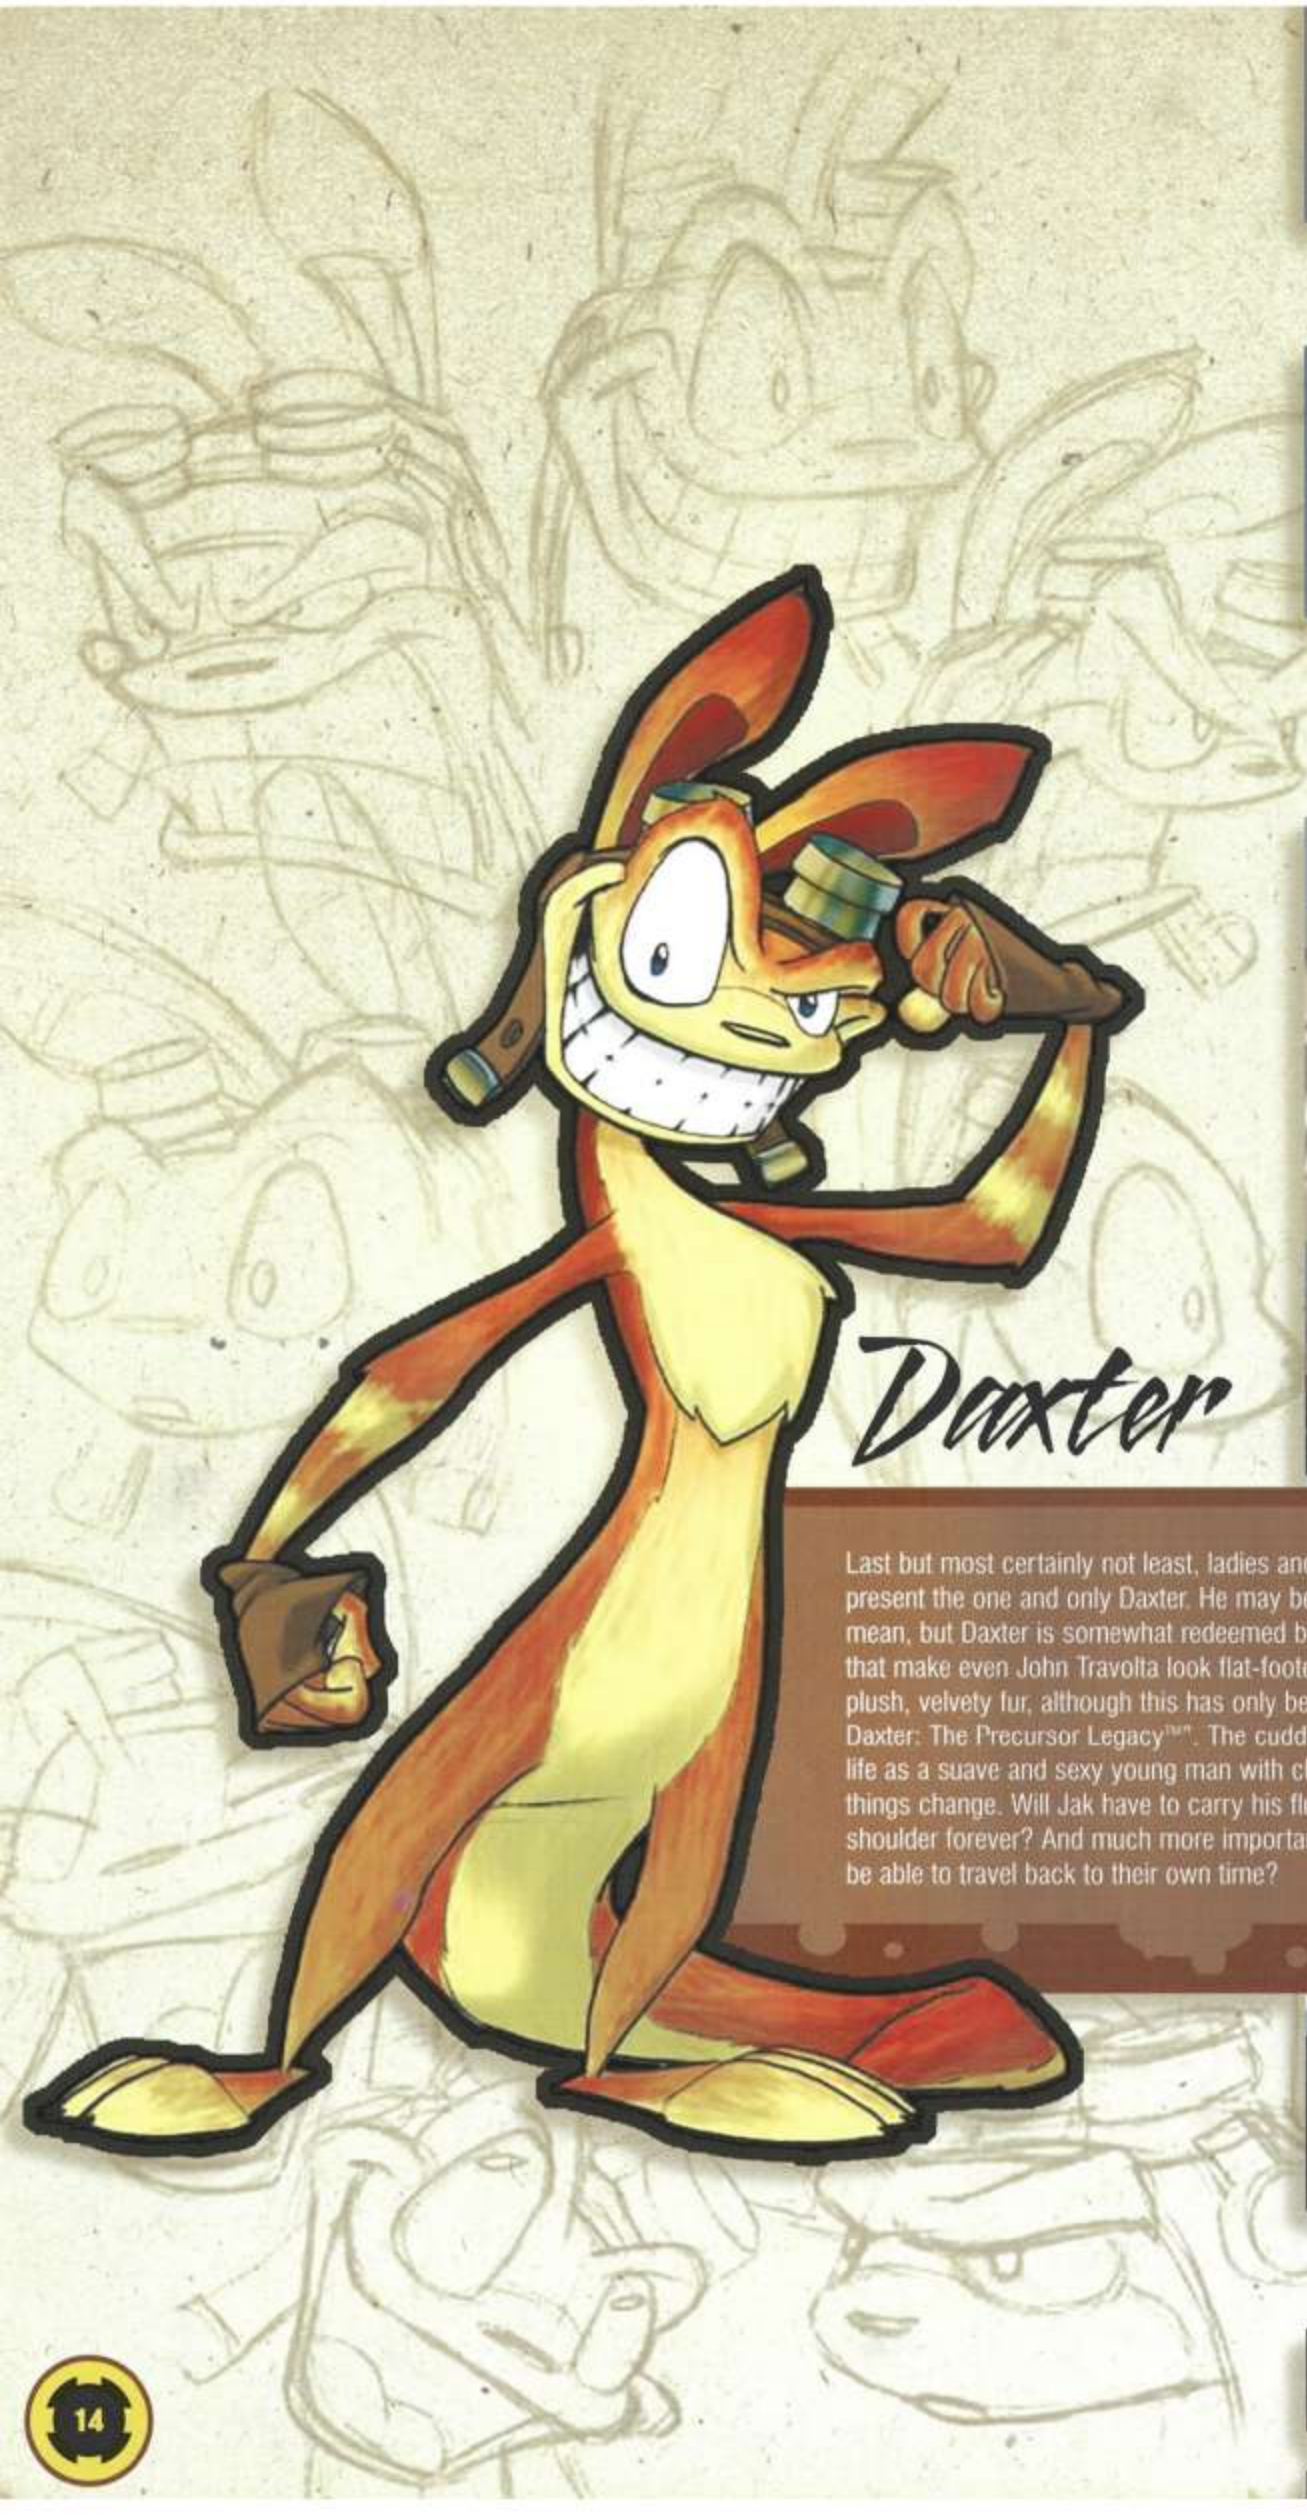
A dangerous, mentally unstable tyrant, the Baron demands great sacrifice from each of his subjects. Having signed a pact with the devil and conducted foul experiments in his dungeons the Baron is now fully committed to the complete destruction of all who oppose him. Especially Jak.

The Baron has vowed never to give up the fight, but his powers of persuasion appear to be on the wane and he's grown discouraged. In his depraved brain the Baron concocts a final reckless plan to save "his" city. He's determined to wreak glorious revenge on the Metal Heads and he doesn't care who gets caught up in the collateral damage.

Mar

Over time, the legend of Mar the Warrior King, valiant founder of Haven City has grown to epic proportions. His mythic status is commemorated by a massive statue. There are many who say that without Mar the world would have been lost to the Metal Heads a long time ago. Others say that he came from a different time, through a gap in space, only departing once his job was done.

There are also those who say that Mar was imbued with the power of the Precursors and could even talk to them. Legend has it that he carried a remarkable sword embossed with a Precursor Stone. When Mar fell in battle, the stone was buried with him in his tomb to safeguard its terrible powers until the day when a new leader would come.



Daxter

Last but most certainly not least, ladies and gentlemen, we proudly present the one and only Daxter. He may be self-centred, cynical and mean, but Daxter is somewhat redeemed by his amazing dancing skills that make even John Travolta look flat-footed. His other prize asset is his plush, velvety fur, although this has only been a factor since "Jak & Daxter: The Precursor Legacy™". The cuddly Ottsel actually started out in life as a suave and sexy young man with charming manners. My, how things change. Will Jak have to carry his fluffy companion on his shoulder forever? And much more importantly, will the two buddies ever be able to travel back to their own time?

HOW TO PLAY

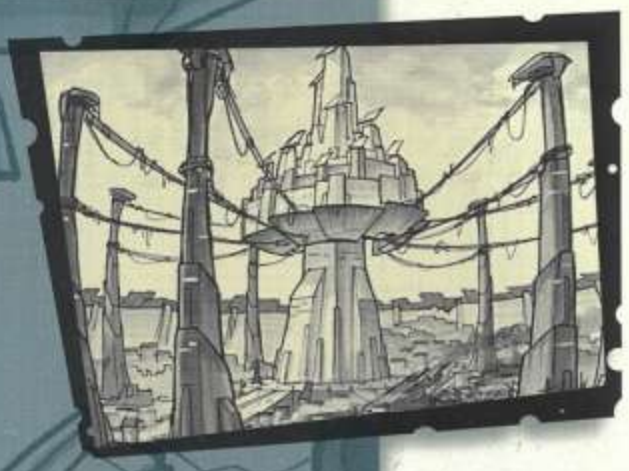
Starting the Game

After pressing START or ⊗ on the screen, three menu options will appear: New Game, Load Game and Options. You can confirm your selection throughout with ⊗ and cancel with △. A fourth option, Secrets, will be available later in the game.



New Game

When playing Jak II: Renegade for the first time, the system will recognise that there is no save data on the Memory Card. It will take a while to create the file, which is roughly 1200 KB. Afterwards, there will be four game slots available (Game 1, 2, 3, 4). Decide which one you wish to have, and then off you go. Theoretically speaking, you could also starting playing without setting up a save file, but due to the vast nature of the game that would only be worthwhile doing for a flying visit. If you already have a save file and wish to begin a new game, you can select one of the games immediately.

When decisive events take place during the course of the game, your progress will be saved automatically and a tick icon will flash up in the bottom right-hand corner of the screen.

Load Game

Games 1-4 will be shown here, too. Data recording your progress in the game so far will be displayed on the right side of the screen. This will include an image of the surroundings where you last saved, elapsed game time, a percentage figure indicating how much of the game you have already played, available Skull Gems and the number of Precursor Orbs that you have collected so far. Select one of the four games to continue from where you last saved.

Options

You can change the various settings in the Options Menu when you first start the game or at any stage during the game.

Game Options

Vibration Function: Switches your DUALSHOCK®2 Analog Controller's vibration function on or off.

Subtitles: Enables you to switch cut-scene subtitles on or off. You can toggle subtitles on or off during a movie by pressing the □ button.

Subtitle Language, Language: You can select a different language for subtitles, on-screen messages and cut-scene dialogue. You can choose from:
English, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Japanese, Korean.
The basic settings will correspond to your PlayStation®2 system settings.

Graphic Options

Center Screen: You can use this option to change your screen position. After adjusting, confirm the change with ⊗. You can exit this option by pressing △. Pressing □ changes the screen position back to basic.

Video Mode: 50Hz / 60Hz - this will enable you to change the game mode to 60 Hertz. However, your television must be able to support this function. If the picture suffers disturbance, simply wait ten seconds. If you have not confirmed the new setting at the end of this time limit, the setting will return automatically to 50 Hz.

* Note: This function will not available in the Options menu during the game.

Aspect Ratio: 4x3/16x9 – if your television has the 16:9 (widescreen) format you can activate the Aspect Ratio function here.

Progressive Scan: on/off this function is also dependent on the technical specifications of your television or projector. If you find that you have a distorted picture, or no picture at all, simply wait ten seconds as you did with Video Mode. Everything will then return to normal.

Really progressive, eh? Back in my day, you were happy if you had a television at all, even one of those black and white ones. But those were the good old days, of course, when heroes were truly heroes!

Sound Options

Sfx Volume, Music Volume, Speech Volume: you can adjust the different Volume options separately here – from 1 to 100%.

Sound Format: choose between Stereo, Surround and Mono

If you ask me, I'd set the Sound Options as follows: sound effects and background music to zero and volume to 100. That way you can hear my relaxing voice without getting distracted by anything else ... I think I sound a little like Tom Jones!

Secrets

As soon as you have unlocked the Scrap Book in the in-game Secrets menu, this function will be available. As we don't want to give away too much here, all details can be found in the Secrets chapter (page 149).

Controller Settings

These are the default controller settings. However, not all functions are available throughout. For instance, you will start the adventure without possessing any weapons. There are several different combinations, which are described in more detail under "Actions". There are also different settings for controlling the various vehicles that you will get to drive throughout the game.

Screen

Displays

L3 symbols: these appear if you press on the left control stick (L3 button). As soon as anything changes as regards values in the game (e.g. loss of energy as a result of an enemy hit), this information is displayed automatically. If the Dark Eco display is full, the circle in the middle remains on screen permanently, indicating that it is possible to transform into Dark Jak.

01 Skull Gems: objects left behind by defeated Metal Heads. You can trade them in at the Oracle for special abilities

02 Precursor Orbs: objects hidden in certain places throughout the game. They trigger secrets in the respective menu.

03 Energy level: the eight light-green boxes that symbolise Jak's energy level. If the boxes are dark, this indicates that Jak is not enjoying the best of health.

04 Dark Eco: the circle in the middle shows how much Dark Eco you have collected. The bright violet bar indicates reserve energy. As soon as it is full, Jak can turn into Dark Jak.

05 Weapon: the chosen weapon and remaining amount of ammunition appear on the top right of the screen.

07 Actions: If certain actions are possible (climbing into a vehicle, talking to people) this will be shown at the bottom of the screen.

09 Partner's energy: You will sometimes have to protect another character and keep them alive. His/her energy will be displayed at the top left of the screen.

Now it's time to get something straight. Daxter may think he's the star attraction, but in fact it's this guy in the centre of the screen, Jak, who is the hero of the game. But don't whatever you do tell Daxter that we told you so...

Map

This miniature representation of the city shows your immediate surrounding area and includes:

- Blue triangle ➜ Jak (the top of the triangle shows where he's facing)
- Grey dot ➜ parked vehicles
- Red dots (large) ➜ guards' vehicles
- Red dots (with rays) ➜ direction in which guards are facing
- Light green icons (triangle with circle) ➜ mini missions

Principal & mission objectives: special icons and green, pulsating circles on the map indicate where someone is waiting with a mission for you, or where you will have to go during the course of a mission. For instance, a dagger will mark Torn's position and his hideout, or a mountain icon will lead you towards the Mountain Temple entrance.

Green, pulsating circles will indicate specific destinations during a mission, e.g. people you have to fetch or items that have to be destroyed. Whenever the edge of the map starts flashing, a red alert has been triggered and the Krimzon Guard will be hot on your heels. Run away from these goons as fast as your feet (or paws) will carry you.

Menus

The Main Menu

By pressing START you will open up the Main Menu in the game, from where you can call up all the sub-menus. The Main Menu is depicted as an ornate ring containing ten segments. You can turn the ring by using the left stick or directional buttons, thereby switching between the different sub-menus. The title of each section, which is selected at the top of the screen and outlined in green, is displayed in the centre of the screen. This sub-menu is brought up using ⊗.

You can return from the sub-menu to the Main Menu and then back to the game by pressing △. If you wish to return directly to the game, press START. The following list corresponds to the menu when navigating from left to right:

Missions

When you open the menu, the description "Missions in Progress" appears at the top of the screen. This referes to tasks that you can currently complete. At the beginning of the game, it is usually something small like "Escape from Fortress". The names of these missions are also used in the Walkthrough chapter of this book. You will also see instructions such as "Talk to Kor". This means that the respective person is waiting for you somewhere in order to brief you on a specific mission.

The missions that you have completed will be listed separately under the heading Missions Completed...

Show Map

There are two types of map:

In buildings such as the Fortress or within outlying districts such as Dead Town you will see a light blue floor plan of the level. Areas that have already been visited are coloured differently and feature a few added details.

In the city, all the areas that you are currently able to visit are marked. At the start of the game you will only be able to access the Slums and Water Slums in the north-east of Haven City. All other exits are barred with energy barriers. You will require a Security Pass to go beyond these check points. The colour of the barrier indicates which Security Pass is necessary. The entire map of Haven City is larger than the screen. You can scroll around it using the left stick.

Your own position will always be marked by a small, blue triangle. The top of the triangle shows the direction in which you're facing.

High Scores

The best scores of the different mini-games will be displayed here. Initially only the Gun Course – Scatter Gun rankings are available. You will only be able to see the rest of the scores later on during the course of the game. You can switch back and forth between the mini-game High Scores and Challenges by pressing left or right on your directional pad. Detailed information on all mini-games and bonuses can be found in the Secrets chapter.

Game Options

You can change the Game Options here that appeared in the menu at the beginning of the game: Vibration Function: on/off, Subtitles: on/off, Subtitle Language and Language: English, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Japanese, Korean.

Graphic Options

You can adjust the following options at any time here: Centre Screen, Aspect Ratio, Progressive Scan. Only the 50Hz/60Hz function will be unavailable during the course of the game.

Sound Options

Sfx Volume, Music Volume, Speech Volume can all be adjusted separately to suit your taste. Furthermore, you can change the Sound Format.

Load Game

You can load any one of the four games here. Any changes made since the last time you saved will be lost when you load a previously saved game.

Save Game

When something important happens, the game is automatically saved, but you should also record your progress here manually; for example, if you want to interrupt the game and don't wish to lose the Skull Gems you've just collected.

Secret

After having collected enough Precursor Orbs, you can unlock Secrets here. You will, of course, find full details about Secrets in the chapter "Secrets" on page 147.

Restart/Quit

If everything else fails, you can select this menu option to start your current mission all over again. "Quit Game" brings you back to the title screen.

Actions

Move

Right, so now we want to take a look at how smart Jak is. He's supposed to be quite brainy and has some acrobatic skills...

Running		You can move Jak using the left analog stick. It depends how far you move the stick, as to whether Jak runs fast or slow.
Jumping	⊗	Press ⊗ to make Jak jump. Well, what do you say? It wasn't that difficult, was it?
Double Jump	⊗⊗	If you press ⊗ again while Jak jumps, he will jump even higher.
High Jump	L1 ⊗	Hold L1 down and then press ⊗ to make Jak do a really high jump.

Double Jump and Spin	⊗⊗◎	If Jak does a double jump while pressing on ◎ to do a spin, he will receive an extra boost. This technique will not only allow him to jump higher, it will also slow his fall and enable him to land with more accuracy.

Pulling Yourself Up	⊗	Jak is forever holding onto edges and ledges with his strong fingertips. This only becomes a problem when he tries to pull himself up, and you have to come to the rescue by pressing ⊗.

Letting Go After Holding On	⊗ L↓	If you're holding onto a ledge, you can let Jak drop down by pressing ⊗ and tilting L.

Activating the Switch	□	Press □ to flip a switch. With a strong blow Jak can activate the switch.

Dive	⊗□	Jump and press □ while still airborne to make Jak execute an energetic stomp on the ground. This technique will enable you to press various switches that appear or to break through floor panels to reach the level below. If you also press ⊗ before Jak touches the ground, he will jump up again extremely high after landing.

Well, isn't it just great what the guy can do? He got it all from me, you know! If only he had put his talents to good use, we would have been rid of these problems with the Baron and the Metal Heads a long time ago. I would have taken care of it all myself, of course, but I'm not getting any younger. By the way, where's my walking stick?

Using Things	△	By pressing △ you can climb into vehicles, enter warp gates or talk to people. However, these actions are only possible when the relevant instructions are displayed on screen.

Swimming & Diving	L □	When Jak is in water, he will swim automatically. You can move him around quite easily using the left analog stick. When you press □ he will dive underwater. If you keep holding the button down, Jak will remain under water. As soon as you let go of the button Jak will surface. You can only dive down again once he's been to the surface.

Ducking & Crawling	L1 L	By pressing L1 Jak will crouch down. By holding the button down and moving the stick, Jak will crawl around on all fours.

Rolling	L1	If Jak is running and you then press L1, Jak will execute a roll.
Long Jump	L1 ⊗	Press ⊗ while Jak is doing a roll. He will then take a long jump at the end of the roll. This is not only the longest jump which he can do, it's also Jak's quickest way of moving.
Swinging	⊗	When Jak jumps onto a pole, he will automatically start swinging from it. Press ⊗ at the right moment and tilt to jump off in that direction.
Hiding		If you're on foot in the city and being chased by the Guards, get out of sight and push the left analog stick towards a wall. Jak and Daxter will get stealthy, which should hopefully make it easier for the dynamic duo to shake off the unwelcome attantions of the Baron's finest. Try this by pressing against a hard surface when being pursued by the Krimson Guards.

By the way, if you press ⊗ once you have landed after a long jump, Jak will take a higher jump than usual. However, it's really all just for show, there's nothing much you can do with such a move. I ask you, what are we really doing here? Doing flips, jumping around... where will it all end? Haven't you got any real abilities, Jak? No attacks? What about your weapons?

Attacks

Of course, Jak & Daxter wouldn't be real heroes if all they did was jump around all day. Luckily, they have a little more to them than a few fancy aerobics moves. Rest assured, both our heroes have plenty of surprises in store to keep their enemies on their toes.

Spin	◎	By pressing ◎ Jak will do a fast spin on his own axis, just like a spinning-top. Or should that be tornado? He can also deliver a hefty kick at the same time. While all the rough stuff is going on, keep moving Jak with the analog stick, to prevent opponents getting too close to him.
Punch	□	If you press □, Jak will lunge forward and throw a punch at the same time. You can rapidly and effectively get within striking distance of your opponent with this attack.
Dive	⊗ □	Take a jump with ⊗ and then press □ while in the air. Yes, that's right, we've already mentioned this above as a means of getting around, but this is also a good attacking move.

Jumping Spin	⊗◎	Take a jump or double jump and then spin by pressing ◎. If anyone gets too close to Jak's boots, they will end up with a bloody nose.

Power Punch	L1 □	Press L1 to crouch down, followed by □. Jak will unleash a jaw-shattering punch high into the air.

Uppercut	□⊗	Press □ followed by ⊗ immediately afterwards. Jak will deliver a double punch; one blow on the ground rounded off by a spectacular follow through in mid-air.

No, no, that won't get you anywhere! What a bunch of twaddle. Really! When I was a youngster, we only had one button on the joystick, and that was enough to give your enemies something to write home about, I can tell you that for nothing!

Shooting	R1	If you have a weapon to hand, you can fire it by pressing R1. You can keep shooting until the ammunition runs out. You will find fresh ammunition in Krimzon Guard crates.

Overview

Moving the Camera		You can change the camera's viewpoint by moving the right analog stick. You can choose to either zoom right in on Jak & Daxter and examine every nose hair or move as far away from them as possible.

Looking Around		If you press on the right analog stick (R3 button), you will switch to the first person view. You can then view the surroundings directly from Jak's perspective, using either the left or right stick. Jak will stand still when you do this. By pressing R3 again you can exit the first person view.

Fading in Information		Press on the left control stick (L3 button) to see information about your life energy level, Dark Eco, Precursor Orbs which have been collected and Skull Gems. You can open and close the main menu with START.

Weapons

When the game starts Jak doesn't have a weapon because he's still in prison, but during the course of his adventure he will acquire a multi-functional firearm: the Morph Gun. At first, it will only have the Red Gun mode, but three more modes will be added later. You can switch back and forth between each mode using the digital control pad: ↑ = red, ↓ = yellow, ← = blue, → = black. If you press in the direction of the weapon version that Jak is already using he will holster his gun. Press R1 to shoot.

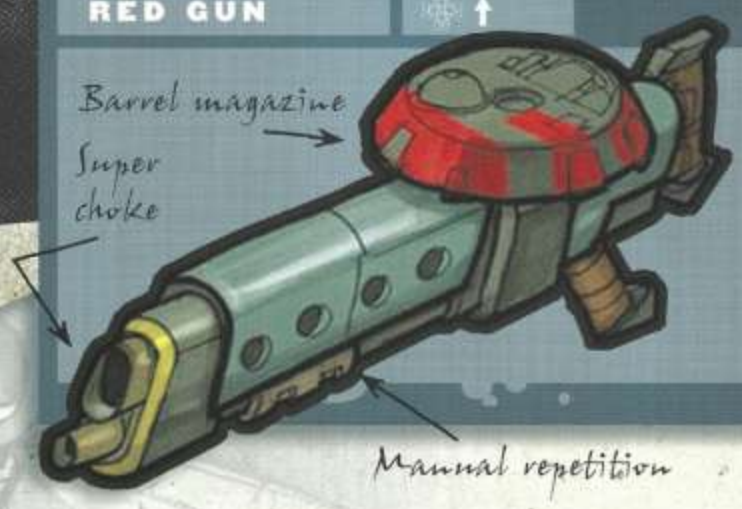
The Morph Gun

From the handbook:
"Thank you for choosing Morph Gun. You have acquired a high-quality product which is exceptionally versatile and will be a lot of fun to use even in the most dangerous combat situations. Equipped with a precise automatic targeting action and four different attack modes as well as many upgrades, your Morph Gun will give you a sense of safety and the feeling that you can assert yourself in any situation."

The basic package "Scatter Gun" is included in delivery. The various modes Blaster Mod, Vulcan Barrel and Peacemaker, as well as the Gun Upgrades, are sold separately.

Scatter Gun Mode

RED GUN ↑



15	55	50
RANGE IN METRES	RATE OF FIRE PER MINUTE	AMMUNITION CAPACITY

"If you experience a wide range of problems, switch the Morph Gun to "red". Although this mode does not fire quickly nor cover a long distance, it offers a wide scattering range which effectively gets your enemy out of the way at close range."

Power Blaster-Mode

100	180	100

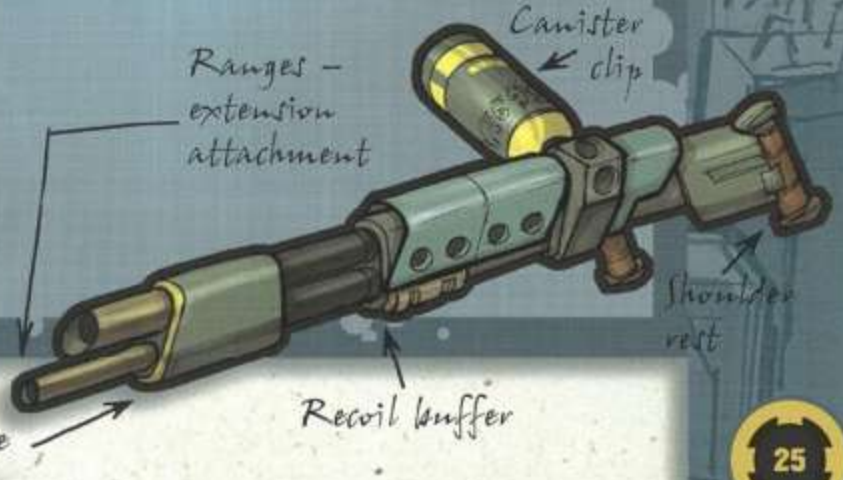
YELLOW GUN ↓

"A good all-rounder, the yellow gun has the longest range and a medium but well proven rate of fire for every situation. Handling the gun is a challenge for the would-be professional shooter. He must be more careful when taking aim than with other models."



Vulcan Barrel-Mode

Blue Gun ←

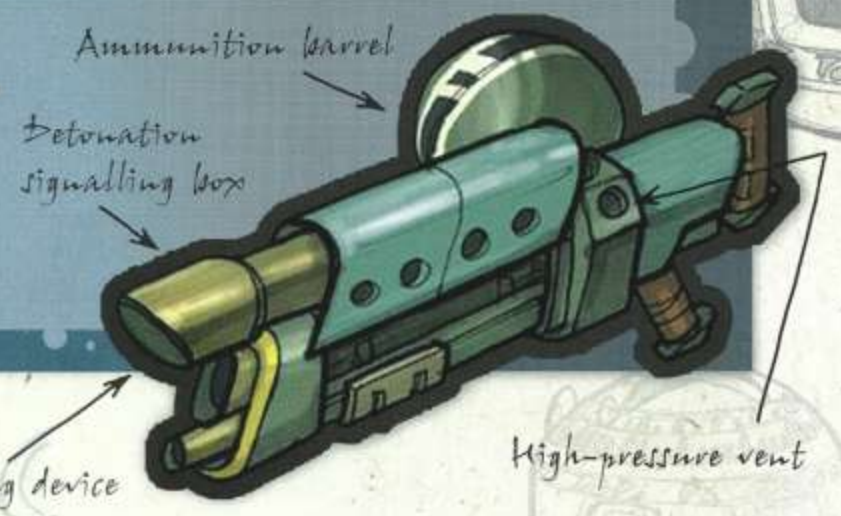
Peacemaker-Mode

Black Gun →

5-70	60	10
RANGE IN METRES	RATE OF FIRE PER MINUTE	AMMUNITION CAPACITY

"The Peacemaker outshines every type of old-fashioned grenade launcher. More slender, lighter and more reliable as well as being equipped with state-of-the-art technology, this handy gun mode offers you maximum destruction potential."



Okay, all this is far too theoretical for me. How about getting started right now? I think I'm getting a bit ahead of myself. The next topic is a little too scary for me ... I'm off!

Gun Upgrades

The Morph Gun is a source of unlimited fun. If you think that you know all the possibilities that this gun offers with the four colour modes, you've got another think coming! Remember: the capacity levels! What about a higher rate of fire for your Scatter Gun or larger magazines with double the capacity? And we haven't told you the best part yet: none of the Gun Upgrades requires laborious installation and activation – they work as soon as you get them! Completely and utterly automatic!

Gun Combos

The following combinations are very neat:

□ or ⊗ then R1 → rapid fire combo against nearest enemy
⊗ then ○ then R1 → shower shots at enemies all around you
□ then ⊗ then R1 → uppecut then fire in mid-air

Dark Jak

The Baron's Dark Eco experiments have brought out the beast in Jak. As you know, he used to be the quiet type; introverted, reserved and taciturn. But you wouldn't like him now if he got angry ...

Super Jak

As soon as the Dark Eco display is filled to the limit, you can turn Jak into Dark Jak using L2. Dark Jak will have super powers: he can lash out big time, and enemy attacks don't cause him as much damage. Dark Eco energy bolts that strike out from Dark Jak have a wider range than normal attacks. The disadvantage is that Dark Jak doesn't just have the powers of a wild beast, he also adopts a wild beast's chaotic thought processes. Many of Jak's normal human functions are temporarily disabled when he turns into Dark Jak. He can't use vehicles or weapons in this state. He will change back into Jak as soon as all the Dark Eco energy has been used up.

Special Moves

Defeated Metal Heads will leave behind yellow Skull Gems for you to collect. You can trade them in for special moves for Dark Jak by visiting the Oracle in the Water Slums. You will get your first attack called Dark Bomb for only 25 Skull Gems. After your first trade it becomes considerably more "expensive" to add to Dark Jak's powers but worth doing all the same.

The Oracle

The Oracle is a bizarre statue with an intense personal dislike of Metal Heads. That's not so unusual in Haven City. However, if you kill its arch-enemies and collect their Skull Gems as trophies, the Oracle will show its pleasure by bestowing upon you the capacity to use Dark Eco energies more effectively.

Hi, I'm back. Did I miss anything? Special moves - that sounds cool. Come on then, let's have a look in the chapter "Secrets" on page 144 to see what kind of treats are in store for us. Okay, they may have hidden it back there because they didn't want to spoil the surprise, but I think they're all killjoys! Really, I can't wait that long to find this stuff out!

Mode of Transport

Jak and Daxter can "borrow" a vehicle at any time to make a swift escape, complete a mission or simply to reach their next destination in high-octane style. Rumour has it that there are even illegal street-racing tournaments, so it's quite important to become a good driver as well as being fun.

City Vehicles

Press △ to climb into parked vehicles or to leap up and grab on to vehicles that carelessly happen to fly past. Press △ again to get rid of the driver.

If you have the Morph Gun, you can also shoot while in the vehicle. If you happen to have been brave enough to commandeer a vehicle belonging to the Krimzon Guard, you can save precious ammo by using the on-board cannon.

Remember your vehicle is not indestructible. If guards are chasing you, your ride can be blown away quicker than you can say "my Ottsel has eaten the vehicle documents, sir". Your vehicle will explode soon after it has caught fire.

	Steering vehicles

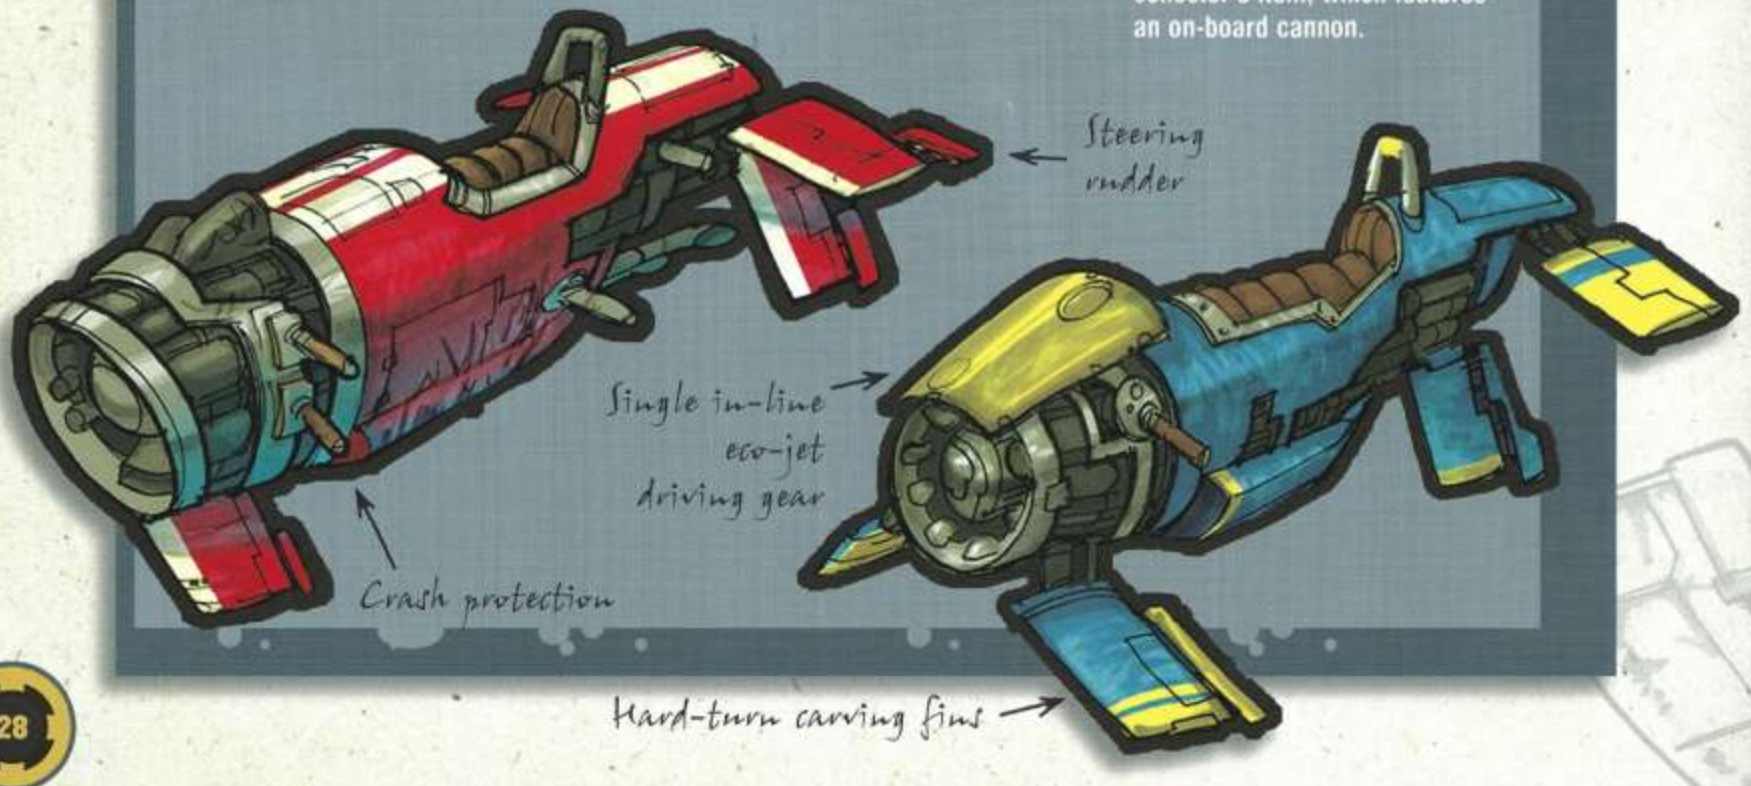
Zoomers

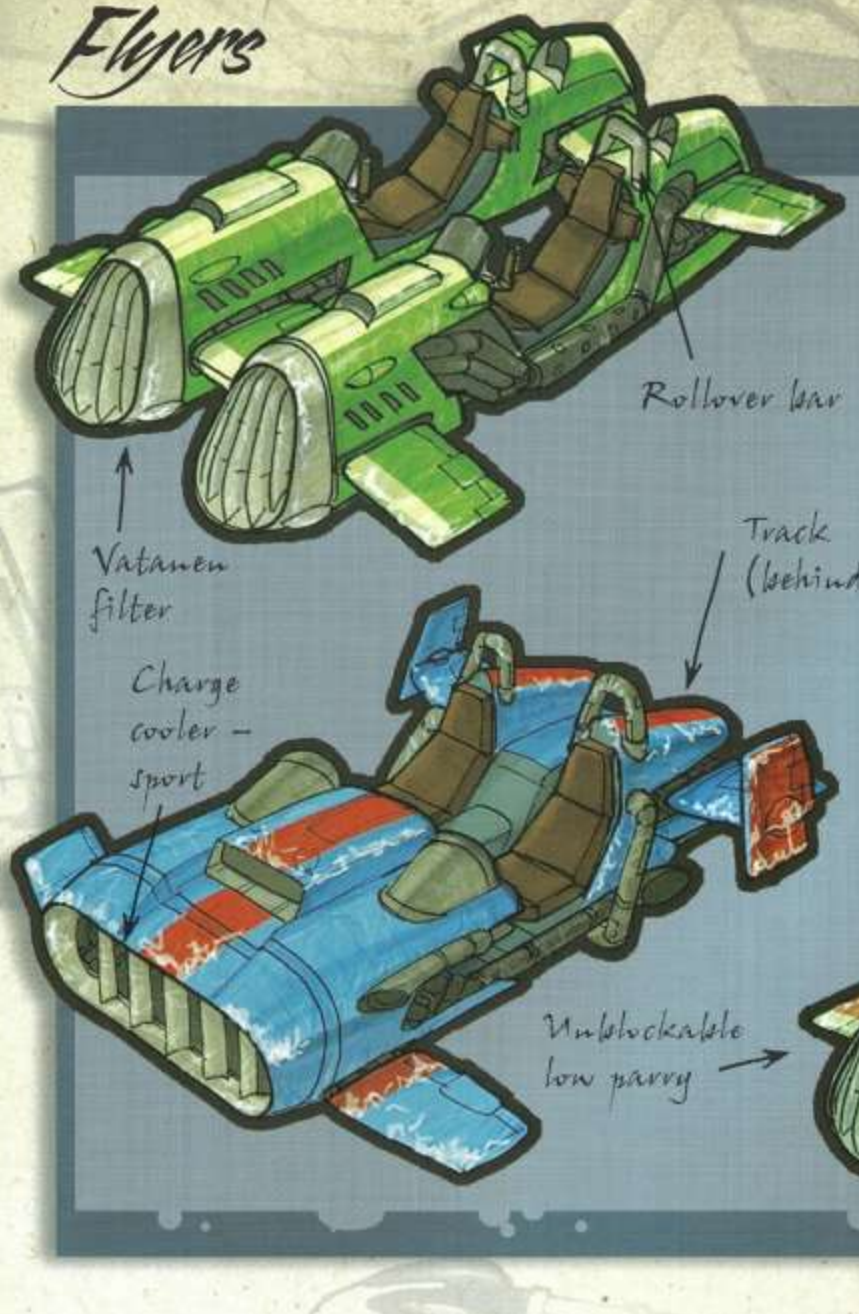
TOP SPEED 30 m/sec

DRIVEABILITY good

Zoomers are fast, versatile and vulnerable. It only takes one solid bash on the bonnet to send a vehicle as fragile as the Zoomer straight to the scrap yard. The special model used by the Krimzon Guard is a real collector's item, which features an on-board cannon.



Flyers

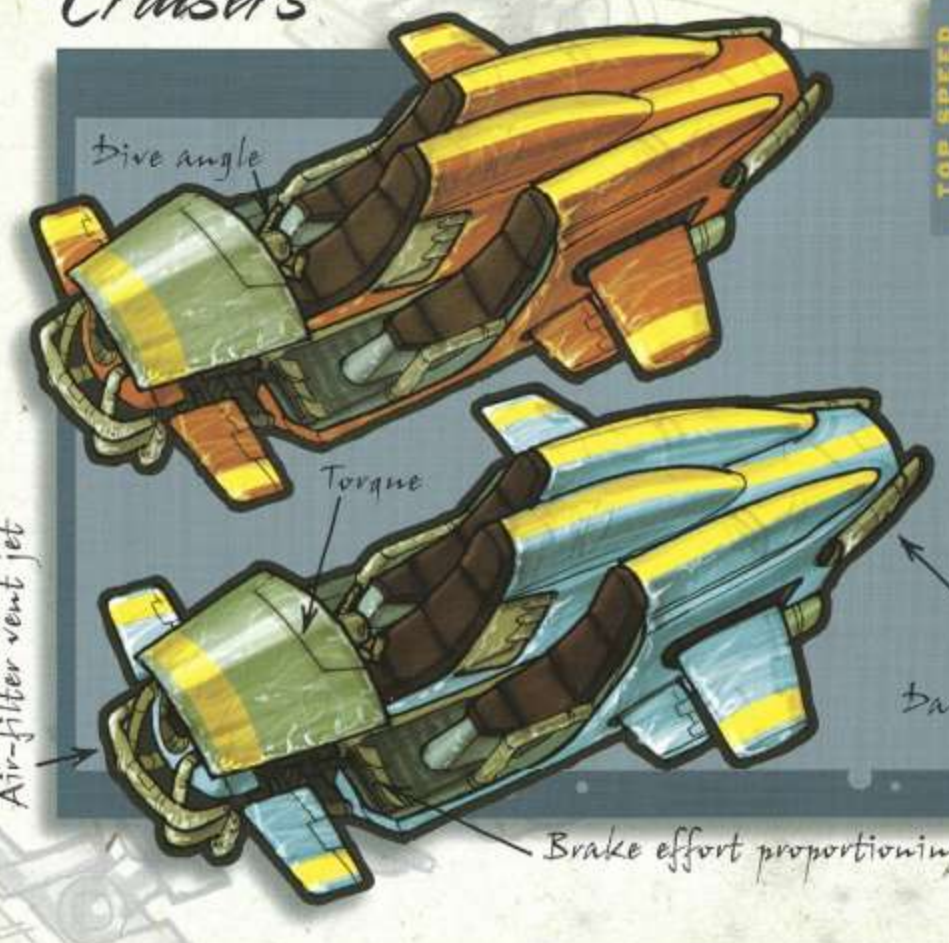


TOP SPEED: 28 m/sec

DRIVEABILITY: good

Flyers provide a good combination of handling and stability. The dual steering controls mean that two drivers are able to control the Flyer simultaneously, making them a real hit among Haven City's young couples. And also the cause of much marital strife.

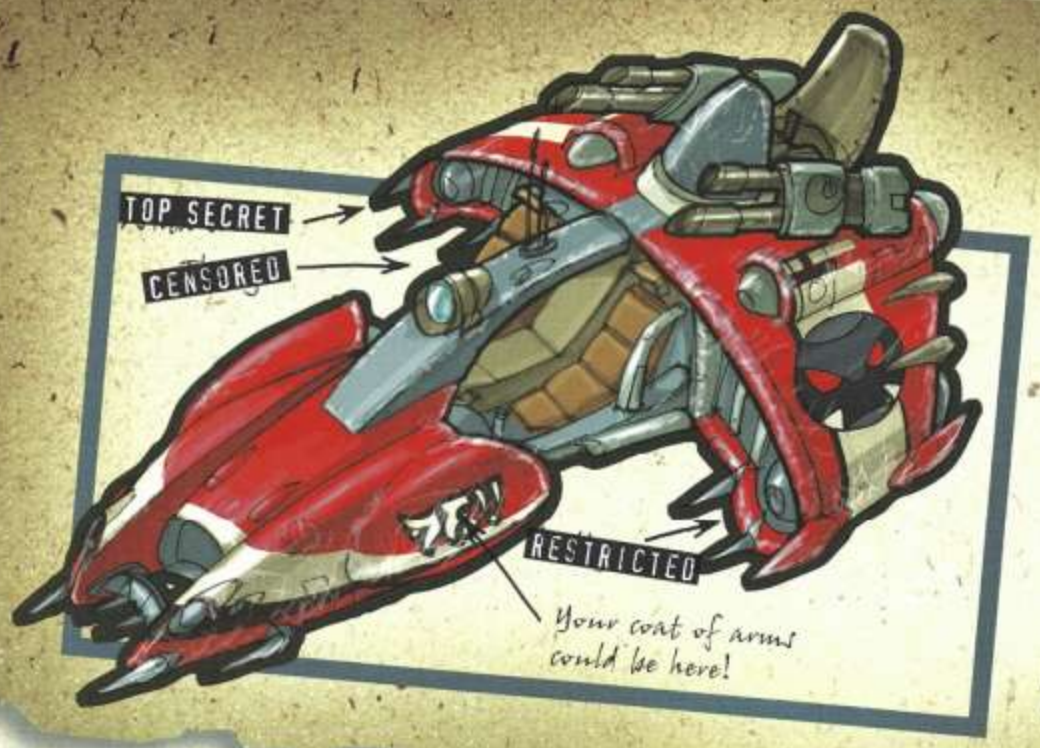
Cruisers



TOP SPEED: 25 m/sec

DRIVEABILITY: particularly cumbersome

The Cruiser is a fairly speedy vehicle, but sadly it is about as manoeuvrable as a concrete milk float. Nevertheless, the humble Cruiser is certainly a stable and durable mode of transport: a frontal collision with a Zoomer will only cause the merest scratch on the paintwork.



Hellcat Cruisers

From the newsletter for despots and princes of darkness: "The vehicle which is chosen by every Krimzon Guard – tested successfully in numerous patrols and riot responses! Thanks to its on-board gun with a full 360° turret sweep, this is the ideal vehicle for those wishing to uphold a strict regime. Take advantage of our order form for special customers – there is a bargain price if you order more than 100. You can even choose your preferred colour!!!"

Special Mission

Haven City does not just offer normal vehicles, it also has other mechanical means of transport. You can usually get your hands on anything under the sun, from convenient and elegant to cumbersome and ugly.

Jet Board

Test winner in "Haven City Skater Blood", Edition 5/23:

"This machine will allow you to surf across the terrain in style – almost vertically if you wish. Absolutely and totally out of this world! It will let you do wild feats and suicidal stunts, this thing moves and is more amazing than a load of Dark Eco. It is a welcome friend in getting you to places your legs could never take you. And it looks so sleek! A typical Lady K design which is 110 percent fashionable and gets full marks – 5 out of 5. Action, man!"

Air Racer

Extract from an interview with Erol, the popular Commander of the Krimzon Guard, as well as racing champion, which appears in the current edition of "Haven City Racer Riot":

Erol: Sleek, light and incredibly fast, the Air Racer is the pinnacle of racing technology. A bit like me, really.

Racer Riot: Could you please describe for our readers what it feels like to drive it?

Erol: It's not for the faint hearted. They require lightning fast reflexes and nerves of steel to drive! That's me!

Racer Riot: But competition is going to be stiff this year. Your rival's first race starts on page 91. What have you got to say about the "People's Champion"?

Erol: This … er … Jack bloke doesn't stand a chance of winning even one round against me. He's an amateur and had better forget about the championship. I will win – as usual! (Laughs)

Racer Riot: We are told these hot vehicles are also called "wedgies". Can you enlighten us on that one. Why this name?

Erol: That's because of their front air wedge design which looks like a potato chip with its peel still on, know what I mean? But it's also because of the effect they have on their riders during acceleration – it makes you feel like a potato wedge yourself. Wow. Deep-fried!

Racer Riot: A bit like you, then?

Well, then, Jak! I have skipped a few pages, and guess what: this Jet Board really is a hit. It even carries us across water and Dark Eco lakes. You must get one. I can let you in on a little secret: you will get to feel it under your feet for the first time in the mission Beat Jet Board Challenge at Stadium. You will find the relevant information on page 68, including instructions on how to steer the board. It's child's play – so just right for you, Jak.

Titan Power Suit™

From an instruction manual:

„Congratulations at your new titanium Suit™ to use which will take you through dangerous and hard-to-travelling zone complete safe. It will give you maximum safety the fact because you have urge and almost automatically all obstacles evacuate from the pasture, so is not only an effective buddy in situation crisis. But also erect and press can for item of considerable weight. At weight light because of less than one ton, titanium energy Suit™ sure moves not slow from Suit™ power, but thanks to competition capacity which will evacuate you from extreme danger complete safe.“

Rear view:

Hyper-insulated cap with meta-glass sealed view port, keeping driver safe from outside environments

Dual thrust jump jets for hopping manoeuvres

Safety real-time foot stabilisers

Front view:

Cockpit

Roto-punch actuators for aggressive obstacle clearing

Multi-composite armour shielding

Articulating pincers capable of lifting or pushing heavy objects

„Hi, I'm Pecker. Thanks to my impressive talent as an interpreter and the amazing mental capacity of Owin we have managed to convert the instruction leaflet back to the original text for you, and have then rather ingeniously translated it into coherent English, this time properly:

„Congratulations on your new Titan Power Suit™ which is designed to operate in dangerous and rough environments. It provides maximum protection and aggressive obstacle clearance capabilities. However, the Titan Power Suit™ is not only an effective partner in crisis situations because it also has heavy lifting and pushing capacity for your every need. Weighing in at just under three tons, your Titan Power Suit™ moves slowly, but with its power and protection at your fingertips, the Titan Power Suit™ can clear out all but the worst obstacles when the going gets tough."

Owin says you will only need the thing in Act Three. We will have figured out how it works before we get to page 118. You don't have to say thank you – the invoice will be in the post.

Items

There are a few things in Haven City and its surroundings, which will prove useful in your adventure.

Useful ... there you go! It's just incredible what kind of unnecessary knick-knacks some people carry around with them. And where do they keep it all? Have you ever thought about just how big even one single Skull Gem is? Well, I would take an entirely different approach to the whole thing. In the days when ... well, I could tell you stories ... etc...etc...etc...etc.

Skull Gems

A Skull Gem is the only part left of a defeated Metal Head. You can take them to the Oracle, and exchange them for special moves. You only get one Skull Gem for every Metal Head. If Jak – and we hope this will not happen – ever loses a screen life and therefore has to face the same opponent again, he will not get another Skull Gem the second time around. When Metal Heads appear in big herds, not all of them will release Skull Gems.

Health Paks

Little cubes with a bilious green cross on them are always welcome, for they regenerate Jak's energy level by two points. Health Paks are sometimes hidden in Krimzon Guard crates.

Precursor Orbs

These are objects that are hidden in certain places within the game or are awarded as a bonus on completion of certain "mini-missions". They trigger special functions in the Secrets menu.

Dark Eco

Dark Eco is sometimes left behind by defeated enemies; it can also be found in Krimzon Guard crates. Jak magically attracts these dark plasma balls – until his storage capacity is full. An overdose of Dark Eco in its concentrated liquid form is, however, totally fatal, particularly if you fall into a Dark Eco lake.

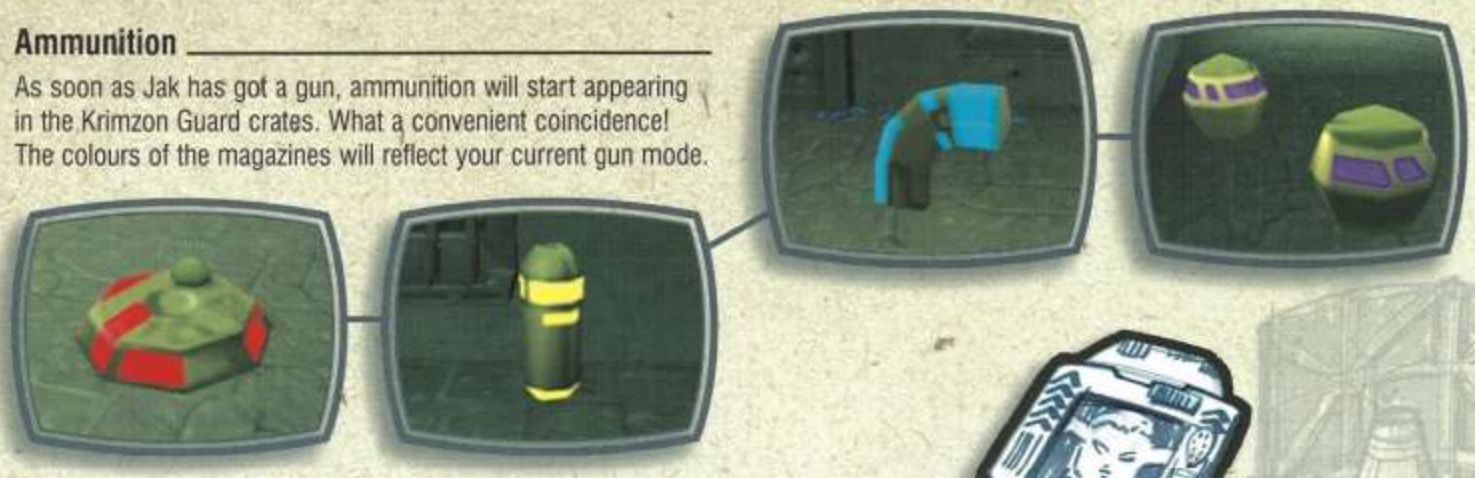
Krimzon Guard Crates

These storage crates, belonging to the Krimzon Guard, contain Dark Eco, Health Paks or ammunition for the Morph Gun. Destroy the crates to get your hands on the contents.

Knowing you, Jak, there is no such thing as too many or even enough Health Paks, right? So, I've done the research for you. Okay, these are the facts: should you ever run out of energy despite my active support, or fall into a bottomless abyss, the "powers" will give you a second chance – and a third, and a fourth ... as many as you like, in fact. The problem is that you must start your current session from scratch again. But as you know, practice makes perfect!

Ammunition

As soon as Jak has got a gun, ammunition will start appearing in the Krimzon Guard crates. What a convenient coincidence! The colours of the magazines will reflect your current gun mode.



Security Pass

Most areas of Haven City are restricted. If you don't have the right Security Pass, Jak will stay where he is, stuck in the Slums. For this reason, you must find, earn, and collect Security Passes if you wish to visit other parts of the city. The passes come in various colours. Each colour represents a different area of jurisdiction. Once you have a Security Pass, it will be used automatically.

Sights

An excerpt from the Haven City travel brochure:

"This is the city which you have been looking for in your restless dreams: Haven City. Tourists come from far and wide to enjoy the unique atmosphere of this popular destination: the pretty red uniforms of the city guards, the idyllic lagoon (whimsically called the Water Slums by the locals) as well as the clubs around the port are all things that our tourists just love to take pictures of and they are well worth a trip. Rest assured: your partner will beg you to come back over and over again. Forget your hectic everyday life and enjoy a relaxing holiday with us – at your special place."

Turbo Cannons

"A spectacular technical miracle from the Krimzon Guard's high-tech laboratory: the motion sensing turbo cannon. Experts agree that this fully automatic weapon is just as clever as a Krimzon Guard. The cannons are normally covered by red caps and only appear when the Krimzon Guard is chasing the Barons' enemies. That means you get to see them all the time."

Propaganda Station

"In these perfect info terminals you can hear the charismatic voice of our beloved baron all the time explaining the fine advantages of his super policies. And it's free. Now if that's not an amazing service! Long live Baron Praxis!"

Check Point

"An energy barrier makes it clear: you are on one side, and that's just the way it should be. What happens on the other side is the business of the people over there. Only people with a valid Security Pass may pass."

Security Gates

"Security gates either lead out of the city or into important buildings. As a good 'guest' of the Baron you are, of course, not interested in such trifles. However, rumour has it that the underground movement manages to open these top security gates time and time again ..."

Warp Gate

"You might think that the most interesting thing about Haven City is the variety of ways of getting out of it. But appearances can be deceptive! A warp gate can transport the user from A to B in split seconds, but only if it's been activated by an authorised technician. In this case, a request will appear on the screen to press △."

Question Mark

"To embellish the streets and squares, pretty blue energy fields have been installed, decorated with delightful question marks. There have been reports lately by worried citizens to the effect that these things have been suddenly turning red and flashing up the symbol of the underground movement. There are further reports that an angry-sounding voice then gives bizarre orders. But these are undoubtedly just unfounded rumours!"

Could these question marks have something to do with the "mini-missions" described in the Secrets chapter on pages 150–156? Well, I don't know, I think you should get started on the game and worry about all these secondary assignments later. Ready, steady go! Let's turn Haven City upside down!

How to use the WALKTHROUGH

Hang on there! Not so fast, young Ottsels. Before we both get started, I'd like to briefly tell you what is in store for us. And then we can begin. Promise!

Overview of missions

The whole game consists of three Acts, each containing around 20 missions. You will find an overview of the missions at the start of each Act. We have listed the missions numerically - (A) - to make it easier to follow, and you will be able to find what you're looking for very quickly using the chapter tab system. You are not compelled to follow the order of the missions described here. If you are able to choose from several missions, you can select a different order. (B) indicates the character who will assign the new mission. Whether or not a bonus can be collected will be shown with (C). The number on (D) indicates on which page the mission starts.

1 Name of mission

These names are also used in the game. You will find them under the option "Missions" in the main menu, and you will always know immediately where to find the information you require.

2 Pictures from the game

An old proverb states that a picture is worth a thousand words. That's absolute rubbish. This Mr Proverb hasn't got a clue! I'd like to show him a trick or two. Nevertheless, screen shots are useful to help you understand the content more easily. If you recognise a situation, then you're on the right track!

3 Mystic numbers

Even the old Precursors knew this principle in order to measure progress.
If the numbers become bigger, then everything is okay. However, if the numbers become smaller, then ... your best bet is probably to move back in time! AAAAH!!! Keep cool, don't panic! No worries, I'm with you!

Hi, my name's Daxter! You probably already know me from an earlier successful game Jak & Daxter: The Precursor Legacy™. I always have something important to say. If you intend to guide my mate Jak through the game successfully, then you can count on me to give you helpful hints.

4 Characters

This is a brief guide to the characters, and will enable you to get to grips with the personalities in the game. Detailed portraits are in the chapter 'Characters'.

5 Instructions

A summary of the instructions in the game: "Destroy this, blast that into the air, fetch this, bring that..." How on earth did people cope before Jak and I appeared on the scene? Nobody seems to get anything done if we don't do it. What do you mean? You reckon that the Daxter boxes also sometimes look suspiciously like orders? No, that's not true. I'm only here to help ... wouldthesebigroundeyeseverlietoyou

6 Information box

If any special features appear in the game you will find specific hints concerning new weapons, vehicles, locations of rare Precursor Orbs and lots more. Don't worry if you have missed an Orb. There are more of them in the game than you will actually need.

7 Walkthrough

The best way to get Jak to his goal: what you have to do, what you can do, what you need to watch out for, and the things you would be better off leaving alone. Documented, tried and tested, and recommended by experts.

8 Map

The map indicates the area in which the current mission will take place and will show important things, for example, Jak's face - where you will begin the mission. Other important items include icons belonging to the person who has assigned you the mission, important mission goals, items to be found such as Precursor Orbs, your opponent's whereabouts, Krimzon Guard Crates, the recommended route – basically useful information. The key to the maps is on the back cover inside flap.

Escape from Fortress

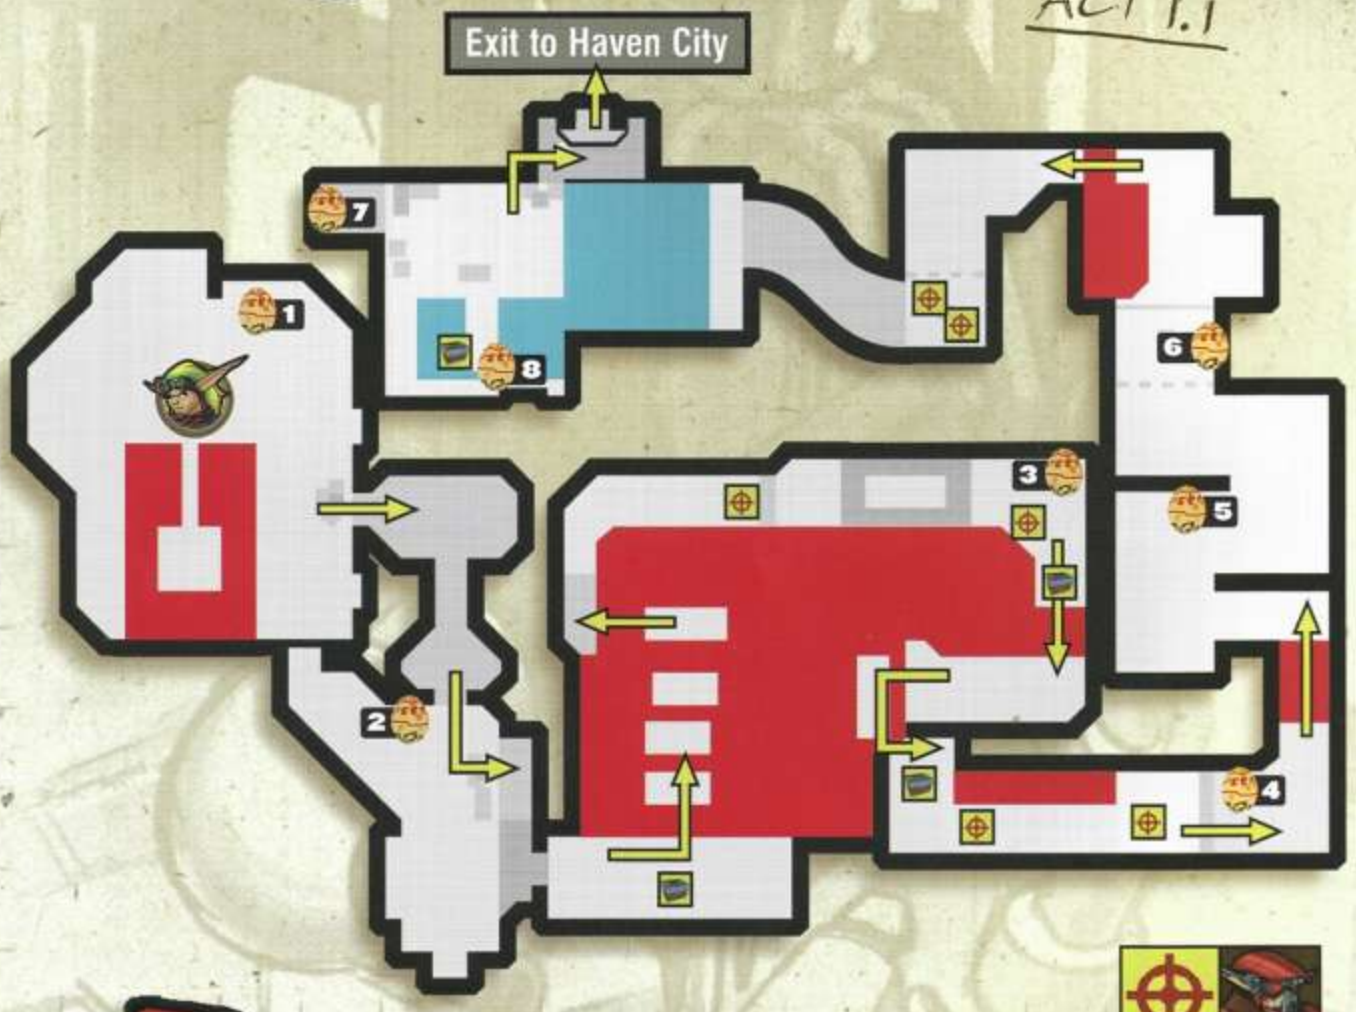
ACT 1.1



Okay Jak, off you go. Let's see how good you really are. We've got to get out of this place, so you'll just have to make use of those special qualities that Mother Nature gave you. Don't worry if it gets difficult, I'll take you through it step by step. Someone has to... What are you waiting for?

Jak is standing next to a couple of metal crates underneath an opening in the wall (Fig. 1). Press ⊗ to jump up onto these. Once you're in the room behind the crates, turn right down the corridor. You can take a look around by moving the right analog stick. If you press down on the right stick (R3), you can look around through Jak's eyes (first person perspective). Press R3 again to return to the original view.

01

While you're in the corridor a hint will appear on-screen, showing you how to roll by pressing L1. This will only work, however, if you're moving. If you press L1 while standing still Jak will simply crouch down. If you then want to move, he will crawl around.

Orb #1

Precursor Orbs can be exchanged for Secrets in the menu. The first of these can be found in the first room. Jump off the metal crates to the left and run along the top of the cells until you reach the Orb (Fig. 2).

02

An alarm bell will ring in the next room through the loudspeakers. You can simply ignore this. Turn to the left and jump onto the crates. When you get to the top you will be shown how to make a double jump. Press ⊗ to jump and press ⊗ once again while you're in the air to jump even higher (Fig. 3).

03

After having passed through the opening you will see two so-called Krimzon Guard Crates, which contain useful extras such as Health Packs. Use any attack, either with ◎ or □, to open the crates.

Orb #2

When the alarm sounds, take a look to your right. The Orb will be on the top of the cupboard (Fig. 4). You can reach it by taking a double jump.

04

Now you will have to jump up onto the platforms to your left. If you can judge the distances better from the side, turn the camera using the right stick (Fig. 5). When you reach the third platform you'll hear a warning message blare through the loudspeakers, and you'll know that you are on the right track.

If Jak automatically gets stuck on the edge of a platform (Fig. 6) press the jump button so that he can pull himself up.

06

The fourth platform moves up and down. It's best if you wait until this comes down before jumping ahead (Fig. 7). Go to the edge and then take a double jump. After the platform has reached the top, take a double jump to the left in order to reach the next level. The high jump will be explained here. First of all duck by keeping L1 pressed down. Then press the jump button (Fig. 8). Jump to the right to reach the next level.

You will encounter your first opponent here. Although the Krimzon Guard is not very aggressive, he'll clobber Jak if you ignore him. The guard will run towards Jak and give him a good going over with his energy weapon. This will cause Jak to lose two energy units for each attack. You can take the guard out with two spin attacks (◎) or strikes (□). You would be best fighting as follows: press □ to dash towards your opponent and knock him over, then punch him (Fig. 9) and follow it through with a spin (Fig. 10). Nice!

Leaving the ex-guard behind you, climb up and jump onto the next moving platform to reach the second guard in the distance. Wipe him out before he realises what's hit him. If the guard should happen to be waiting for you at the edge, jump towards him and press □ in the air to execute a dive. If you take a couple of hits along the way, you will find fresh energy in one of the two crates.

Orb #3

The third Orb will be right at the top of the console beside the second guard. Take a high jump to reach to it.

Krimzon Guard

The Krimzon Guards are the elite soldiers of Haven City. Commissioned by the Baron to whom they are uncompromisingly loyal, they defend the city and keep the civilian population under control. They are feared opponents due to their ruthless methods. Still, they're not a problem for a courageous hero like Daxter.

Beyond the crates you will see a pole sticking out of a wall. If you jump towards it Jak will automatically hold on and swing around it in a circle. A surprisingly elegant move. Press the jump button so that Jak lets go. His flight path will depend on what position he is in at that particular moment. There will be no danger in practising here, as there's thankfully no sudden death drop to contend with. A rare luxury in this game. At any rate Jak must jump off it once he's two third of the way up (Fig. 11).

After having swung up turn to the right and jump up onto the next moving platform. Turn round when still on the platform and jump back to the right side of the corridor. You'll find two additional crates guarded by two Krimzon Guards. When you reach the end of this long room, you will have to jump over a gap, which is too wide even for a double jump. You will have to do a long jump, which is executed (Fig. 12) as follows: Run towards the gap, press quickly on L1 to do a roll, and while you're rolling press ⊗ to jump off the edge. Jak will take a breathtaking long jump as soon as he has finished the roll.

12

If you don't manage it and fall into the pit below, use the crates and a couple of double jumps to get back up again. Round the next corner you will face another perilous long jump, this time without a safety net.

Orb #4

You will find the fourth Orb in the first pit.

You will then reach a room with grid flooring. The guards below will be firing at Jak. Run quickly to the right and around the corner until you reach the other end of the room, where you will see a metal plate in the floor (Fig. 13). Don't stop, whatever you do, because you're virtually unprotected from the shots even though you're close to the wall. Run to the hatchway, jump up and press ▢ while you're in the air. You will then break through to a lower floor.

This handy dive attack will also allow you to open extra crates and attack opponents.

Orb #5

You'll find an Orb behind the console in the room with the grid floor.

Orb #6

Look behind the pillar to your right once you've dropped down through the hatchway (Fig. 14).

14

Run forwards and take a long jump to the left over the chasm (Fig. 15) to reach the passageway. You will then have to stomp your way through another hatch. After having slid down a passage Jak will land in some murky water. Further back in the room there are stacks of crates. You will see a doorway with a red light above it at the top of the crates (Fig. 16). This is your way out of the prison. Once you have reached it, your hopping will be over for now, and you can take a plunge into the hurly-burly of Haven City, where the adventure will really take off.

15

Orb #7

You can reach the Orb in the recess from the top of the stack of crates at the end of the room. Take a double jump and then whirl around in the air to extend the jump.

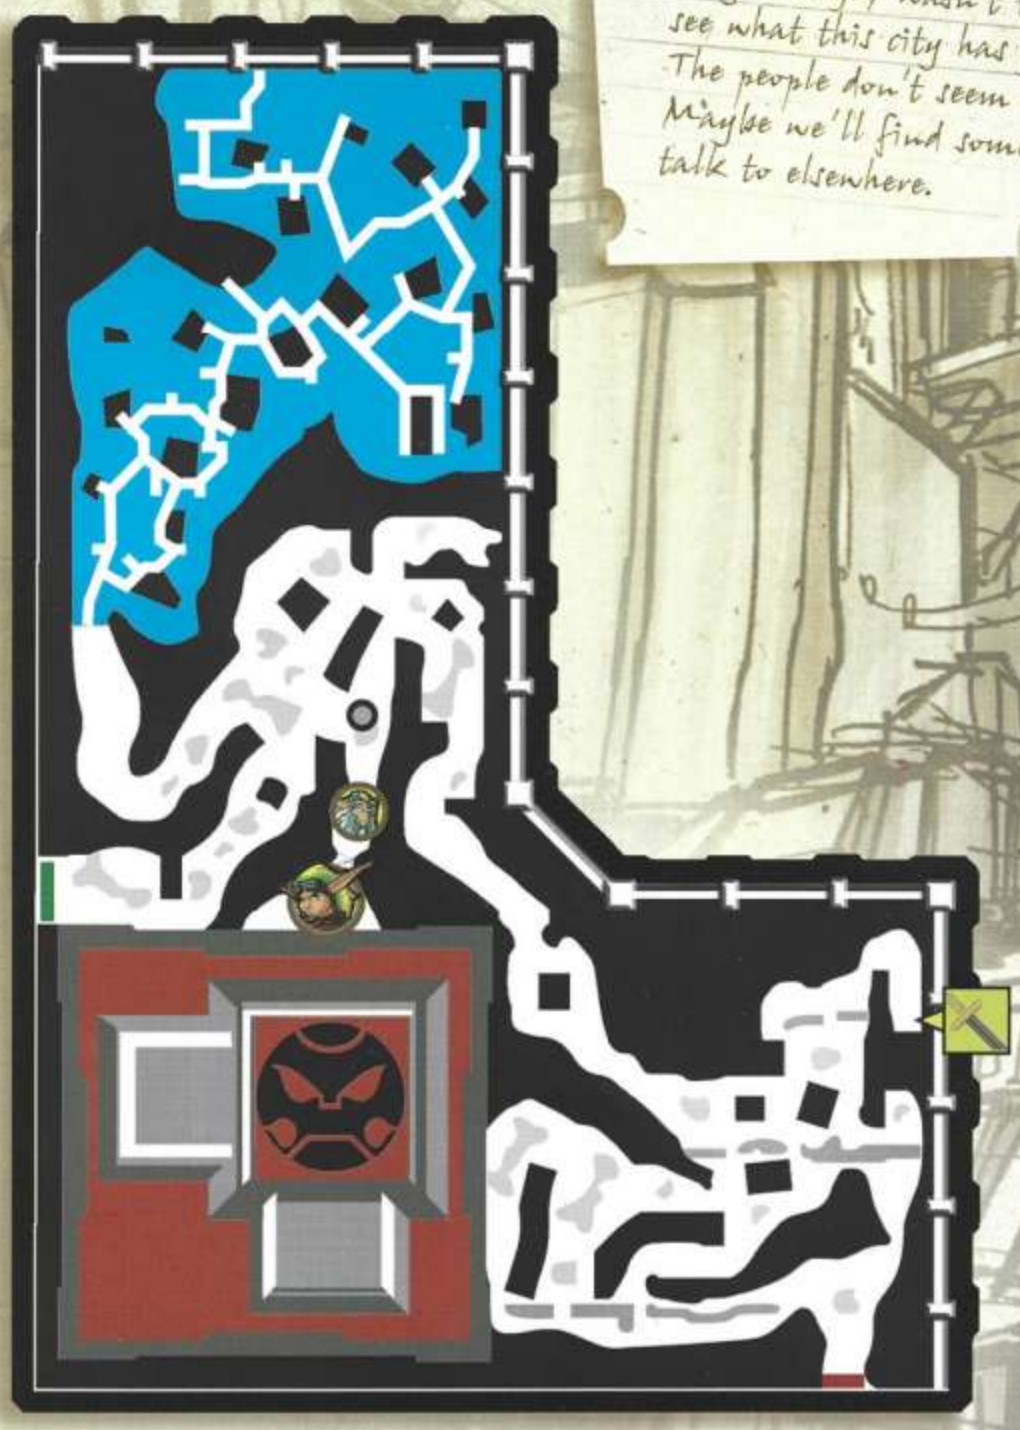
Orb #8

The last Orb for the time being will be in the water, beneath the giant pipe opposite the exit.

Protect Kor and Kid

ACT 1.2

Well, you've managed that. Easy enough, wasn't it? So, let's see what this city has got to offer. The people don't seem very talkative here. Maybe we'll find someone interesting to talk to elsewhere.



This child is extremely important. Protect us against the guards and I'll introduce you to someone who can help you.

There is an underground movement, the leader of which is the Shadow, and he can well do with men of your sort. Look for a particular cul-de-sac near to the city's wall and ask for Torn. He can help you.

There's no reason to start an argument with any of the foot soldiers. That will only arouse the attention of the Krimzon Guards – as indicated by the different music and flashing map in the bottom corner. And now that we are on the subject: the blue triangle in the middle is Jak, and the point indicates the direction in which he is currently looking.

Simply run down the street. After several metres an old man accompanied by a child will stop Jak & Daxter (Fig. 1). The man is called Kor. He will explain that you are a "guest" of Baron Praxis in Haven City. However, the pleasant chat will soon be rudely interrupted by the Krimzon Guards who have an uncompromising view of how things are to continue. Their motto is: "Surrender and die!"

Kor

Kor will bring Jak in contact with the underground movement of Haven City. He is a wise old man, who will be able to tell you a lot about the city, its many dangers, and plenty of other vital nuggets of information. Sometimes he seems somewhat, well, let's say, eccentric, but he has his reasons for being so...

Three Krimzon Guards will rush towards the small boy. You will have to stop them. If you don't take immediate action, the game will be over in a jiffy. Beat them up quickly with blows and whirl attacks – two hits per person should do the trick (Fig. 2).

Afterwards, Jak will undergo a weird transformation. As an after-effect of the Dark Eco experiments he will turn into Dark Jak, and is virtually invincible in this state. Later you can activate Dark Jak by pressing L2 but only if you have collected enough Dark Eco beforehand.

After having transformed into Dark Jak run towards the ten Krimzon Guards and keep pressing ▢ (Fig. 3). Continue fighting until all of the opponents have been eliminated.

After the fight Kor will send you off to find Torn. A dagger marks his position on the map. The icon on the map will indicate the direction you should take. If you select "Show Map" on the menu, the dagger will indicate Torn's exact location.

Run straight down the street, which will be crawling with guards. A grey dot on the map indicates a parked vehicle (Fig. 4). When you're close to it, press △ to climb in. By the way, red dots on the radar are Krimzon Guards, and the red beam indicates the direction in which they're looking. The large red dots denote Hell Cat Cruisers and other motorized guardians of the law.

04

Look for parked vehicles ... you don't want to wear out your shoes walking around now, do you? Or you can simply just pluck a vehicle out of the air. Press △ as one comes overhead to jump up and 'hang on (Fig. 5).' Then press △ once again to start driving. Easy!

05

Welcome to the City Transportation System

06

When you find yourself behind the wheel for the first time, you will be told the basics of the City Transportation System. You can fly in two zones: high or low. Press R2 to move from low to high and vice versa (Fig. 6). This allows you to dodge the traffic and to move more quickly. Accelerate with ⊗ and brake or reverse with ▢. Press △ to hop out of the vehicle.

If you don't wish to stand out – which is advisable – keep away from the Guards. We don't recommend you ramming them or their vehicles.

Although you might fancy taking a sightseeing detour through the bustling city the exits are barred with energy barriers preventing you from going too far afield. Be patient, there are plenty of amazing adventures waiting for you out there, which will let you see every far off corner of the city. It's best to fly directly to Torn before getting too caught up in the tourist vibe. First of all, fly straight ahead, and then turn right at the next opportunity. After having turned the corner, keep to the left and you'll eventually arrive at a dead end (Fig. 7). As you're driving along, you will notice a blue energy screen showing a question mark (Fig. 8) – unless you've set off the alarm, in which case the energy screen will be red. You will be able to take on small bonus missions at these stations at a later stage.

Your contact man will be waiting in the cul-de-sac. To say that Torn is not particularly pleased to see Jak & Daxter is putting it mildly. The surly lout will refuse to lead you straight to Shadow. Looks like he's out to show you who's boss around these parts ...

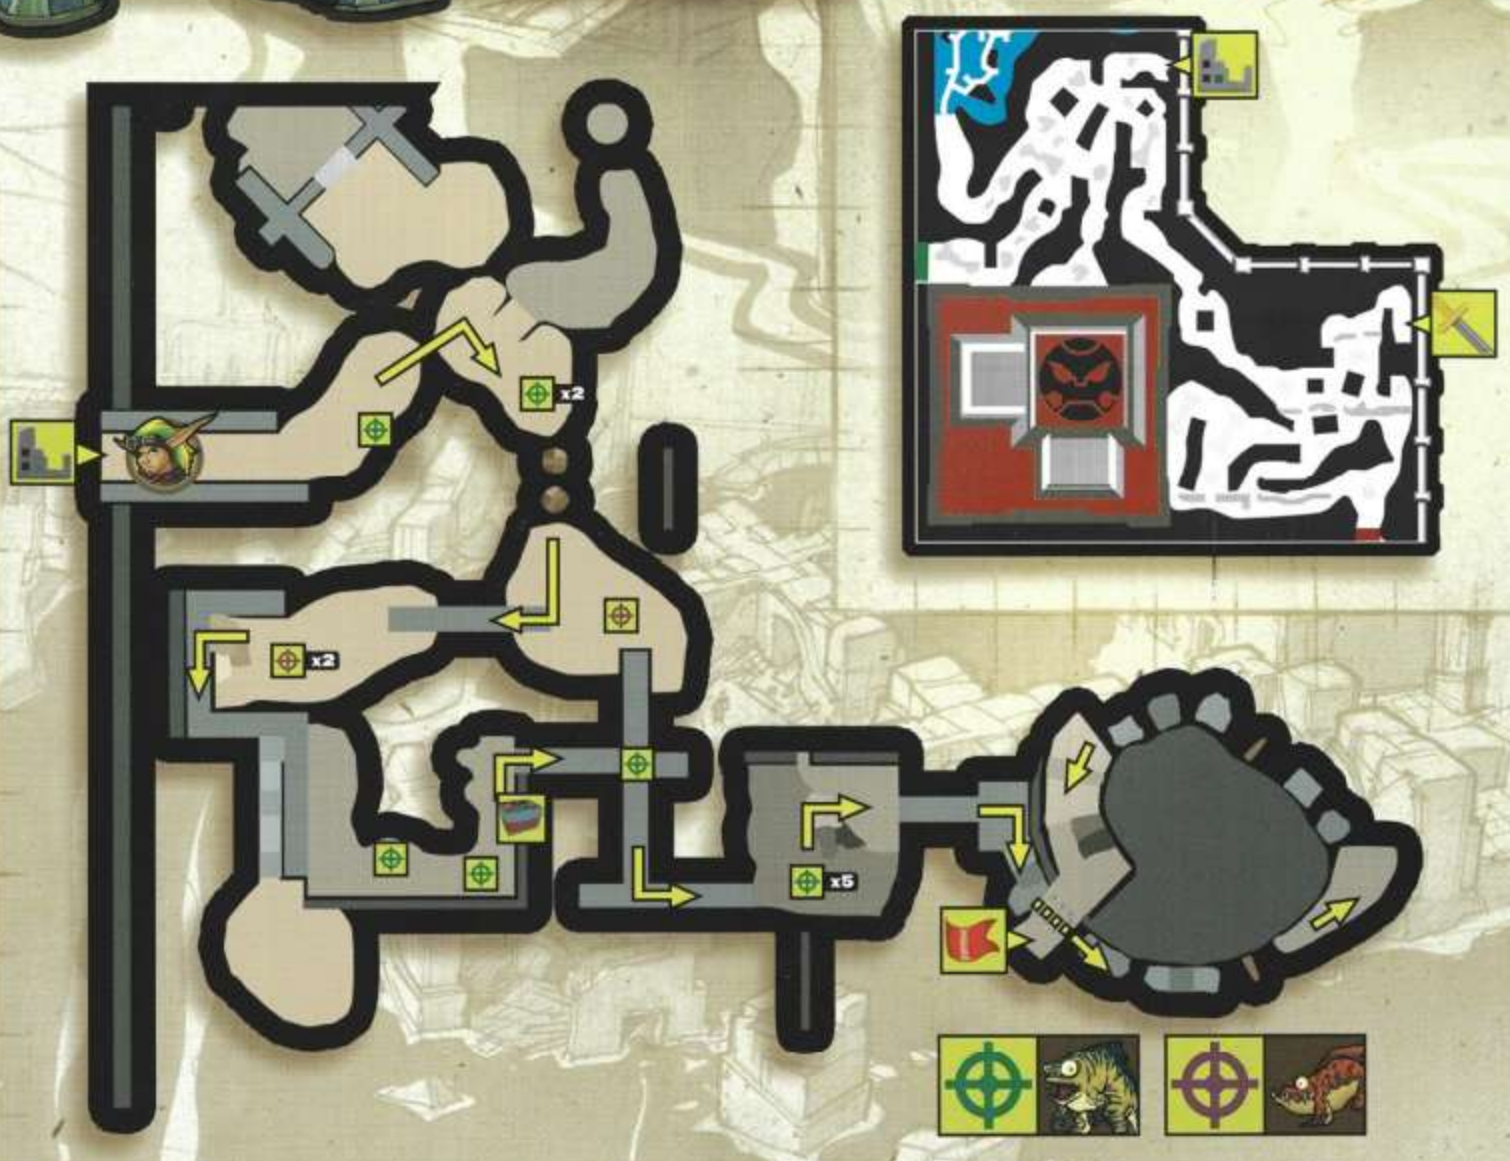
Retrieve Banner from Dead Town

ACT 1.3

- First of all, you will have to pass Torn's test. Steal the Baron's banner from the peak of the ruined tower.

Torn

Torn is part of the underground movement of Haven City. He is filled with deep hatred for his former boss, Baron Praxis. Torn is continually fed with useful information from his old contacts, which helps him formulate his many plans to inflict damage upon the despot.



An icon shaped like a ruin will now appear on the map, indicating the correct exit from the city. Jump into a vehicle. After having left the dead end keep to your right. This will ultimately take you to another narrow street, which ends at the city wall gate (Fig. 1). Walk towards the metal gate. It will open automatically, and you will enter a kind of floodgate. Wait inside until the door behind you has closed and the exit has opened in front of you. You are now in Dead Town.

Your first opponent is waiting just ahead of you: a small, green Glub (Fig. 2). This monster will attack Jak with a vengeance. When he comes into contact with Jak he deducts a unit of energy. You don't have to knock out these beasts, but it would be best if you did, to prevent them attacking you from behind. Go for a normal attack, or jump into the air and press ◻ when you're above the beast. Defeated opponents will leave behind a small amount of Dark Eco. Once you have collected enough, you can turn into Dark Jak again.

You will see the tower with the banner straight ahead on the eastern side of the swamp. Make sure that you don't fall into that gooey green stuff as it will cost you energy. The next two Glubs will be waiting for you on the island to your left. Head over there, then continue right, jumping over both of the wooden platforms, which will start sinking when you stand on them (Fig. 3).

Once you are on firm soil again, you will be attacked by a Znorkle Tooth. This is a more aggressive beast than his green colleagues. You will encounter two more Znorkles as you head right over the narrow stone bridge (Fig. 4). After having KO'd them, jump up onto the wall and continue to your left towards the area of the ruins with two green Glubs and two crates containing health power-ups.

Go round the corner, then turn right and carry on along the wall. Be careful, another Glub is lurking (Fig. 5). Here, where the walls form a crossroads, you can either continue on round to your right or take a long jump straight ahead over the abyss. Whichever route you choose you'll end up in the middle of a horde of angry Glubs. Climb up onto the rubble and then across a crumbling walkway towards the tower. Don't stop on the disappearing walkway, or you'll be plunged straight into the contaminated water (Fig. 6).

Next, turn right and proceed to climb up the outside of the tower, using normal jumps and double jumps. Take care, some platforms will crumble away when you step onto them. Eventually you will reach a horizontal pole, where you will have to swing and press ⊗ just as you are about to jump off (Fig. 7). After you have passed the large corner platform climb down the descending path, hopping across two more crumbling slabs until you reach the next pole. The next three platforms are all of the crumbling variety, making this a very tricky sequence to negotiate. Get through it by running a little, and taking big double jumps (Fig. 8). When you have to jump round the corner press the analog stick hard towards the wall to avoid falling outwards. It's now only a matter of a short walk up more stairs to reach the banner.

Mission accomplished! There's nothing more to do here, so it's time to return to the city. Hop up the steps (Fig. 9) and jump down the other side of the wall. From here, take the return path back to the floodgate. Don't worry, you'll get the chance to explore the northern area of Dead Town, presently still shaded on the map, during a later mission.

Once back in the city, get hold of a vehicle and speed back to Torn, simply following the dagger icon on the map. He's no longer standing in the side street, but on your left you'll see the door to his hideout (Fig. 10). Once inside, you'll receive your next assignment from Torn and Daxter will get a nasty surprise.

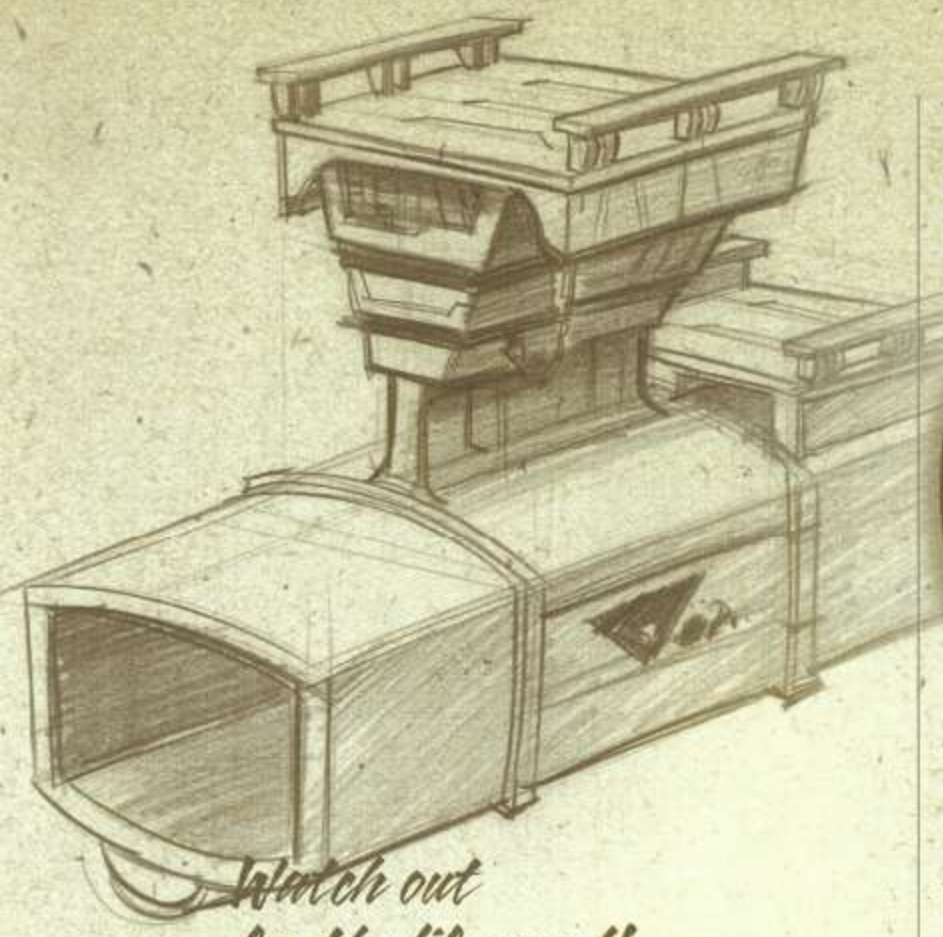
Find Pumping Station Valve

ACT 1.4

The Baron has turned off the water to the slums. He is prepared to stoop to any level in order to break all resistance; even the death of innocent victims. Your next task will be to make your way over to the Pumping Station outside of the city and turn on the main valve again.

An 'X' icon on the map will show you the way to the correct exit. The path will lead you to the large blue area highlighted on the map. You can then fly right over the Water Slums to the pipe at the other end (Fig. 1). The floodgate will lead you out to the Pumping Station.

Okay Jak, we're now dealing with the Metal Heads for the first time.
If you manage to hunt down one of those beasts, a yellow Skull Gem will jump out for you to collect. Take everything you can; an explanation will be provided at the end of this mission. Our target, the main tap for the water supply, is situated on the top left of the western island. We'll have to go round the mountains anti-clockwise to get there. The sooner you get started the sooner we can knock back a few drinks in town.



Watch out for the lifeguard!

If you swim too far from the shore, a robot guard will emerge (Fig. 2), greeting you with a less-than-welcoming single well-aimed shot. The waters around the north island are particularly well controlled by this determined lifeguard.

Three Manic Heads are just a few steps ahead of you. You can either use the pumping piston to take you to the level above (Fig. 3) where two Glubs will be waiting for you, or you can choose the slightly easier path along the water to the right and through the bushes (Fig. 4). Another Precursor Orb lurks in a large tube above the path on the right. You can reach it with a high jump. We're not going to point out all the locations of the other Orbs in this area, since there will be ample opportunity to collect them later. You will find a complete list of all Orbs after the walkthrough on pages 157–158.

Continue running down, always to the right of the mountain, until you reach the end of the beach. You will see three extra crates, and to their left three steps leading up (Fig. 5). Jump up the steps to come face-to-shiny face with another Manic Head. Proceed to the left across the bridge along which runs an energy barrier (Fig. 6). With a courageous double jump, you can clear it elegantly as it approaches you. You'll find that you can stay in the air longer and delay your fall by executing a twirl attack in mid air. Once you have reached the next platform, which is full of enemies, jump onto the right pumping piston. When it reaches the top, jump over to your right onto the footpath.

Follow the outer path around the northern mountain – past lots of opponents. Mind the precipices! You'll get plenty of opportunities to practise your long jump skills here. Jump off the rotating bar before it falls into the abyss (Fig. 7). To your south-west you should see a metal ramp leading up to the third mountain (Fig. 8). Climb up the ramp and follow the path ahead. Finally, all you have to do is get past two more Manic Heads to reach the main valve, which will then be clumsily activated by the hapless Daxter – with only a little help from Jak.

After the action you should be close to the floodgate again. Now you can easily make your way back into town and collect your next assignment from Torn. But are you any closer to meeting the mysterious Shadow?

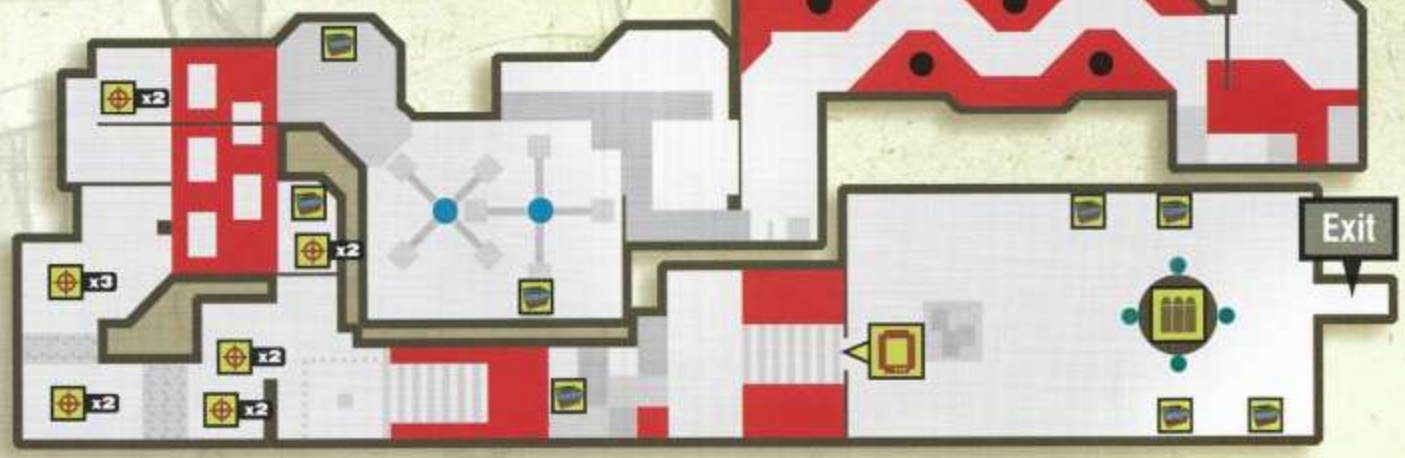
The Oracle

After having defeated the first Metal Heads near the Pumping Station and collected their yellow Skull Gems, you can pay a visit to the Oracle as soon as you have finished the mission. An orange icon, which vaguely resembles an octopus, marks the Oracle's hut in the south-east corner of the Water Slums. Inside, you'll discover a curious statue with a very deep voice (Fig. 9). It will huskily ask you to bring it a tribute of 25 Metal Head Skull Gems. As a reward, a new skill will be added to Dark Jak's repertoire. This is a voluntary mission, but extra skills are not to be sneezed at ... See the Secrets chapter on page 144 for further information on Dark Jak's special moves.

Blow Up Ammo at Fortress

ACT 1.5

You will meet Shadow when I say it is time ... if I ever say it. But for the time being I will say that you should turn your obvious talents to destroying an ammo supply dump which we have located in the Fortress. This means: lots of Krimzon Guards and constant patrols. Should be right up your alley, my friend. Blow up all the ammo you find inside.



The entrance to the Fortress will be clearly marked by a tower icon on the map. If you didn't attract any unwelcome attention on your way there, you will simply be able to walk straight inside. If you were unlucky enough to have raised the alarm, two gun turrets situated in front of the door will greet you with an unpleasant welcoming salvo (Fig. 1). Once inside, you will notice the ominous looking machine parked nearby with its engine humming unnervingly. Looks like trouble? You don't know the half of it, but you soon will. First smash the crates in the corner to stock up on Health, then turn left into the passageway. As you might have guessed, the metal monster will immediately begin to move.

Okay, Jak. I'd better explain what's happening here. You see everything from the viewpoint of the machine's gun turret. A red target circle is constantly trying to seek you out while the whole thing gets closer and closer to you. To dodge the target circle, you'll have to keep moving, jumping up and down and sideways as soon as the target locks onto Jak. If the spiked roller catches up with you, watch out! There's only one thing for it: run for your life!

Jump onto the metal plank to your left and along the back wall over to your right (Fig. 2). The machine cannot follow you there, but be aware that it will continue to fire away at you without stopping. Go on running to your right and run the gauntlet of mini-gun turrets (Fig. 3). Mysterious red laser beams will cross the path ahead of you. If you touch them you'll draw more gunfire so try your best to jump across them. And remember: never stand still!

At the end of the passageway, jump onto the big wooden crate and from there grab onto the bar. Twirl across to the passageway above. The relentless machine will smash through a gate down below. Walk along the upper ledges and jump onto the revolving platforms to reach the first of two tubes in the middle of the spinning machinery (Fig. 4). A simple attack will easily put them out of commission. As soon as both tubes are destroyed, the blue energy barrier will open, (Fig. 5) revealing an entrance for you to jump across to. If you fall down in between, run back to the wooden crate and swing back up.

04

05

Although you should by now have left the annoyingly persistent machine behind, you will still be far from your destination. First you must cross the moving platforms. This is quite easy, just don't rush things. Simple jumps will suffice. Having reached the other side, go around the grid until you are in front of the plates once more (Fig. 6). On the opposite side, you will see two guards and two crates, but you don't actually have to go there. You want to get to the other side of the grid to your right. To do so, simply jump onto one of the platforms that will be moving from right to left. From there, turn to your right and double jump quickly to the right to get to the next platform (Fig. 7). Jump off it to your right where some nice guards will be waiting patiently for you.

07

Now for the spiked traps: two rows of spikes will spring out of the floor at regular intervals. Simply start moving as soon as the ones in front of you disappear (Fig. 8). After a few guards and spikes you will reach a ground plate. Break through, drop down and step onto the conveyor belt. Ride it to the end, then jump onto the moving platform. From there double jump onto the ledge at the back. Continue onto the next conveyor belt above to reach the final room.

08

Security Pass

At this point, you will get to watch a cut-scene that shows Daxter finding a Red Security Pass. This means that you can breeze past Checkpoints inside Haven City and thus finally leave the confines of the Slums.

Watch and learn the secret of how the Krimzon Guards supply the Metal Heads with Eco, then get ready for some more running as another guard machine is about to spring into action. At the back of the room you will see the head of a rocket. Four supply tubes are attached to it, with four clamps that also appear on the right hand side of the screen. Your task is to destroy the missile cooling system – and this will only be possible with the help of the robot guard. You must lure its red target circle onto the clamps (Fig. 9). Jump aside in time, before it starts to fire at them (Fig. 10). Waiting at a safe distance is also an option, although it may take a little longer. Simply keep out of the way until the Security Tank does the job for you.

Once all four clamps are destroyed, a door will open and a countdown will kick in. You will now have a measly ten seconds in which to reach safety. Mission accomplished – back to Torn.

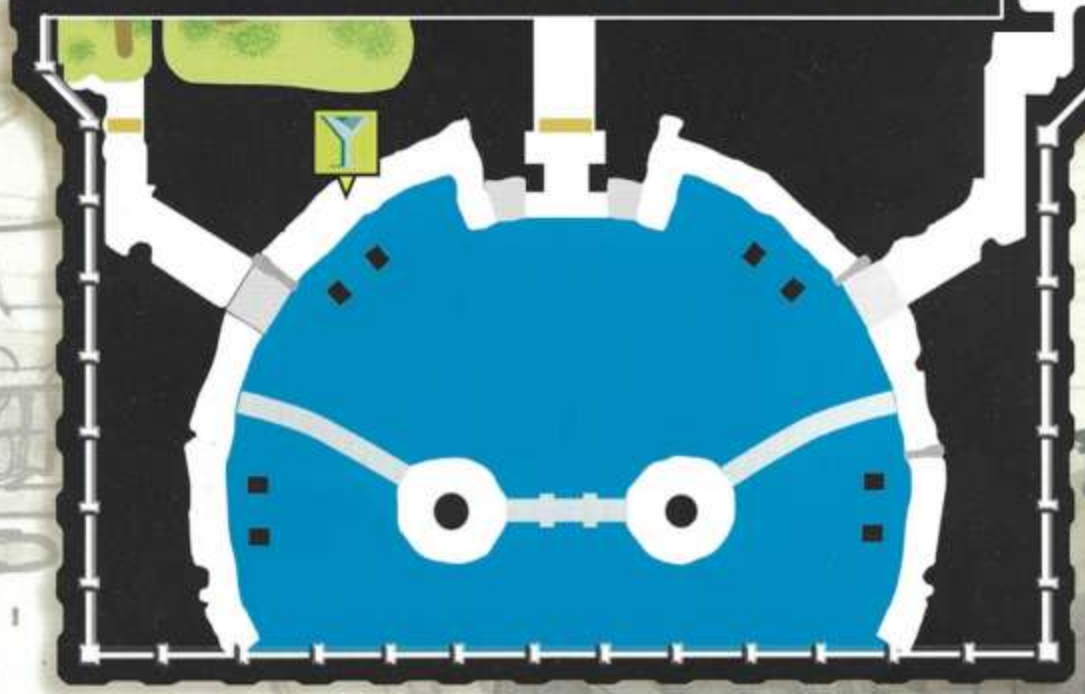
Make Delivery to Hip Hog Saloon

ACT 1.6

One of our suppliers is waiting for payment. You will have to take a bag full of Eco ore to him. Using the Zoomer go to the Hip Hog Saloon in South Town and ask for Krew. He might know something about the Baron's plans. Talking of the Baron: do not let his soldiers detain you.

I don't know whether you've noticed the conspicuously marked Zoomer in front of Torn's entrance?! Hop into the saddle and get yourself to the south end of town, through the Industrial Zone. Thanks to the Red Security Pass from the Fortress, we can now leave the Slums without any problems – just as well I found it. At the top of the screen, a bar will appear, indicating how far away you are from your destination. A cocktail glass on the map will show you the way to the Saloon. Did I say cocktail glass? Mmm... that sounds good ...



As the vital package in question is firmly attached to the luggage rack of the Zoomer you won't be able to use any other Zoomer to reach your destination (Fig. 1). You will also have undoubtedly noticed that vehicles can only be used for a limited time in the city. If you take too much damage from the Krimzon Guards the Zoomer will eventually explode –meaning one shipment down the drain. And you really don't want that to happen.

The ramps in the Industrial Zone will take you to the upper levels (Fig. 2). They're really only meant for pedestrians, but by the same token, they're delightfully free of Hell Cat Cruisers. Wherever you choose to fly, the guards will eventually notice you and your suspicious shipment and will do anything to stop you. You can only move slowly on the pedestrian level, if you don't want to fall off the edge. The advantage is, though, that you will only be attacked by ordinary foot soldiers.

Down below, the situation is entirely different: roadblocks will be set up to stop you in your tracks and gun turrets and Krimzon Hell Cat Cruisers will fire at you with everything they've got (Fig. 3). Use the lower hover zone, avoid accidents and stay on your route and you should reach your destination in one piece.

The way through the Industrial Zone is indicated on our map. It's a good idea to pause your game periodically and check where you're going. As soon as you can see the port's water in front of you (Fig. 4), take a right and drive on towards the Saloon. You can also fly diagonally across the water, which is tons of fun (Fig. 5). As soon as you reach the clearly marked destination, Jak will jump out of the saddle automatically and enter the saloon. This marks the end of the mission.

Krew

This is where you get to know Krew, the very charismatic owner of the Hip-Hog Saloon. If he tried to market his airborne frame, he would surely make a lot of dough. But he prefers to make money with shady deals – including arms trafficking. As a welcome present, he gives Jak a weapon, the so-called, "Red Gun".

Beat Scatter Gun Course

ACT 1.7

Krew and Daxter could end up as close friends, that is quite clear from the start … Krew does not provide the information you were hoping for, but your own weapon is nothing to sneeze at, is it? You will have to prove that you know how to use it by completing a training session in the purpose-built shooting centre. The Gun Course is situated behind an inconspicuous entrance near the port (Fig. 1). On the map, it will be marked by a round reticle. When you get there, Sig will give you instructions as to how to use the weapon. You must follow these instructions in order to proceed.

1. To fire the weapon, press R1.
2. To holster the weapon press ↑ on the digital control pad.
3. Draw your weapon again by clicking ↑ or R1.
4. You will find the appropriate ammunition ("Red Ammo") in the Krimzon Guard Crates. Shoot them to pieces!

After having smashed the crates in the room, it's time to try your luck with the Scatter Gun Course. Go over to the left door and confirm your intention by pressing ⊗. Here are the rules:

1. Shoot the targets: there are various targets. Most of them will be blue (Fig. 2), although some will be gold (Fig. 3). Some will require two hits (Fig. 4). The quicker you hit your target, the more points you will be awarded.
2. Hold your fire on civilians (Fig. 5). If you hit a friendly target, points will be deducted (-100). You must think first and then shoot. The "civilians" are clearly distinguishable from the Metal Head targets.

Red Gun

The Morph Gun is a Wastelander's best friend. It features four different modes, but to begin with, you can only use one of them, the "Scatter Gun" mode. We also call this the "Red Gun". The Scatter Gun is a weapon with a short range, wide field of fire and a very low shooting frequency. It can also be fired while driving.

A few more tips:

- Move forward slowly. The targets will gradually appear further and further to the back.
- Look for ammunition crates along the way. Each one contains four packs with five cartridges each. Your ammo capacity is 50 cartridges.
- You must reach at least 3,000 points to accomplish your task. If you don't make the total straight away, simply try again.
- You can also destroy the targets by hitting or kicking them. Very helpful if you are short on ammunition, and sometimes it's even quicker.

Leave the building as soon as you have enough points. The cocktail glass icon on the map indicates that the charming Krew has an assignment for you.

From now on you can try to set new records on the Gun Course to win Precursor Orbs. With the first Gun Upgrade the task will be easier, a bigger magazine will also be helpful.

Protect Sig at Pumping Station

ACT 1.8

Have you ever thought about a career as a Wastelander? Their job is to find things for me outside the city walls. If you clowns work for me, there's something in it for you. At the moment, I'm looking for someone to cover Sig's back over at the Pumping Station.

The 'X' icon on the map designates the floodgate that leads to the Pumping Station. You will need to get yourself a vehicle and fly back to the Slums via the Industrial Zone before continuing on to the exit in the Water Slums. Outside, you will meet Sig who will explain everything else to you (Fig. 1).

Sig

The huge Wastelander is Krew's personal bodyguard – as well as a passionate Metal Head hunter. With his powerful weapon, the Peacemaker, he has polished off a few trophies for the Hip Hog Saloon here and there. In action, he is a powerful and reliable ally.

Hello Cherries! We're now going after the Metal Heads. Our targets are five very specific specimens. Stay close to me and keep them off my back. I don't work with amateurs!

08

At the top of the screen you will see a display showing Sig's remaining energy level. You would think that the bloke could look after himself pretty well, but at the moment your help is crucial. Take aim at the Znorkle Tooth and Juice Goons which will appear right in Sig's path (Fig. 2). Try not to attack your team-mate outside of battles. Sig can get violent pretty quickly, even with his supposed buddies.

04

Don't move too far away from Sig. When he calls "stay with me" be sure to stick close – don't be tempted by a few far-away crates. If Sig feels that you've left him all alone, he will abandon the mission immediately. Sensitive soul. Still, it's nice of him to leave you all the Skull Gems (Fig. 3).

Follow Sig up to the footbridge where he will blast the big tank out of the way. Then it will be your turn to lead the way and eliminate two Juice Goons or at least push them off the footbridge (Fig. 4). At the corner you must jump up onto the bridge end and pull it down with your body weight (Fig. 5). Sig will then take aim at the first target. While he charges up his trusty Peacemaker, you must repel all the Znorkle Tooth monsters that jump up onto the footbridge. Your best vantage point will be standing right next to Sig where you can easily cover both sides (Fig. 6).

06

After the first Metal Head is iced, proceed down to the beach. You will have to plough through hordes of Glubs and Juice Goons to reach your second destination (Fig. 7). While Sig focuses on his preparation, ward off all the creatures that will come jumping out of the sea. Next, turn north. On your way, you will have to pull down another bridge end. At the end of the footbridge, repel the advancing marauders for the third time (Fig. 8).

09

Now follow Sig down to the beach (Fig. 9). Before he can take aim at the fourth target, you will need to clear the vacinity of all Juice Goons.

On your way to the fifth trophy, Sig's weapon will suddenly malfunction underneath the bridge (Fig. 10). While he is busy with his stubborn Peacemaker, you'll have to contain all the suicidal Juice Goons who will rashly jump down on you from above. Changing into Dark Jak may well prove useful here.

Having survived all this mayhem, you will now be very close to your destination. A few metres ahead, Sig takes care of the fifth and final target, while you must once again silence the obnoxious Znorkle Tooth gang (Fig. 11).

Job done, you will be free to return to Haven City through the floodgate – the cocktail glass on the map will indicate that Krew once again wants to call upon your services.

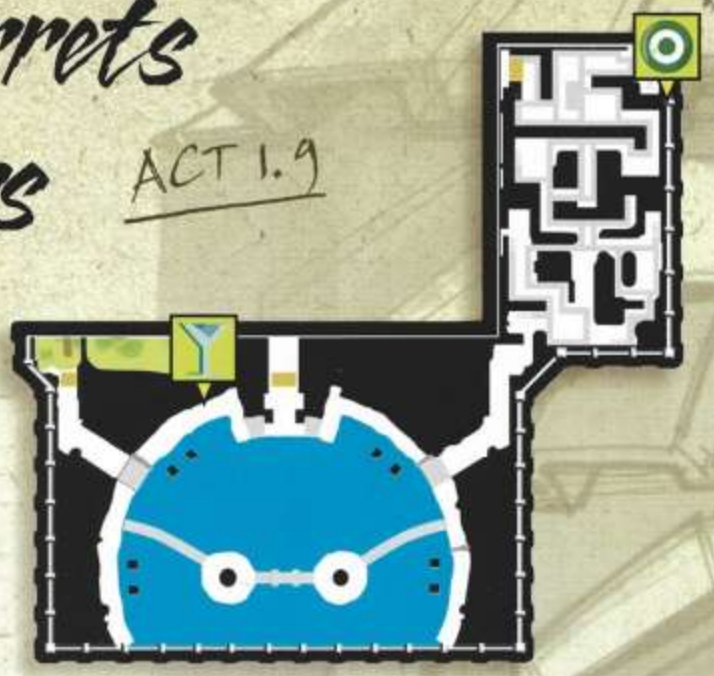
Destroy Turrets in Sewers

ACT 1.9

Before the Baron installed security devices, the Sewers were always a fabulous smuggling route for me. I need someone to go down into the Sewers and eliminate the sentry guns. Don't worry, I'll show my gratitude.



The entrance to the Sewers is situated in the Industrial Zone (Fig. 1). On the map, the floodgate will be marked with a manhole cover (a circle with a dot in the middle).

Go through the metal door and ride the lift downstairs. A symbol on the right of your screen indicates how many sentry guns remain. The positions will be indicated as green points in the Show Map menu. You will encounter several Znorkle Tooth in the first corridor. Thanks to the Red Gun, they shouldn't pose a problem. Watch their cheeks: they'll inflate them and give a frog-like croak at the same time. They will then lash out with their very long tongues, which they love using to hit you (Fig. 2). Round the corner, the first gun turret lurks in the darkness.

Okay Jak, can you see the round mound on the floor? Good. Hit it to turn on the lights (Fig. 3). Once you have managed that, with my help, you will pull off the rest too! The sentry guns fire rapid and deadly beams from a long distance (Fig. 4). They take aim and then fire a short zap. Prick up your ears and listen out for the sound that the servo engines generate in the process. Whenever you hear it, take a quick double jump or – better still – run to the side. That way you can safely move towards the gun in a zigzag pattern. Once you are close enough, one shot or punch will be enough to destroy the thing (Fig. 5). Right: one eliminated, three to go.

Jak is a very good swimmer and diver, but because there is quite a bit of animal life in the sewer, it is better to stay dry. Prepare yourself for a little surprise along the back wall near the second grid (Fig. 6). The creature slamming against the grid is no danger to you. But the same is not true the other way round!

Cross over the series of platforms. You will see another light switch on the ground in the pitch-black passageway (Fig. 7). Pressing it will reveal three very strong Grunts. Take care of business, then follow the corridors round until you reach the second gun. This time, a small path leads to the canon (Fig. 8). If you watch out for the timing of the shots and try to always take a double jump in time, you will easily reach your target. If you happen to fall in the water, make sure you steer clear of the floating mines.

Keep moving along the same path (Fig. 9). Suddenly the metal walkway will start to collaps underneath you. There is nothing you can do to stop yourself falling into the pit below so you'll just have to roll with it. Crack open the crates at the back to get the goodies. Step on the light switch and then retreat back into the corridor a little and patiently wait for the eight Grunts that will come marching towards you (Fig. 10). As they're unable to approach you from the side, you can easily ward them off using your Red Gun. After the battle, climb up the platforms, which are situated to your left at the far end of the room (Fig. 11). A little further along the corridor the third cannon will be waiting for you. You can jump towards it diagonally using the round platforms without much danger. If you have enough Dark Eco to summon Dark Jak it will make this section a whole lot easier.

In the next shaft you will trip over another light switch. A little further along, the light will go out again automatically, leaving you alone in the dark with three Grunts (Fig. 12). This will not be too much of a problem, however, as you can make them out by the luminous Skull Gems on their foreheads. Apart from that, your Red Gun will prove very useful: just fire away! Behind their position, the fourth cannon will be blasting away from the left. You must jump towards it across three platforms. As you do this, don't panic or remain on the same spot too long. Run and jump over quickly (Fig. 13). Successfully destroy the gun, and your mission will be complete.

14

You will still have to get back to Krew in one piece, however. Be vigilant, as between you and the end of the tunnel several Znorkle Tooth and Metal Heads will be lurking in the shadows (Fig. 14). At the turn-off just after them, jump down to your right to reach the floodgate. Drive back to Krew and he will present you with a Weapon Upgrade and make tactless comments about sewer smells. You will have to get the Blaster component from the lobby of the Gun Course yourself. A weapon icon on the map will show the way.

The Power Blaster – also referred to as the Yellow Gun – has a long range, and its firing frequency is extraordinary. But there is also a disadvantage, of course: the shooter is required to be more accurate when aiming. Using the control pad, you can switch back and forth between the weapon modes. Press up for the Red Gun and down for the Yellow Gun.

You can also kick and shoot almost at the same time (Fig. 15). Position yourself in front of the first target and press ◎, immediately followed by R1 to hit both targets one after the other. From now on, you will also find Yellow Ammo in the Krimzon Guard Crates.

Now you will get to practise with your new weapon on the Gun Course. The Power Blaster training begins behind the door on the right (Fig. 16). You can, however, defer the compulsory exercise and leave the Gun Course with the weapon in your luggage. The glass and dagger that will have appeared on your map indicate that not one but two unpleasant gentlemen want to call on your valuable services: However, the gun reticle icon also makes it clear that sooner or later you will have to think about your weapons training. These will be your options:

- Beat Blaster Gun Course: see page 59
- Torn: Rescue Vin at Strip Mine: see page 60
- Krew: Beat Time to Race Garage: page 66

16

Because I'm such a loveable fellow, (did someone just say weasel?) I will give you a free piece of advice, Jak. Get your hands on the Yellow Security Pass before you start talking to that hovering ten-ton guy. You must first rescue Vin at the Strip Mine and then help Torn's Friend at the Pumping Station. After that the whole thing will be a walk in the park. How do I know all this? Do you really think all I do is sit idly on your shoulder? Don't answer that...

ACT 1.10

Beat Blaster Gun Course

Yellow Gun training is one of three missions that you can complete after having destroyed the turrets in the Sewers. The format of your Power Blaster training is similar to the Scatter Gun training (cf. page 53). The faster you destroy the targets, the more points you get. If you destroy a "civilian" target, you will – deservedly – be punished with a point deduction.

This time you will need to score at least 4,000 points to complete the mission. In order to take aim, you must move towards the target. The rest is virtually automatic; watch out for the way the red laser latches on to the target (Fig. 1). If you have problems making enough points, you're probably being too passive. Make sure you are always in the thick of the turmoil and continuously running back and forth between the targets and you should be okay.

By the way: once you have successfully cracked the required number of points, you can always play Gun Training just for the sheer fun of it and try to beat the record.

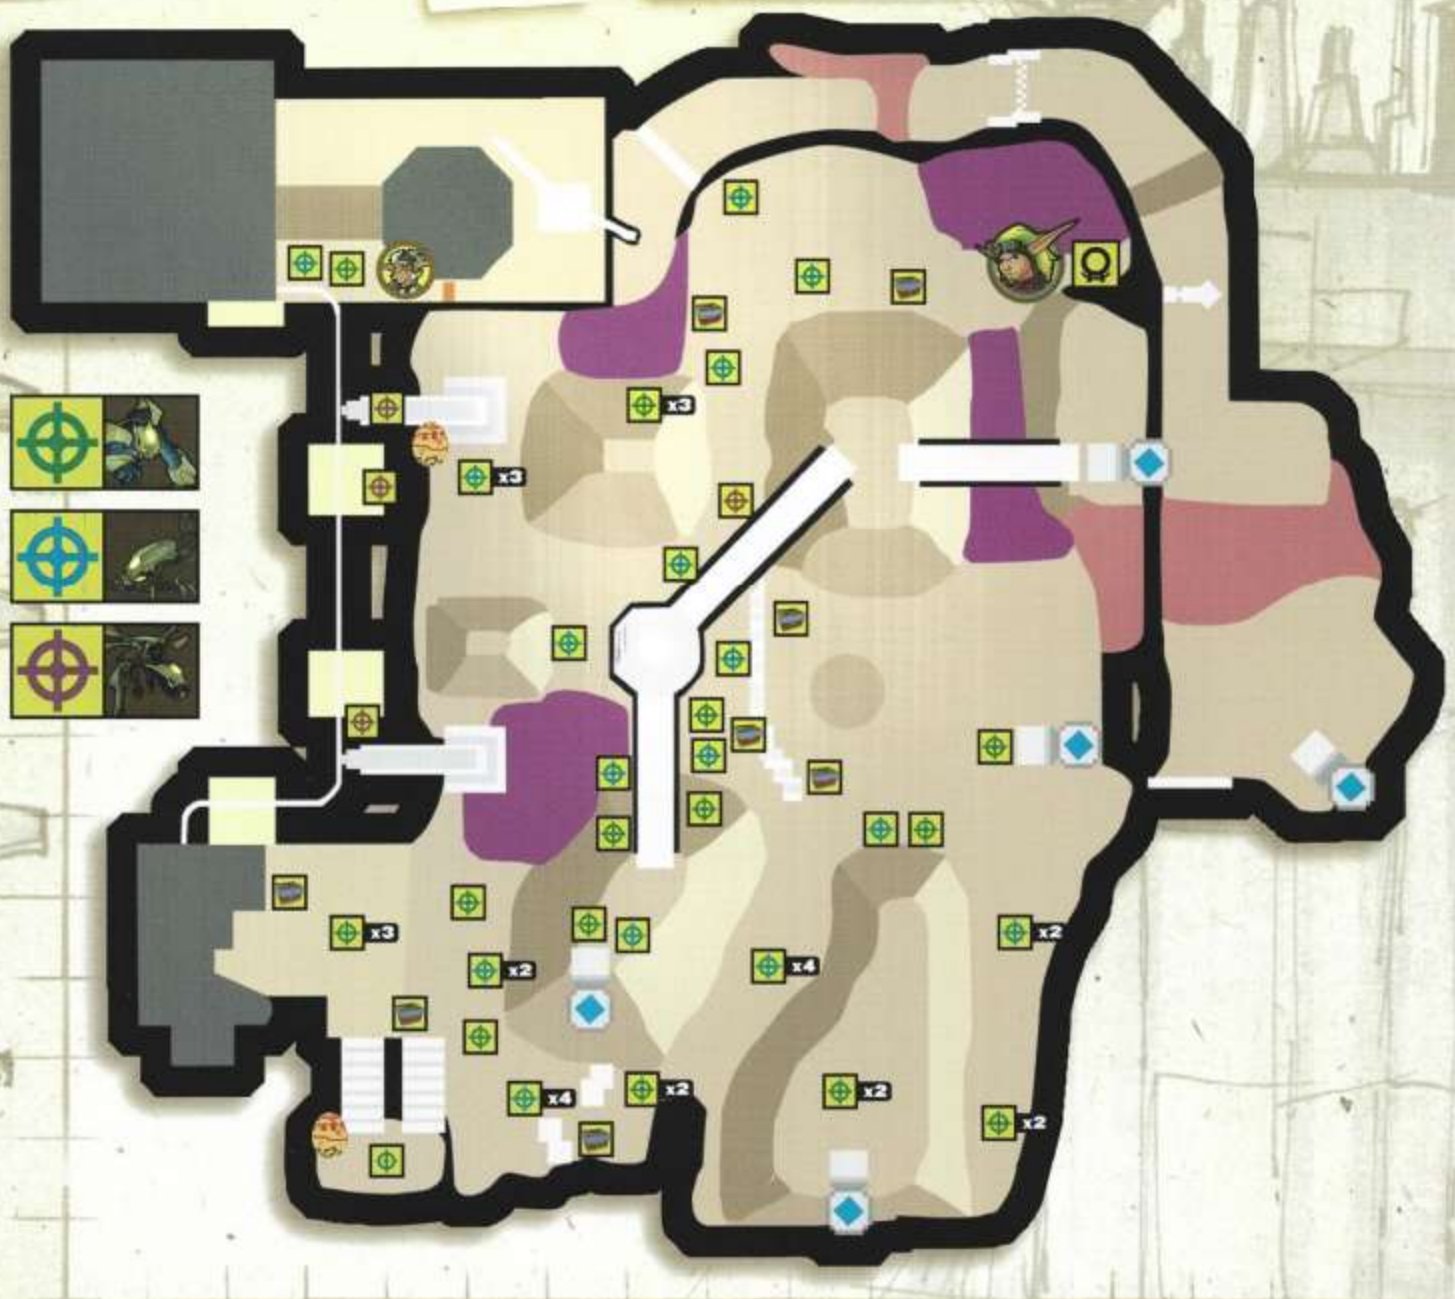
Rescue Vin at Strip Mine

ACT 1.11

One of the Baron's mining operations is under attack by the Metal Heads. The foreman is one of our best informants. His name is Vin. Strange name, strange man. First try and find the warp gate in the power station. It will take you to the Strip Mine where you must come to his aid.



This mission will become available to you after Destroy Turrets in Sewers. Once you have received your instructions from Torn, a yellow lightning icon will guide you to the warp gate located at the other end of the Industrial Zone. Drive up one of the pedestrian ramps and enter a semicircular building (Fig. 1). Inside, you will find the portal that you have been looking for (Fig. 2).

After jumping out of the warp gate you will find yourself in a kind of gravel pit. You will see three crates just a few metres ahead of you. This is where you will encounter your first Stinger (Fig. 3). He will runs towards Jak in a zigzag pattern and ought to be eliminated with the Blaster before he can stab you.

Lots of Metal Heads will be patrolling in the Strip Mine. Many of the creatures will be heading straight for Jak. You should therefore proceed very slowly, always looking around you (using the right analog stick). Keep firing systematic and well-aimed shots using the yellow weapon. If necessary, you can change into Dark Jak, provided you have collected enough Dark Eco. If you've already been taught how to use the Dark Bomb by the Oracle (see page 144) it will come in very handy here.

04

05

06

Move towards the water, taking care not to fall in as getting wet means instant death. Follow the path to the left that leads through the dunes. Lots more Stingers and Grunts will surround you. You'll also spot a Metal Jacket flying around (Fig. 4). Bring him down to earth quickly with two shots from the Yellow Gun before he can do too much damage. Next, you will come to a large clearing with a conveyor belt on the ground (Fig. 5). Follow it, then pass the slopes on the other side. Keep following the path, past the crates, until you reach the building in the background: a moving walkway leads up to the front (Fig. 6).

I hate interrupting your heroic fight, but there is a much simpler way: with a few high jumps and double jumps you can clamber up the wall to the left of the warp gate (Fig. 7). When you're on top, run along the ramp right to the end of the tower where a few stray opponents will be hanging around. Then you can jump down to the building on your right and use the moving walkway (Fig. 8). But there is a catch: you won't collect as many Skull Gems if you take this route.

On the large platform on top of the building you must first get rid of three Grunts. You can then approach the crane that is transporting mine carts filled with rubble (Fig. 9). Choose one, jump on it, and ride it to the far side before jumping off.

When riding on the mine carts make sure that you deal swiftly with the Metal Jacket who hovers around taking pot shots at you. Bring him down with two hits from your Blaster. You will encounter two more on your way, and at the other end you must be extra careful as a Stinger and a Grunt will charge towards you and try to push you over the edge (Fig. 10). Once you have escaped this latest danger turn right, towards the door next to the warp gate. Here's your chance to save poor old Vin who seems just a tiny bit jumpy...

Time to return to the Power Station together with nervous Vin. You can then either get your next mission from Vin (Destroy Eggs at Drill Platform) or do Torn another favour (Find Pumping Station Patrol).

Destroy Eggs at Drill Platform

ACT 1.12

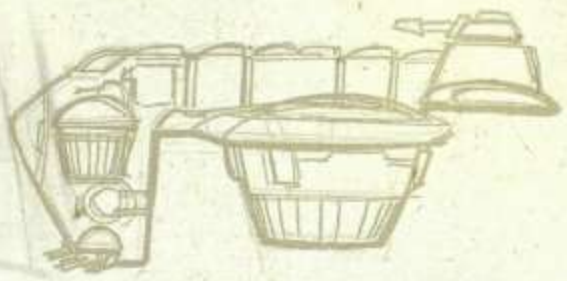
This mission will become available once you have saved Vin at the Strip Mine on Torn's orders. You will be briefed by Vin on your next mission in his headquarters at the Power Stattion on the edge of the Industrial Zone (Fig. 1). His icon will appear on the map as a lightning flash.

Metal Heads keep attacking the mining operations. But we need Eco in order to protect the city. My readings show a drop in Eco flow at the drill platform. Probably some Metal Head eggs sucking away power. Use the warp gate to go to the platform and destroy every Metal Head egg you can find.

Vin

Vin is a brilliant engineer who is in charge of the city's Eco power grid. It's his job to keep the Metal Heads out. This problem takes its toll on his nerves and even the term hyper nervous does not fully do justice to his jittery state of mind ...

This time, the warp gate will not drop you off in the Strip Mine, but on the Drill Platform. Your mission is to destroy the Metal Heads' eggs. You can't do this with your Morph Gun, however. You need more weighty firepower to scramble those eggs. Look no further than the cannon on the opposite platform. To get there, you must first get past the Ginsus menace (Fig. 2). These enemies are always hovering just above the ground and will try to encircle Jak before attacking him. Use the split-second delay to blow them away with your Red Gun. Remember, don't attack these small fluttering creatures without using a weapon – unless you do so as Dark Jak. Normal physical attacks will only result in pain. Once you've dealt with them, go to the platform, stand on the lift panel in the middle (Fig. 3) and let it take you up. When you get to the top, enter the cannon turret and open fire!



Cannon station

To fire, press R1. Your weapon will heat up in the process; a round indicator in the middle of the screen will start moving up. When the indicator has reached the limit, your shooting frequency will fall. This means that you must take your finger off the trigger once in a while. A small triangle on the outside of the circle will indicate where the next opponent is – and from where the next one will approach. The 16 green blocks in the circle represent your energy level. If you are hit too many times and the last block disappears, the cannon station will explode – and Jak with it. You can always leave the cannon station by pressing △ (Fig. 4), but you will need to use the firepower of your gun to destroy the Metal Head eggs. On the right side of the screen the indicator will tell you how many eggs are within shooting range.

Your opponents are Wasps who will viciously attack you to prevent you from destroying the eggs. The first two will fly towards your nose (Fig. 5). The Wasps will be in trouble after the first hit, but they still have some fight left in them. Only when you see the Skull Gem fly away after three direct hits can you begin to relax. The third Wasp will approach from the left (Fig. 6), followed a little later by nos. four and five. They will both come from the same direction, round the corner of the building. The last Wasp will approach from the opposite direction, roughly where the warp gate is.

As soon as the coast is clear, you can take care of all 58 Eggs without any trouble. The first nest is just below the warp gate. The next one hangs to its left, on the corner of the building (Fig. 7). As soon as the last batch of eggs has burst, blow a hole in the wall. Before exiting the turret (with △), make sure you've destroyed the three remaining nests which will be stuck to the wall further to your left (Fig. 8).

Take the lift down two levels. (If you jump back on it when you're at the bottom, it will go back up to the middle level.) Be careful when you go through the hole that you blew in the wall because there is a Stalker lurking in the passageway. This clever Metal Head will be protected by an energy shield. Keeping as far away from your opponent as possible, take your Yellow Gun, make sure your target laser is fixed on your opponent. As soon as the Stalker lowers his shield take a double jump and shoot (Fig. 9). That way, you can jump over your opponent's shots while at the same time landing a direct hit. If one hit is not enough, wait until the Stalker lowers his shield again, before hitting him with your decisive shot.

Orbs

A few Precursor Orbs can be found on the Drill Platform. You will only be able to collect some of them during this mission. The map will show you exactly where they are located.

As Dark Jak you can easily make mincemeat of the hapless Stalker. And while you're at it, you can also eliminate all the Ginsus in the background. When you go through to the next area look around for ammo crates before jumping up on the barrels (Fig. 10) and moving across to the metal footbridge. Beware of the flames that flare up through the grids at regular intervals. Simply continue running when they disappear. At the end of the footbridge you'll find a lever to your left on the wall (Fig. 11). Hit it and a platform will flip up. Jump onto the platform quickly (it will flip down again within a few seconds) and continue on your journey.

12

13

15

To the left and around the corner, past four Ginsus, you'll find another lever and yet more Ginsus. Flip the lever and jump up, then jump down and move forward slowly until the Wasp blasts away part of the metal footbridge in front of you (Fig. 12). Run across the remains of the bridge and shoot the Ginsus that ambush you. Ride the centre lift panel up and run quickly to the second cannon turret. Two Wasps will approach you from the left (Fig. 13). The next pair will come from the same direction. Number 5 will approach from the Warp Gate. Turn right to get rid of number six (Fig. 14). The last Wasp will come from the direction of the warp gate. Finally, you must destroy all 44 eggs. Two nests are hanging to the left of the warp gate. Blow a hole in the wall while you're at it (Fig. 15). You will find nest no. 3 directly above, on the large ball. The final nest is behind you.

Exit the turret, take the lift down (watching out for Ginsus!) and go to the open passageway where a Stalker will be lying in wait. On the other side you'll find some health and ammo crates to your left. Jump along the wall from one platform to the next. Do this quickly, as the platforms will give away suddenly when you stand on them (Fig. 16). You'll also have to swing on two poles. Then you must get past another swarm of Ginsus on the other side in order to reach the third lift. Take a seat in the cannon turret and turn to the right a little (Fig. 17). Three Wasps will come flying from behind. The second group of Wasps will approach from the left (Fig. 18). The next swarm will come from the right, round the side of the building. The last group will also approach from the right, from the direction of the crane.

To finish off, you must destroy all 49 eggs. From the starting position the first nest will be straight ahead on the ball. The second will be to the left of the first. The third and fourth will be to the right, below the crane (Fig. 19). The fifth can be found right above the fourth, up on the crane (Fig. 20). When you blow away this nest, the crane will collapse and form a bridge over the abyss. Using his walkie-talkie, Vin will congratulate you on your egg-citing success. You'll have to face three more of those pesky Ginsus before crossing the crane arm and returning to the warp gate which will transport you back to the Power Station.

Find Pumping Station Patrol

ACT 1.13

After having rescued Vin at Torn's "request", there will be yet more babysitting in store for you. But since you'll be dealing with a feisty female friend this time around, you won't mind helping out, will you?

One of my old comrades was sent to the pumping station. I rather suspect she may need some help. Although she belongs to the Krimzon Guard, she has often helped the Underground. Go to the pumping station and assist her.

As usual, the security gates to the pumping station will be marked with an "X" on the map. As soon as you have passed through, you will encounter your first Spyder Gunner (Fig. 1). It will take four hits from your Blaster to kill these tough Metal Heads. Fight your way through the bushes to the right of the shore. Run along the beach on the other side of the mountain. At the far end of the beach on the other island you will see more Spyder Gunners (Fig. 2) but you'll find it easy enough to keep out of their way.

Swim to the right over to the three rotating platforms (Fig. 3). Climb up, then double jump to the upper level and use the pumping pistons to get even higher (Fig. 4). Here on the ledge you will find numerous crates filled with ammunition. Uh-oh, that could be a bad omen! Run to your right where you will encounter two Spyder Gunners accompanied by two Juice Goons. Use the long range of the Yellow Gun to eliminate them from a distance (Fig. 5). Then look back to the right and encounter adorable Ashelin. Unfortunately, smitten Daxter's tempting offer of being her soldier on the frontlines of love must wait a while yet as hordes of Spyders and Goons will be attacking.

Ashelin's energy level will now be displayed on the left side of the screen. This means that you must cover her back as well as your own. Don't worry, she's one tough cookie. Start by using your Yellow Gun from a reasonably safe distance. If you run out of ammunition, you may want to think about changing into Dark Jak. But use your ammunition effectively and avoid firing too many stray shots in the air and you probably won't need to call on good old DJ (Fig. 6). After wasting around two dozen Metal Heads you and your comely sidekick (and for once we don't mean Daxter) will emerge victorious from the fray.

Ashelin will inform you that Baron Praxis is planning something big involving the seal of the House of Mar. He sends his Krimzon Guards on real suicide missions, as he wants them to find valuable artefacts. Ashelin will give you the Yellow Security Pass as a farewell present and memento. This will enable you to access Haven City's Bazaar, where you can ask Onin for advice. Onin's position will be indicated on the map in the form of a tent. Unfortunately, Ashelin somehow forgot to take you there. Or maybe Daxter's drooling put her off. It looks like you must make your way back to the city under your own steam.

Beat Time to Race Garage

ACT 1.14

This is one of the three missions that will become possible after Destroy Turrets in Sewers. You will find out the details in the Hip-Hog Saloon.

Racing is the biggest sport in the city. Erol is the undisputed grand champion. He is crazy and dangerous on the track. Only a fool would dare to race against him, and this is precisely where you come in! One of my clients is looking for a fast driver for her racing team. Here is a Security Pass, which gets you into the Stadium Section. If you manage to get from here to the race garage at the stadium in less than three minutes, my client might let you drive for her team.

With the Green Security Pass that Krew gave you the green checkpoint between the slums and the Stadium Section will miraculously disappear. A display at the top of the screen will tell you the distance to the stadium and a spanner icon on the map will show you the direction. Jump onto the Zoomer in front of the door and press pedal to metal. You will have three minutes in which to get to the stadium. If you only have the red and green Security Passes it's gonna be a close call. You'll have to go through the entire Industrial Zone and the Slums as well as the Stadium Zone. A time-consuming detour. It's still possible to make it, but only just.

If, however, you also have the Yellow Security Pass from Ashelin, you can cover the distance easily in two minutes. In this instance, the spanner icon will lead you past the Statue of Mar (Fig. 1) and around the palace. As soon as you reach the channel in the Stadium Section, fly right, hovering just above the water, (Fig. 2) and follow the course of the channel. There's a handy shortcut underneath a row of houses (Fig. 3) that will bring you right to the stadium's main entrance. Now you will only have to go up the stairs, get off and go left through the passageway (Fig. 4) where you will find the marking that you seek. Done!

In the garage to your left, Krew' s mysterious female client will be waiting. Sadly after all your efforts she has absolutely no time for you. But you are free to take up her Jet Board Stadium Challenge. Sounds like much more fun than rushing straight back to Krew just to work as his messenger boy. (See Collect Money for Krew).

Win Jet Board Stadium Challenge

ACT 1.15

Are you Krew's new errand boys? I'm not interested in any new drivers right now, and I've got work to do. I'm working on a ... "vehicle project". If you think you've got the guts to race in this town, take my new prototype jet board out on the Stadium Course. Beat the Stadium Challenge, and maybe I'll consider you for my team.

Cool, Jak, now you have a new employer: a talking curtain. Oh boy, you really will work for just about anyone. Still: a challenge is a challenge, and who are you to turn it down? You can reach the inside of the stadium through the entrance on the other end. Look for the flashing icon on the map. Flooded by heavenly lighting, your gleaming Jet Board awaits (Fig. 1). Take it and follow the instructions:

- Get on it: Press R2
- Jump: Press the Jet Board ⊗
- Duck jump: Press L1 and ⊗ to jump higher.
- Boost jump: Jump with ⊗. Shortly after landing, when Jak crouches down, press ⊗ again (if it works properly, you will generate a visible shock wave).
- Using this technique, jump to the higher level with the pool of light (Fig. 2).
- Grind: You can land on rails, tubes or similar things and grind along them (Fig. 3). Jump onto the rail and press □ to grind. Use the stick to steer in the right direction so that you don't slip off.
- Spin: You can spin in the air and land a perfect 360° for a speed boost. Jump with ⊗, press R1 while in the air and twist the stick at the same time to left or right.
- Flip: You can do flips while you jump. Jump with ⊗ and press R1 while in the air and at the same time flip up or down using the stick.
- Tricks: You can also do tricks for fun. Jump with ⊗ and simultaneously press L1 while in the air, moving the stick in any direction.

Now that you have worked through the basics, you can embark on your Challenge. Go down the ramp to the hall and touch the judge in the light beam. You will have 90 seconds in which to attain 15,000 points. A large obstacle course will be ahead of you. There will be many ways to make points here: by grinding, in the half-pipe, by jumping through rings of fire etc (Fig. 4). If you simply want to reach your target, do the following: Hold on to R1 and L1 the whole time, then jump using ⊗ while simultaneously moving the stick in one direction (Fig. 5). Do this in every possible direction to perform a variety of tricks. Quicker than you can imagine you will have gathered the required number of points.

When your time runs out you will be prompted to return to the garage. Go back up the ramp on the edge of the hall and head for the exit where Jak will put the Jet Board in the rack properly. What a neat guy. Now return to your good friend, the talking curtain. It still refuses to let you in, but "he" has an idea that might help you get closer to the Baron (see Turn on 5 Power Switches). From now on you can play the Jet Board Game to beat the record.

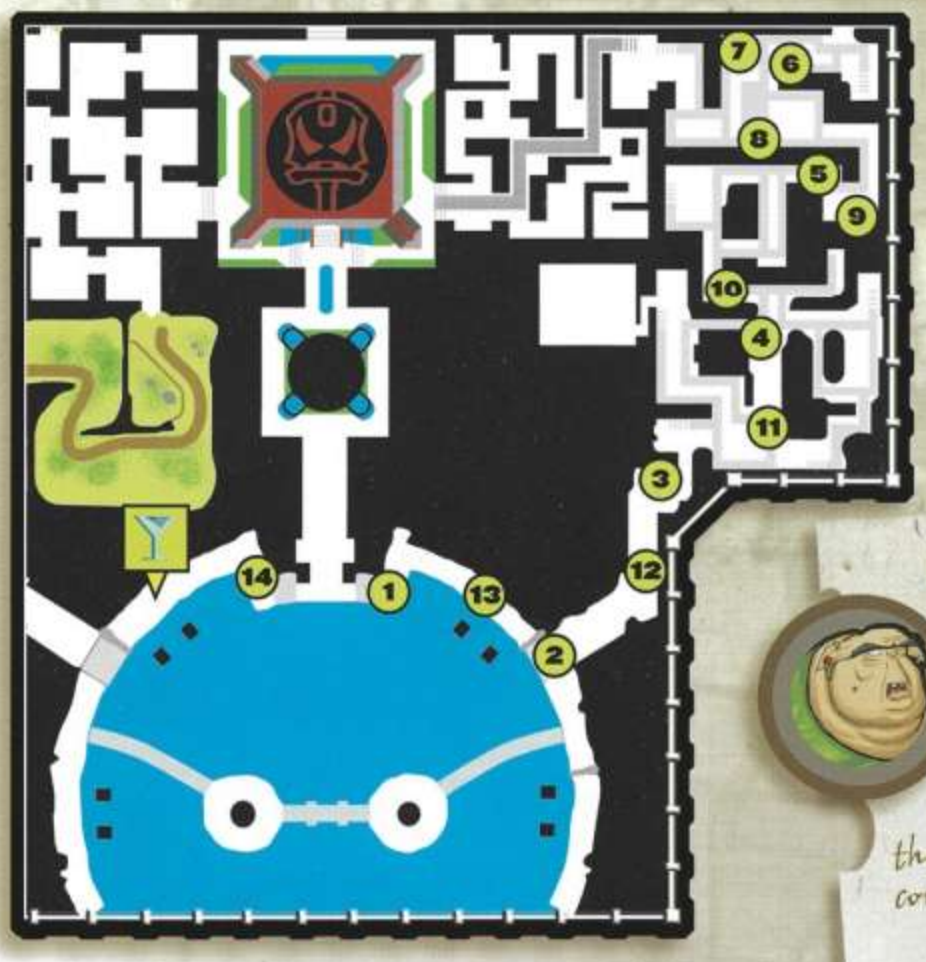
Collect Money for Krew

ACT 1.16

Once you have completed Krew's mission Beat Time to Race Garage, he will have the next delicacy ready for you. There will be pleasant surprise waiting in his sleazy den in the shape of Tess, a barmaid who does a bit of spying around the Hip Hog Saloon for Torn.

Tess

Tess works for the underground, but never mind about that. Daxter is much more interested in her undercover work, while Jak wants to know all the valuable secrets she can provide.



You two must handle a little mission for me. I need you to collect all the money bags that my clients deposit in the city. Get a move on, otherwise someone else will be after them. When you're through, come back here. Am I clear?

The start of the mission will be heralded by the appearance of an alarm and a ticking timer. You will have 34 seconds to grab the Zoomer outside the door and collect the first package. You can easily determine the number of bags still to be collected by checking the number next to the bag icon that appears on the screen.

A green circle will be blinking on the map, indicating the location of the first bag. It can be found on the shore, at the corner in front of the Gun Course (Fig. 1). You only have to fly straight through to collect it. There's a time bonus for you: each time you will have under 30 seconds to collect your next package. Package number two is near the turn-off to the Industrial Zone just past the bridge.

The remaining packages will all be within the Industrial Zone, so just keep going in the direction of the Slums. Package number 6 can be found at the end of the square near the Sewers floodgate (Fig. 2). As soon as you touch it you will only have seconds left to get the seventh money bag. Turn left immediately, and you'll see it lying in the corner of the square (Fig. 3). After collecting the seventh money bag go back in the direction of the Hip Hog Saloon. The last penultimate package will be close to the Gun Course, and the final one will be on the corner in front of the Saloon. When you have delivered all the loot to Krew he will give you a Gun Upgrade in exchange.

Am I wrong or is at least half of the Krimzon Guard after you? You don't necessarily need to give Krew's Zoomer back in one piece, but the time limit is a problem. If the banger is blown away from underneath your backside, you won't make it to the next money bag and you will lose two energy bars. But remember the old saying - better safe than sorry. You should change to another parked vehicle before your Zoomer is about to explode, preferably close to a package, if you still have enough time. Quickly jump out of the saddle and swing yourself behind the steering wheel of a brand-new car.

Gun Upgrade

The hard-earned reward from Krew will increase the shooting rate of your Scatter Gun.

Find Shard / Gear / Lens in Mountain Temple

ACT 1.17 / 1.18 / 1.19

Since helping Ashelin at the pumping station, you will have had a Yellow Security Pass, which ensures that you gain entry to the Bazaar. A tent icon will indicate the right way to get there on the map. At the pedestrian ramp you will have to get out (Fig. 1) and walk the last few metres, as vehicles aren't allowed in this area. You will now have the pleasure of meeting the taciturn Onin in her tent as well as her infinitely more talkative companion Pecker.

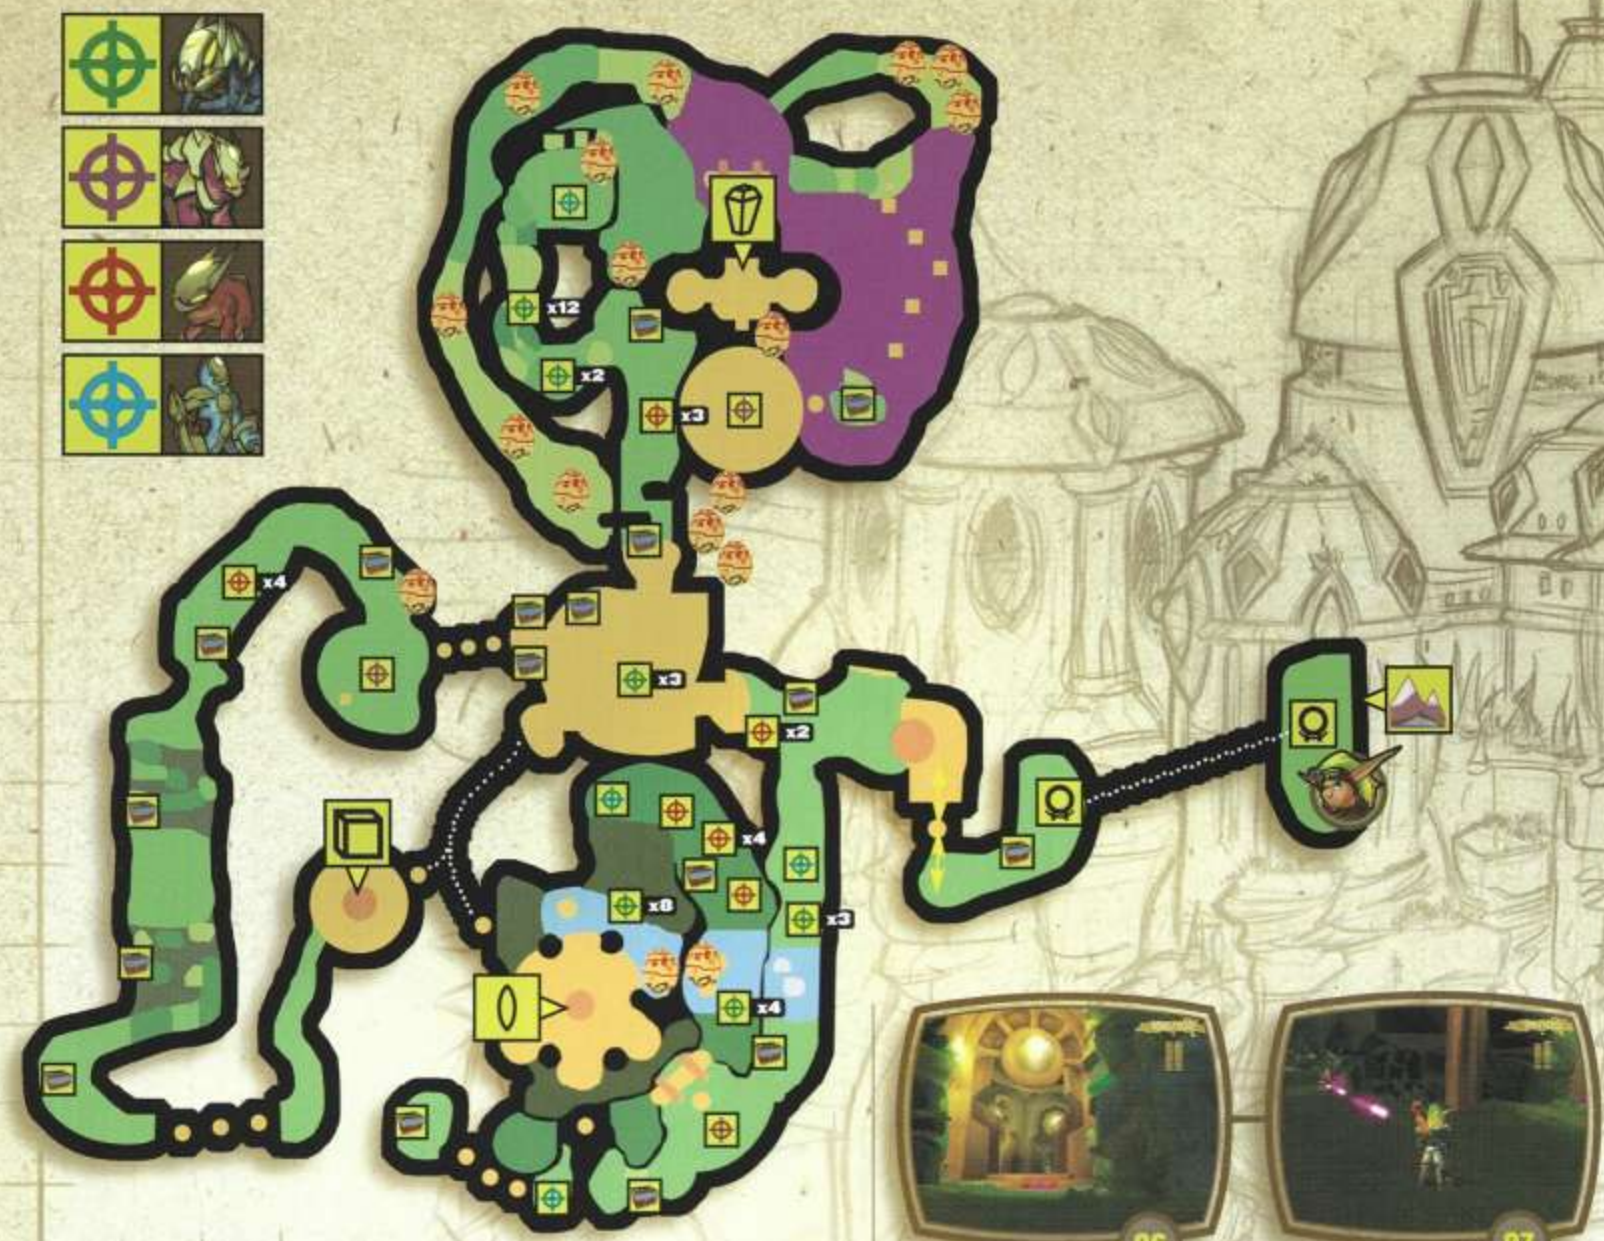
Have you ever actually noticed that you can smash jugs, crates and other things in the Bazaar? I know it isn't a nice thing to do, but it looks good when you see all those fruit and vegetables flying around! (Fig. 2) And if anyone gets annoyed, well, let them complain. Just let it happen!

You must fetch three artefacts from Precursor Mountain Temple. Use the warp gate at the north-west side of the city and look for three items: the Eye of Mar, the Golden Gear and the Power Shard.

Onin & Pecker

The secretive old clairvoyant doesn't need to talk a lot, since she's got her faithful interpreter Pecker. This headstrong chap, half ape and half macaw, has a very unique style of interpreting. With his cheeky mouth he can quite easily compete with Daxter... Ow! Mind my ear! Sorry. Er, where was I? Oh, yes... (Cough) What I meant to say was, he certainly doesn't measure up to Daxter. At all. In any way, shape or form. Let's be very clear about that. But then, nobody does, do they? And now I would like to have some iodine and a plaster, please.

Go back from the tent to the viaduct, and then drive in the direction of the mountain icon on your map, past the giant palace until you reach the lush greenery of the gardens located on the edge of the city (Fig. 3). After passing through a security gate, you will arrive in the mountain region outside of the city walls. Once you have arrived, jump through a warp gate, which will transport you to the top of the mountain.



Run past the crates, which are to your left. To your right, around the corner, a pointed metal spinning top will be hovering in the air. When you fire at it, the object will flip over to form a makeshift platform (Fig. 4). Jump over it and then continue down the hall. Hop onto the large, round slab that turns out to be a lift that takes you down into a deep valley below (Fig. 5). Once you arrive you will be confronted by two Manic Heads trotting happily towards you, so greet them with a few bursts of your trusty weapon. From your vantage point in the valley you will be able to see a bronze hall known as the Distribution Hall (Fig. 6). The exits here will lead you to the Gear and Shard artefacts. Back in the valley, look to your left to see a passageway leading to the Lens. It is entirely up to you which artefact you look for first.

Eye of Mar

In the passageway, on the left-hand side, you'll find a Stalker waiting to greet you (Fig. 7). Just like the rest of his kind on the Drill Platform you can easily get rid of him by jumping and firing with your Blaster as soon as he drops his shield.

Afterwards, change to the Red Gun and jump up the steps behind your victim. In this way, you can easily deal with the three Hoppers who hop by. Head on past the crates and the tree and jump down at the end of the path. Suddenly, a Ram Head will break through the wall. You can only continue on your way once you have finished him off.

The Ram Head is extremely well armoured, and you will only be able to injure him by hitting his stomach. The beast will immediately storm towards you. Get out of the way, and then take a few steps in the direction from which he charges (Fig. 8). Make a feint, he will come to a halt, then turn and rear up to expose his soft and vulnerable under-belly (Fig. 9). This is your cue to let him have it right in the guts with the Yellow Gun. Unfortunately, that won't be enough to stop him. You'll have to repeat the exercise another four times. He will then spit out a Skull Gem, and at the same same a large round switch will appear in the ground. Take a Dive at the switch (jump and ◎). A wooden plank will emerge from the wall, which you can use to climb your way up.

Continue onwards and you will eventually encounter another Stalker, who you can eliminate using the same method as before. Then jump over the abyss, and follow the path to the end. As soon as you reach the three crates, the path will crumble away behind you, revealing three mobile platforms (Fig. 10).

Use these mobile platforms to reach the next level and keep on following the path. After shooting more upturned cones to form platforms jump onto the moving planks (Fig. 11). You will reach a waterfall, where four Hoppers will attack you. On the other side, you will have to eliminate six Manic Heads before facing another Stalker round the corner. Once you have defeated it, you can stamp on the switch in the ground, to send two more planks shooting out of the wall. You have almost reached your (first) goal!

At the top, eight Hoppers will approach you at the same time. Thanks to the Red Gun they won't pose any problems (Fig. 12). In the hall behind them you will find the Lens. After watching the hilarious cut-scene go back outside. A platform will have appeared on your left (Fig. 13) to take you down to the Distribution Hall, from where you will have a choice of several different exits. The right-hand one will take you back towards the warp gate. Go through the doorway on your left, between all the crates, to reach Gear.

Golden Gear

You will see three moving platforms behind the middle door of the Distribution Hall, which will continuously hover backwards and forwards across the abyss. You will have to flip them over by shooting at them (Fig. 14). You will then be able to hop across to the other side. Another angry Ram Head will be waiting for you, so eliminate it in the usual manner. A switch will then appear, so stamp on it and climb up the planks. A little further on you will reach the spectacular rock fall.

If the rock fall comes from the left (Fig. 15), climb up on the right and jump towards the left. Hop up onto the ledge then jump over to the right hand side. You'll find a crate with a Health Pak. A couple of levels further on you will find a second crate. There is no sure-fire way to get to the top. You'll have to keep your eye on the boulders (Fig. 16) and make your next move when there are no moving rocks nearby. Be patient and keep dodging between the boulders and you should come through relatively unscathed.

After you have left the falling rocks behind, you'll have to cross an abyss with the help of yet more revolving platforms. You will then reach the machine with the Golden Gear (Fig. 17), which Daxter will walk off with in his unique and unassuming way. Look out! You will see a platform hovering in the air behind the (former) machine, which will take you down to the Distribution Hall.

Power Shard

There will be three Manic Heads romping around behind the last Distribution Hall exit (Fig. 18). After you have got rid of them, unholster the Red Gun and approach the end of the valley, where you will be confronted with an avalanche of Hoppers (Fig. 19). However, they look much more dangerous than they really are. You will have to alternate between shooting them and taking a step forward. As soon as you have arrived at the passageway at the top, the Hopper barrage will come to an abrupt halt.

A Stalker will be lurking in the small valley basin behind. You can either fight him, or immediately hop up onto the opposite ledge. After passing a couple of moving planks you will arrive at a lake, which you will only be able to cross using very special crates. Stand on the shore in front of the first crate and hit it with ⊡. It will open up, and you can step inside (Fig. 20). If you hit it once again it will continue to open up. In this way, you can create a temporary bridge across to the other side of the lake. If you make a mistake, use the ground switch on the shore to restart the puzzle from the beginning.

You should hit the crate in the following directions:
No. 1: forward, 3x left, forward (Fig. 21)
No. 2: forward, left, forward, left, forward (Fig. 22)
No. 3: forward, 3x right, forward
No. 4: 2x forward, right, 2x forward (Fig. 23)
No. 5: forward, right, forward, right, forward

Orbs

Various Precursor Orbs are hidden in this Area. Some of them can only be obtained at a later stage, when the Jet Board can be used.

After having arrived at the far shore you will have to climb up and face the Ram Head on the round platform (Fig. 24). When you've defeated him a door will open to your right, and you can fetch the Shard. Pecker will call you over the radio once you have retrieved all three artefacts. You can then jump back onto the round platform and go down the other side. Return to the large lift through the Distribution Hall and then, finally, head back to the warp gate. The mission is complete, and you can now devote your time to other assignments.

Turn on 5 Power Switches

ACT 1.20

You must first have completed the following missions before you can start this one: Find Pumping Station Patrol, Destroy Eggs at Drill Platform and Win Jet Board Stadium Challenge. Then you can pay a visit to Vin in his Power Station and ask him to switch on the access lift in one of the palace's support towers.

You will have to turn on five B-Zone Power Boxes. The problem is that they are all guarded by motion-sensing turbo-cannons. Destroy the cannons, switch the boxes on, and leave the rest to me.

The Power Boxes will be indicated on the map as green circles. You'll find three of them in the Industrial Zone and two more in the Slums. The first one will be very close to your starting point. The cannons are not really a big problem: one hit with your Red Gun, and they're history. The difficult part will be the fact that you've got the entire Krimzon Guard on your back.

Don't forget, if you run out of ammo you can always shoot the guards to get more. Or, you can try carjacking one of their red patrol vehicles, which have handy mounted guns.

You can choose to fly up as close as possible to a cannon, hop out of your vehicle and destroy it with a Dive, or you can choose to use your weapon to destroy the cannon as you approach from further away (Fig. 1). As long as you get rid of it quickly, it doesn't matter what methods you use! Once the cannon is reduced to smoking rubble a switch will appear underneath. You'll have to step on it to activate it (Fig. 2).

The second cannon/switch combination is in the middle of the district and the third one is on the large square by the security gates leading to the Sewers. The final two are in the Slums. You'll find one near to Torn's hideout (Fig. 3). The last one is on the big square near the Dead Town Watergate. Once all five Power Boxes have been activated, a grey box on the map will show you the location of the entrance to the access elevator. It is close to the stadium (Fig. 4). You can now pay the Baron a surprise visit.

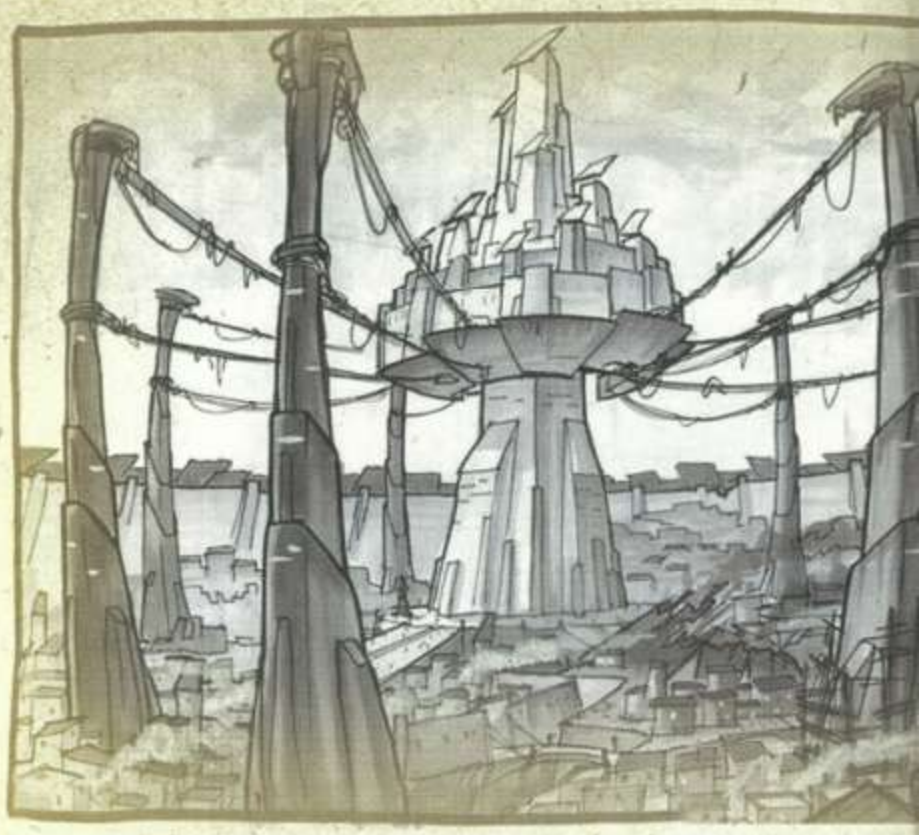
Ride Elevator up to Palace

Well, if you ask me, you should sit down and enjoy the amazing view. But I suppose a little bit of hopping and jumping won't do you any harm either! Unless you fall off, of course. Experiment with panning the camera using the right stick as this can make it easier to judge gaps and other dangers. Don't forget that if you slip you can usually save yourself by taking a whirl in the air. A very useful hint.



After you have switched on the five Power Boxes, Vin will activate the lift, and you can try to get to the palace via the high-altitude obstacle course. This is a really tricky sudden-death section, which is likely to require plenty of practice. Make sure to avoid the electrified platforms that are literally crackling with energy (Fig. 1). You'll fry if you step on them. You will first have to move along the outside of the central cable using the steps leading down to the left. Be extremely careful when you reach the slabs with the yellow edges that rattle as you jump on them (Fig. 2). These treacherous panels will fall away beneath you unless you jump onto the next one straight away.

After some swinging exercise with two horizontal bars you will once again move back onto the central cable and then down the other side to avoid more electrified flooring. Climb back up again and you'll find the first cannon waiting (Fig. 3). Jump out of the way and destroy it with your Yellow Gun. The spiked rollers beyond the cannon are easier to deal with than you might think. When the flat section rolls by jump onto it (Fig. 4) and keep doing this until you reach the end of the rollers. It would make things much easier if you could also fire at the next cannon shortly before you reach the end of the passage. Then you can continue down the steps on the right.

Be wary of the next folding floor panel. It is best to wait and make your move shortly before the energy barrier reaches your level (Fig. 5). The panels directly underneath the cable will also fold away underneath you unless you move quickly across to the other side. Swing on the horizontal bar and climb up to safety(Fig. 6). Move forward, then leap from the spiked roller over to the right gangway.

Orbs

Three Precursor Orbs can be found on the way to the Palace. One will be behind you, when you arrive with the elevator. The second will be at the beginning of the platform in front of the first cannon. You will pass the third one automatically when you move below the cable.

You can see a revolving cannon far ahead of you. It is impossible to damage this one, so it's best if you avoid the onslaught with some well-timed double jumps (Fig. 7). At the end, you can jump to your right up the steps to the palace (Fig. 8), where you'll be able to eavesdrop on an informative conversation between the Baron and the leader of the Metal Heads.

Defeat Baron at Palace

ACT 1.22

Get ready for a confrontation with the Baron on the palace roof. The crates in the right corner contain Yellow Ammunition and will be re-stocked at frequent intervals so keep checking back when you run out. If your gun is still full, you won't need to open them just yet.

You can see the energy gauge for the Baron's bizarre flying tentacle machine in the bottom right corner of the screen. The small gauge will automatically fall whenever the Baron attacks. He'll lose one third of his shield energy for every attack. The wider green bar underneath indicates his "life" energy status. You will have to try and get this down to zero. That doesn't sound too difficult, does it? Well, wait and see ...

The Baron

The Baron will resort to all methods in his fight against the Metal Heads. To gain victory over his archenemy, he'd literally walk over dead bodies. And frequently does. Barefoot. In this respect, he is blindly leading Haven City to ruin. Jak & Daxter have to stop him and to help the true ruler take over the throne.

The Baron will start by firing twin mini-guns at you. Run over to the side and keep moving until there's a pause in the gunfire. If you have enough space, you can also perform a long jump (while running press L1 + jump). The Baron doesn't move while attacking so it's easier for you to dodge him. If possible, take cover behind a wall. Should the Baron ever land immediately in front of you, try standing right under his nose and enjoying the view (Fig. 1). You won't be harmed if you touch his vehicle, and he can't swing his weapons inwards and target you.

That's about all on the subject of dodging attacks. Dodging alone won't get you very far. Your main plan of attack is to fire at the Baron's cockpit using the Yellow Gun. (The Blaster isn't any more effective than the Red Gun, it's purely a matter of how far the shots go.) A direct hit will be indicated by a blue flash. Two hits shortly after each other are not possible as it will always take a couple of seconds before you can do any more harm. As long as the protective shield is active you can only cause a slight amount of damage. You will have to score ten hits before the Baron's "life" energy meter drops by one third. When the shield disintegrates (Fig. 2), your hits will become instantly more effective. At this point the Baron will fly to his "pumping station" in the passageway to replenish his damaged shield. You can usually get a sneaky shot in when he's resting here, as he can't hit you back.

When the Baron's energy shield gauge drops to the middle third, he will crash through the barrier to the second stage. Get some ammunition out of the crates and follow him. He will now fire rockets at you. Watch out for the red targets on the ground (Fig. 3) and keep jumping away from them when they appear. Continue to make use of your opponent's attack breaks, just like in the first stage, to land hits. The crates on the side contain ammunition for the Blaster just like before.

Finally, the Baron will flee into the third stage, where he will introduce two new attacks. Firstly, he shoots out spinning balls of flame, which propel towards you across the ground. Try to keep as far away from them as possible. He will also frequently attempt to ram you (Fig. 4). In this case, you will have to dive out of his way as quickly as possible. The only positive thing about this third and final stage is that by now your opponent won't have any shield energy left, which means that you will only need to score five hits to win the fight. Furthermore the lonely crate at the edge contains a Health Pak. Afterwards, you can get into the lift at the back of the roof and go back down to the city.

Shuttle Underground Fighters

ACT 1.23

You will have to accomplish four missions before you can work for Torn as a taxi driver: Find Lens, Gear & Shard in Mountain Temple, Collect Money for Krew, Beat Blaster Gun Course and Defeat Baron at Palace.

The Krimzon Guard is on red alert after your visit to the palace. You will now have to bring four of our people to safety. Be quick, there isn't much time left.

You will have one minute to reach the first Underground Fighter in a two-seater vehicle. That won't be too much of a problem, because you'll find just the vehicle you need in the alley outside Torn's Hideout. You'll find your first passenger just a few metres round the corner, bathed in a pool of light (Fig. 1). Drive over to him and stop the vehicle so that he can get in. The timer will now indicate one minute, and a new blinking dot will appear on the map showing where you must take your first passenger. The drop-off point is towards the Industrial Zone but still within the Slums. Stop at the pool of light and wait whilst your passenger climbs out (Fig. 2).

Now you'll have another minute to get to your next man, followed by a time credit of a further minute to get him to his destination. Naturally, the Krimzon Guard will be hot on your tail the whole time. Contemplate changing vehicles at some stage if your current one gets severely damaged. You will eventually set down your fourth and final passenger at the landing stage in the midst of the Water Slums (Fig. 3). Torn will call on the radio with yet another new mission for you.

ACT 1.2A

Protect Site in Dead Town

It's now getting serious. The creatures are getting close to the sacred site in Dead Town. This is the second time this has happened. When the Metal Heads penetrated the city walls the last time, it was only the Shadow who was somehow able to stop them. If you prevent the Metal Heads from reaching the sacred site, the Shadow will be most grateful. He might even ask to see you.

Blue Gun

Torn will give you the Vulcan Barrel for your Morph Gun. Press to the left on your control pad to activate Vulcan Fury mode. You will have enormous firing capacity with this so-called Blue Gun, but will also experience an extremely high ammunition consumption. Therefore, only use it in an emergency.

Follow the ruins icon on the map to reach Dead Town. Behind the security gates four Stingers will immediately come crawling out of the ground. You should resist the temptation to start hammering away with the Blue gun straight away to avoid wasting precious ammo. As usual, the Red Gun is the ideal choice when advancing down a narrow corridor.

A wooden platform will take you to a ledge on the first island (Fig. 1). You will encounter another opponent, the Sling Blaster, towards the rear of the wall (Fig. 2). This creature will start hurling relatively fast and well-aimed mauve energy balls at your head. You will need to land some hits back if you can't push him into the water. Whenever a Metal Head falls into the swamp, he's immediately finished. Jump over the wooden planks in the water to the right. Two Sling Blasters are waiting for you, and there are also numerous Stingers lurking on the ground. Now it's time to take out your Blue Gun and move forward under the constant fire (Fig. 3). Swing your weapon from left to right so that all your opponents get to appreciate the full blast.

Walk along the wall to the left to reach the ruins. A Rapid Gunner will be standing at the back of the passageway (Fig. 4). As his name suggests, he shoots rapidly. With well-aimed shots. Over a long distance. However, he never moves from his position. You won't have any problems eliminating him if you run towards him while firing from the Blue Gun. Then switch to the Red Gun and get rid of the Grunts who are coming down the passageway. The two crates to your right contain new ammunition for the Blue Gun: two rounds of 50 bullets each.

A Rapid Gunner will have taken up position behind each of the next two corners. After dealing with them, cross through the hall (Fig. 5), and you will see a crate on the balcony. Watch out, a Grunt will jump on you from the right, and a couple of Stingers will come from the same direction. Go along the ledge, then round the corner while firing from every gun you've got (Fig. 6). There you'll see the last two Sling Blasters. Your goal can be clearly seen in the background, namely the sacred site. Jak & Daxter are in for a real surprise.

The Precursor Legacy

This ramshackle shed belongs to Samos, the "Green Sage". I really can't stand him, he's always ordering us around. When was that then? Well, at some stage back in the past, before travelling through time to get here. Way back, in Jak & Daxter – The Precursor Legacy™. A really exciting game. We recommend you try it! There's a unique and charming Ottsel in the leading role! And there's also a taciturn blond chap who has a relatively minor part.

ACT 2.1 Catch Scouts in Haven Forest

After having saved the sanctuary in Dead Town from the invasion of the Metal Heads, make your way back to Torn's hideout where you will finally get to meet the elusive Shadow who turns out to be an old acquaintance of Jak & Daxter's (Fig. 1). But the "blockhead" apparently fails to recognise our heroes.

The only thing reminiscent of past times is that he immediately offers you an assignment.

01

I am the Shadow – you can call me Samos. But I don't know you, and I have certainly never travelled through time. Boys, I don't know what kind of twigs you've been chewing on, but we don't have time for such nonsense now anyway. We have to topple a Baron, protect a child heir, stop an invasion by the Metal Heads and save a city! Get yourselves to Haven Forest, my source of power. Hunt and eliminate all the Metal Head Scouts that you find there.

Samos

Samos is an old friend of Jak & Daxter's. At least the old Samos was an old friend. This younger Samos, who leads Haven City's underground movement in the guise of the Shadow, strangely denies any association with either of them.

02

You will receive a message from Krew's client on your way to the security gates, which are marked by a mountain icon. She says that she has left her Jet Board inside the security gate and that you can keep it as a reward. After you get your hands on your new present exit via the security gate. The Warp Gate beyond the city wall will transport you high up into the mountains. Instead of going to the Mountain Temple, step onto the new platform, which is bathed in a golden glow (Fig. 2). Let it carry you gently down to the Forest.

Jet Board

In Hover mode, the Jet Board will carry you in elegant style across water, Dark Eco and many other perilous obstacles. In Backpack mode, the Jet Board can be discreetly and conveniently stowed away on Jak's back. You can retrieve it at any time by pressing R2 – and put it away again using the same command.

You should hunt down five Metal Head Scouts here. To do this, you will need the Jet Board, which one of my numerous fans has been kind enough to lend me. You are more than welcome to borrow it for a short time. Try not to scratch it.

You must use it to chase down the flying Scouts. Of course, I could do it myself, but old Samos would have to ask in a much more friendly and polite manner. In case you have forgotten how this Jet Board lark works, you can look it up on page 68. The speed boost (R1 + ←/→ while jumping), for example could prove very useful.

Hop on the board and soar off. In the first section of the forest you will find the first Scout. It is sitting on the other side of the stream, to the left, at the foot of the slope (Fig. 3).
Unfortunately, your gun will be no good against the swift beasts. You must chase them using your board without ramming into any objects. As soon as you have caught up with one, Jak will jump off the board automatically and leap on top of his prey. You will have to be quick off the mark, as the jittery Scouts will fly off in fright the second they spot you stalking them.

No. 1 will flee up the ramp, past the passageway, back down the other side and then along the stream. He will then fly up the slope or back in a curve to the left. If you cut your corners and avoid ramming rocks, you will eventually catch up with him (Fig. 4). There's no time limit and you have as many tries as you need. If you lose track of your quarry at any time, take a look at the map of Haven Forest under "Show Map", where you will find the current position of all Scouts.

You will find No. 2 when you fly through the top part of the tunnel. He is sitting to the right of the large tree (Fig. 5). As you move closer, he will fly up the ramp. You must step on the accelerator hard, grind over the tree trunk and then skip over the two gaps. Second time round, he normally flies very close to the tree trunk, which makes him easy to catch up with. Not smart.

No. 3 will be sitting down below near the wooden ramp on the right. If you can manage to grind over the tree trunks during the chase, that's half the battle. When he gets close to the large tree he will fly over the four boulders (Fig. 6), but he can't get away with such a cheap trick, can he?

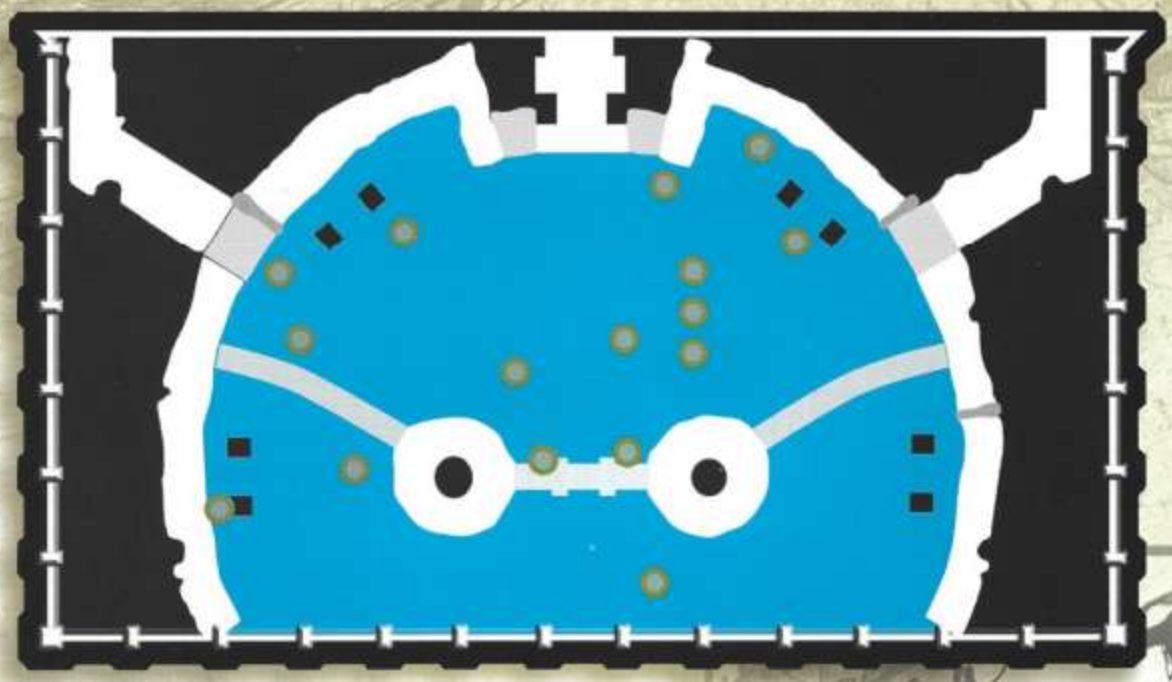
No. 4 will be taking a siesta in the clearing further to the east. During his escape attempt he will remain in this area, which doesn't pose you many threats in terms of hurdles, but doesn't provide you with much cover either (Fig. 7). If you can manage to avoid crashing into any obstacles you should have no problem overtaking the Scout and bringing him down to earth.

You will find No. 5 near the small islands that are connected by tree trunks. Some accurate grinding is required here in order to catch your elusive quarry. Sometimes the Scout will fly in a curve along the outer edges of the area, but often he will hover directly above the surface of the water (Fig. 8). He's too stupid to realise that it takes a little more than a few sudden changes in direction to shake you off his tail.

When none of the Scouts remain to flutter about freely, Samos will be in touch to commend your valiant efforts and also to dangle a new assignment in front of you. First you must leave the Forest zone using the hovering platform. Once back in the city, you can choose whether to meet up with Samos in Torn's hiding place or with Ashelin in the Bazaar. Her icon suspiciously resembles red broccoli, but you'd better not tell her that to her face, you know how touchy she can be. As you head on your way, Krew will inform you by radio about a Jet Board mission in the port.

Destroy Cargo in Port

ACT 2.2



My Racing Client tells me that you sure know how to handle her Jet Board. Good jobs. There's a shipment of Krimzon Guard Listening Equipment at the port. None of us would like to see these gadgets in the wrong hands. It's bad for business. Take your Jet Board, go to the port and destroy them before they destroy us.

As soon as you approach the port, 16 dots will appear on the radar. They mark the position of the target objects. There are 16 drums on the surface of the water surrounded by varying amounts of mines. The mines generally revolve around the drum, but some remain static. If you get too close to a mine you will hear it tick as a warning; it will explode shortly after.

Your task is to destroy all the drums within two minutes and fifteen seconds, simply by touching them. Take a good look round first of all – the countdown will only start once you have touched the first drum or mine. An alarm will, of course, be set off, but for once the legions of the Krimzon Guard are particularly alert or dangerous. The most important thing to ensure a successful outcome to the mission is to avoid driving back and forth unnecessarily on your Jet Board. You should also take extra care not to ram any of the spiked mines.

You would be well advised to start the mission by ramming the drum over on the far side of the bridge to the south-west (Fig. 1). Wipe out the various targets on this side, and then travel under the bridge between the two towers and take care of all the drums in the port. On the right side you will find a group of three drums back to back where you can simply surf between the mines (Fig. 2). Afterwards, eradicate the targets behind the quay wall before making a detour to the west. Try not to falter when you see the rotating mines. Steer directly between them and if a mine starts to tick, take a quick jump to safety.

Once you've completed your job you can take on a new assignment in Krew's Saloon – or you may wish to work for Ashelin or Samos.

Rescue Lurkers for Brutter

ACT 2.3

One of my business partners, Brutter, has asked me for a favour. The Baron has ordered that three Lurkers be taken to a place beyond the city wall to serve as forced labour. Stop the transporters, free the Lurkers and take them to Brutter's trinket stand in the Bazaar. There's something in it for you too: you will be rewarded with the Gun Upgrade 2.

Gun Upgrade 2

This Gun Upgrade doubles the capacity of your magazines. The Red Gun will now hold 100 bullets, Yellow and Blue 200 each.

Look for a stylish flying object in front of the Saloon. Don't worry, there will be enough room for a Lurker passenger, even on a small Zoomer. Then fly to the Statue of Mar to stop the first of the three slave transporters. By following the blinking dots on the map, you will bump into the flying cage (Fig. 1). Shoot at the transporter to send it crashing to the ground. Don't worry about the explosion, the prisoner will be safe. Land next to the Lurker and let him mount your vehicle (Fig. 2), then soar over to Brutter's market stall in the Bazaar, to the west of the Palace. His icon will appear on the map as a fish.

Your audacious actions will attract the unwelcome attentions of the Krimzon Guard, as usual. Stop when you reach Brutter's stall to let your passenger jump out (Fig. 3). You can then go and rescue the second Lurker that is imprisoned in the transporter close to the Statue and take him back to Brutter's stall. The third and final transporter can be found flying around near the gardens. When you have taken this final Lurker to Brutter he will thank you enthusiastically. There may even be kisses.

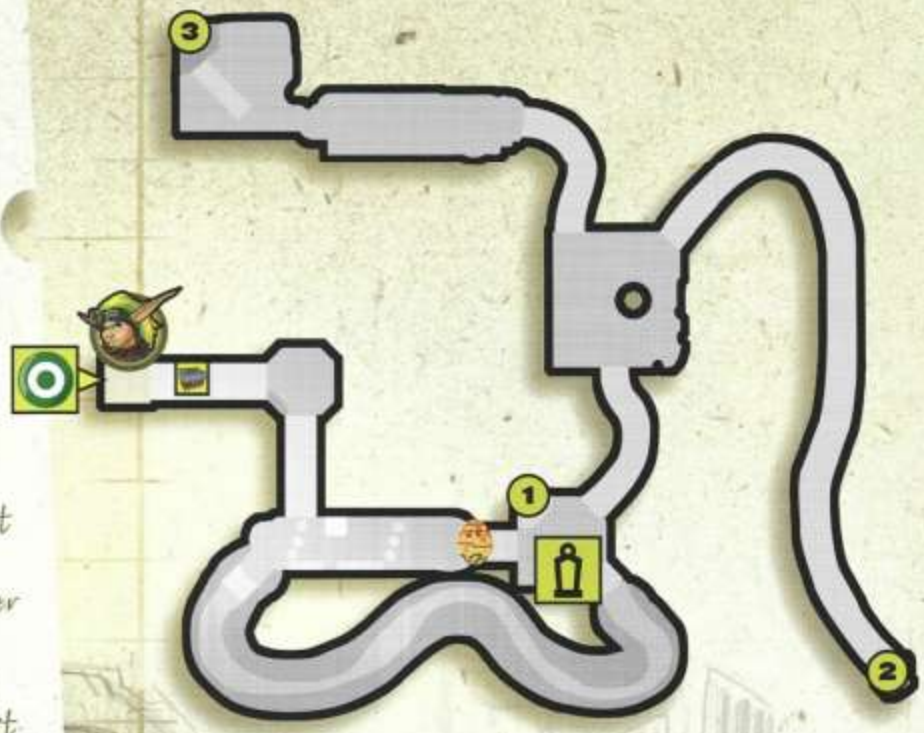
Lurker

Lurkers are creatures that neither Jak nor Daxter can stand. The reason for this is simple: in the The Precursor Legacy™, Lurkers were the equivalent of what the Metal Heads are now – the arch enemies of our heroes. But at least good old Brutter is a big lovable fella, which makes it virtually impossible to refuse him anything – or does it?

Drain Sewers to find Statue

ACT 2.4

Five of my best men were swallowed up by raging floodwaters during a disastrous thunderstorm while they were transporting a statue of Mar through the Sewers. A tragic loss that will be sorely missed ... I just loved that statue. It was holding the Ruby Key in its hand, an invaluable artefact. Nowadays, the Sewers are full of water and Metal Heads. I can't get there, but you, Jak, might manage it. Go into the Sewers, drain off the water and find the statue. Bring back the Ruby Key Artefact to me. It can open doors beyond your wildest dreams.



When you leave the Hip Hog Saloon, the familiar entry to the Sewers will be marked on the map with a green manhole cover icon. You must jet through the tunnels with your Jet Board. Hover away and keep to the right. Turn right into the channel where the first gun turret used to be and fly right, to enter a new zone (Fig. 1).

This is no time to hold your horses. If you are too slow, you will slide off the slopes and then you'll be history. So press your analog stick forward and step on the accelerator. A good thrust will help you get through the sharp curves (Fig. 2). Keep flying through the sewer system and over the winding track. You will eventually reach a flooded chamber. The statue will be clearly visible in the water, but you won't be able to reach it until the sewer is fully drained. With a twirl attack, turn the wheel (Fig. 3) in order to lower the water level a little. Now you must turn two more wheels.

Jump down and hover through the tunnel that you have just exposed. You'd better drive slowly here, as you will have to dodge spiky mines and turbines (Fig. 4). You can also skip over the mines. You cannot afford to make many mistakes: each contact with an obstacle will cost you two energy units. If you bump into any of the hazards four times, the game will be over for you. On the right hand side at the back of the large room with the huge pipe in the middle, you will see a tunnel. At the end of the tunnel, you will find the second wheel. Turn it to lower the water level a second time. Incidentally, if you have problems with the obstacles, you can also get through this passage by slowly swimming across. There will only be one ramp which you can't climb without the aid of the Jet Board (Fig. 5).

Now go back through the same tunnel towards the hall. Mind the new obstacles in the form of bizarre rotating cogwheels (Fig. 6). The trick is to fly directly towards them, as when you get close to one of them it will submerge in a flash and another one will rise up next to it. If you just keep on going straight ahead you'll avoid ramming into it.

In the large room, swim or hover around the pipe, then exit the room on the other side. You must jump over three horizontal bars (Fig. 7). If you are not using your Jet Board, you can also get past them by diving underneath. To do so, press and hold ⊡. Skip over the large bladed screw with the aid of the ramp on the right (Fig. 8). While in the air, make sure you steer towards the middle of the tunnel to dodge the vertical turbine wheel at the side. Keep going past more mines to reach the end of the tunnel and the third wheel.

As usual, you will go back through the same tunnel you just came through. This time it will contain less water. Beware of the mines on the ground; there will be plenty of them here (Fig. 9). Back in the main room, jump over a ramp into the last short tunnel leading to the statue, which should now be accessible. If you feel safer going on foot just walk left around the tube in the main room and approach the statue. Daxter will save the day by carefully taking the Ruby Key Artefact out of the statue with his delicate fingers. Ahem. To finish, run up the stairs to the right of the statue and then through the tunnel until you reach the elevator, which will take you close to the exit (Fig. 10). Don't forget to look for the nearby Orb on your way back to the elevator. You will now only have to get yourself into the tunnel and then go left and exit via the security gates. Don't worry about delivering the gem to Krew just yet: the cocktail icon will already have appeared on the map, indicating that Sig is waiting at the Saloon with a task for you.

Shortly after leaving the Sewers you will receive a message from Brutter: it appears that there is a strange flashing object in front of his hut in the Water Slums. You can see where it is from afar because it will be encased in a beam of light. It will also be shown on the map of Haven City as a Seal of Mar icon. If you are overcome by curiosity, you can take a look around at any time: the mission "Get Seal Piece at Water Slums" will start here.

Intercept Tanker ACT 2.5

This mission will begin automatically when you reach Ashelin's icon. After passing by the palace, turn left at the entrance to the Bazaar, and head on through the pedestrian concourse (Fig. 1); keep to the left as you continue on your way. At a small square you will encounter Ashelin, accompanied by some Krimzon Guards. She is waiting for the arrival of a suspicious-looking Eco tanker from the Wastelands. With good reason, as it turns out. Before you can say "Jak's tiny green beard" the tanker will have barged abruptly into the courtyard and unloaded hordes of rampaging Metal Heads.

Quick, we must save the people. Help me to wipe out all the Metal Heads. But be careful when you take aim ... !

Ashelin

It's certainly true that the Baron's daughter serves as a member of the Krimzon Guard, but that doesn't mean that she and her old man always share the same opinions. An old "acquaintance" of Torn's, she has even certain sympathies with the Underground.

Where have all the Krimzon Guards disappeared to? Never mind, there are more pressing problems. More than a dozen Metal Heads will jump out of the tanker, one after the other (Fig. 2). The Grunts and the Juice Goons will head straight for Jak and Ashelin. Ashelin will have her own separate energy gauge, which means that you will have to keep an eye on her to make sure she doesn't get too weak.

As usual, the Blue Gun will prove to be very useful against large numbers of opponents. But the Yellow Blaster shouldn't be sniffed at either (Fig. 3). If you shoot fast and furiously the ranks of the attackers will soon thin out. If you run low on ammo, there will be a few crates with yellow and red ammunition around. Should your Dark Eco supply permit it, you can summon Dark Jak . You may also want to try out one or two of the special moves that you've learned from the Oracle.

After a short but intense exchange of gunfire, the whole encounter will be over almost as soon as it began. Ashelin is actually verging on polite for once, even thanking you for your help, but then she goes and spoils it all by leaving you to your own devices yet again!

Win Class 3 Race at Stadium

If you have managed to complete the Sewers mission for Krew and have also successfully protected Ashelin in the Bazaar, a spanner icon will appear on the map, indicating that the talking curtain situated near the Stadium wants to tell you something. This time Daxter's dulcet tones and charming manners succeed in luring the mysterious being from behind the curtain. It is Keira, an old acquaintance, who just happens to have a plan as to how you can meet up with the Baron. In addition, Krew turns up and claims his artefact. How did he manage to get through the door anyway (Fig. 1)?

01

The winner of the Class 1 Racing Championship normally meets up with the Baron in his Palace. But to do that you must first qualify. A Class 3 race is about to begin. You could participate as a member of my team.

Seven other racers will be on the racetrack with you jostling for position. It is your common goal to be the first to race over the finishing line after the fight lap. At the start of the race, hop to the right edge of the track and collect your first turbo ball (Fig. 2). By pressing ◎ you will speed up sufficiently to lead the field.

It is, of course, important to take any curves skilfully: drive into them from the outside and then cut them as sharply as possible. Remember that it is better to step on the brakes or at least take your foot off the accelerator in time rather than crash into a wall at the end of a curve. You will need to memorise the racetrack so that you can get through it without too many hiccups along the way. The ramp in the lower part of the racetrack is very important (Fig. 3). You must catch it precisely if you don't want to end up in the hole. If you race over the ramp using your turbo, this will have fatal consequences ...

Keira

The daughter of Samos is a gifted mechanic. She used to assemble Anti-GraV-Zoomers back in the old world thus providing an invaluable service to Jak & Daxter in The Precursor Legacy™. No one knows how she manages to be so successful in resisting Daxter's charms. The fluffy quadruped suspects that it may have something to do with his unorthodox hygiene methods.

Air Racer

These racing vehicles are not for the faint-hearted. They require lightning fast reflexes and an iron will to ride. You must master the art of steering such a beast, if Jak is to become the Racing Champion of Haven City. Accelerate using the ⊗ and brake with □. To activate the turbo, press ◎, but only if you have previously collected enough energy balls. You can store up to three (in which case the turbo meter will light up at the top of your screen). With L1 or R1 you can bounce up and down a little. When used at the right moment, this can lead to spectacular leaps.

ACT 2.19

Ahem ... listen Jak, I hate interfering but this is no good. I'm far from questioning your modest capabilities as a driver, but this jalopy that Keira has put together is hardly a serious challenge for our competitors. While we were crawling along the course at a snail's pace, my eagle eyes noted something important: mastering the bottomless pit is the key to success. This is where you can – and should – cut every single lap. It is very easy: drive towards the left edge of the track in a straight line (Fig. 4) and when precisely at the edge, jump off (Fig. 5) and across the pit (Fig. 6). While jumping, pull the nose of the Air Racer up by pressing down on the analog stick and keeping the jump button (L1 or R1) held down until you land. This is not as hard as it sounds, although of course you must neither ram anything nor be rammed by any of your opponents just before the jump. If you manage that, you've virtually won already.

Your glorious victory will herald a chick fight (Fig. 7). Jak, er…'scuse me, Daxter's groupies Ashelin and Keira seem to take an instant dislike to each other. They are both vying for Jak's attention, but Ashelin gains the upper hand over her rival by proffering some vital information. She wants to make clear to one and all that she is definitely not her father (okay, nobody would have thought so anyway, just look at that chassis. But maybe that's not what she meant? Puzzling). She also warns Jak about Erol, the Baron's top henchman.

Escort Kid to Power Station

ACT 2.7

I would like you guys to escort the Kid safely to the Power Station. Kor will be waiting there to take care of the boy. I really don't have time to baby-sit. Watch out for the guards and protect the life of the child under any circumstance. And if you could lose his Crocodog on your way ...

Kid

Samos has picked up the boy with the green eyebrows somewhere on the road. He doesn't talk – just like Jak in The Precursor Legacy™. Now if that isn't an extraordinary coincidence! He's wearing an amulet decorated with the Seal of Mar, which suggests that he may well be the lost heir of the city.

The Shadow will assign you this mission in Torn's hideout. First of all, you must accompany the Kid to a two-seater vehicle which is parked two streets away (marked by the blinking dot on the map). This is rather inconvenient, but what can you do? You don't always get to choose in life, particularly when it comes to parking spaces. The boy will appear on the map as a blue dot, but try not to lose sight of him for too long. Closely follow the Kid as he makes his unhurried progress across the square in front of the alley. He will always keep close to the wall on the left and only swerves slightly to cross the ditch.

The Krimzon Guards will come running immediately and try to stop the Kid. When the boy stops in front of a guard, you will only have seconds in which to shoot the guard dead or at least knock him out. You will have the added advantage that Jak's bullets whiz straight over the head of the little one who is also resistant to Jak's punches and kicks. You should position yourself behind the Kid and, using your Yellow Gun, shoot at every single Krimzon Guard that shows his or her face (Fig. 1). Of course, the Blue Gun will be equally effective if you have enough ammo. Since no opponents will be coming out of the alley behind you, it should be relatively easy to keep track of the attacking hordes.

Go through the short alley in the direction of the vehicle. Always keep a slight distance from the Kid and don't forget to keep checking the lower right hand side of the map to observe the pattern of red dots. As soon as any trace of a Krimzon Guard appears directly behind Jak react quickly and shoot with precision (Fig. 2). Once the Kid is safely tucked away in the vehicle, jump behind the wheel and fly towards the Power Station (blinking dot) (Fig. 3). If the vehicle with the little passenger on board explodes, the mission will have failed.

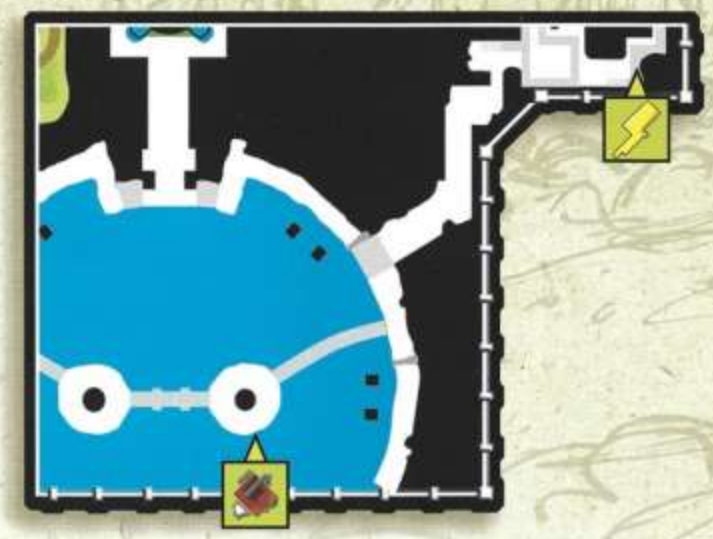
Fly as closely to the ground as you can, to avoid being rammed by other vehicles. Remember that you can still shoot while flying as long as you select a weapon using the direction pad. Try to avoid using the footbridges as you can only move forward slowly across them, making you an easy target for the Guards' precision shooting skills. Your best tactic is simply to floor it along the wide thoroughfares below as fast as you can (Fig. 4).

Park the vehicle in the glowing circle (Fig. 5) in front of the pedestrian ramp leading to the Power Station. The Kid only has a few metres left to go, but the relentless guards will still be trying to stop him at any cost. Your trusty Red Gun may well prove useful at this vital moment (Fig. 6). At the top, near the door to Vin's control room, the last crowd of Guards will charge towards you. Finally you'll reach the safety of the Power Station where you can entrust the Kid to the care of Kor – the Crocodog doesn't seem to like this at all but even his snappy little jaws can't prevent Kor from disclosing the next mission.

Destroy Equipment at Dig

ACT 2.8

The Baron is conducting an excavation at the Dig. He is still looking for this ridiculous Tomb. I for one don't believe that it actually exists, but interfere with his operation anyway, if you must. Knock down all the scaffolding at the site. That should hit him where it hurts. Take this Air Train Pass and use it to get to the Dig.



After you have handed over the Kid to Kor and left the Power Station, you will see a shuttle icon on the map – it represents the red transport plane in the port. Thanks to the Air Train Pass you can board it and fly to the Dig. You will see a security gate near to the landing site which you can only open with a Black Security Pass. If you were to head down through the cave to the south-west you would eventually reach a valley that takes you to an area due north of the Pumping Station. However, you won't be taking this particular route just yet.

Go to the large elevator platform, which will take you down to the cave below. A very difficult task awaits you there. Your aim is to sever the 24 mooring ropes that tether the large drilling device, using your Jet Boarding skills. The aim of the numerous Krimzon Guards patrolling the area is to prevent you from doing so and really spoil your day in the process. This will be easier for them than usual as the red men are equipped with deadly grenades, that they throw at your feet from a great distance and with frightening precision. Most unfair!

Please note!

There are a few things you must be mindful of in the cave. Scattered on the floor you will notice strange yellow panels (Fig. 1). When you fly over them with your Jet Board, they will catapult you up into the air.
In addition, there are several stacks of fuel barrels in the cave (Fig. 2); once hit, they will roll across the floor and explode. The following piece of information is the most important of all: you cannot fly over lava with your Jet Board!

Eliminating the Krimzon Guards may not be a mandatory part of the mission, but as long as there are still some around you will have a very difficult time completing your task without being blown to smithereens. Before you even think about severing the ropes take your Yellow Gun and wipe out both of the guards in the passageway followed by their two colleagues in the large cave (Fig. 3). Then quickly turn to the right and start attacking the guards on the platform (Fig. 4). After that, take care of the hapless duo in the dip below (Fig. 5). Now run over to the elevated spot underneath the scaffolding (Fig. 6) and fire away at any enemies loitering about near the drill. You can only usually wipe out one of them, but that is better than none at all.

Next, turn your attention to the guys behind the left bridge (Fig. 7). After that, run across the bridge and over to the barrels and crates at the back of the cave (Fig. 8). Turn around, jump on the platform and wipe out the guards standing there. Then turn quickly to face the three guys in uniform who will be guarding the plateau at the back (Fig. 9).

Despite all your efforts, there will still be a total of five guards patrolling the highest level. You can reach them by using the yellow panel on the left to catapult upward (Fig. 10). Once you're up there, head on up the slope. Two guards will be waiting for you, so give them a little surprise. The last three can be found hanging around at the back on the left of the next platform.

Take out your Jet Board and grind down the pipe to the right. You can sever the first three ropes as you go along, but that's not the most important thing at the moment. Make sure you immediately get rid of the three Guards on the next platform. One of them will probably be on the lower level next to the drill and is easy to hit from your elevated vantage point. That puts an end to the threat posed by the Guards.

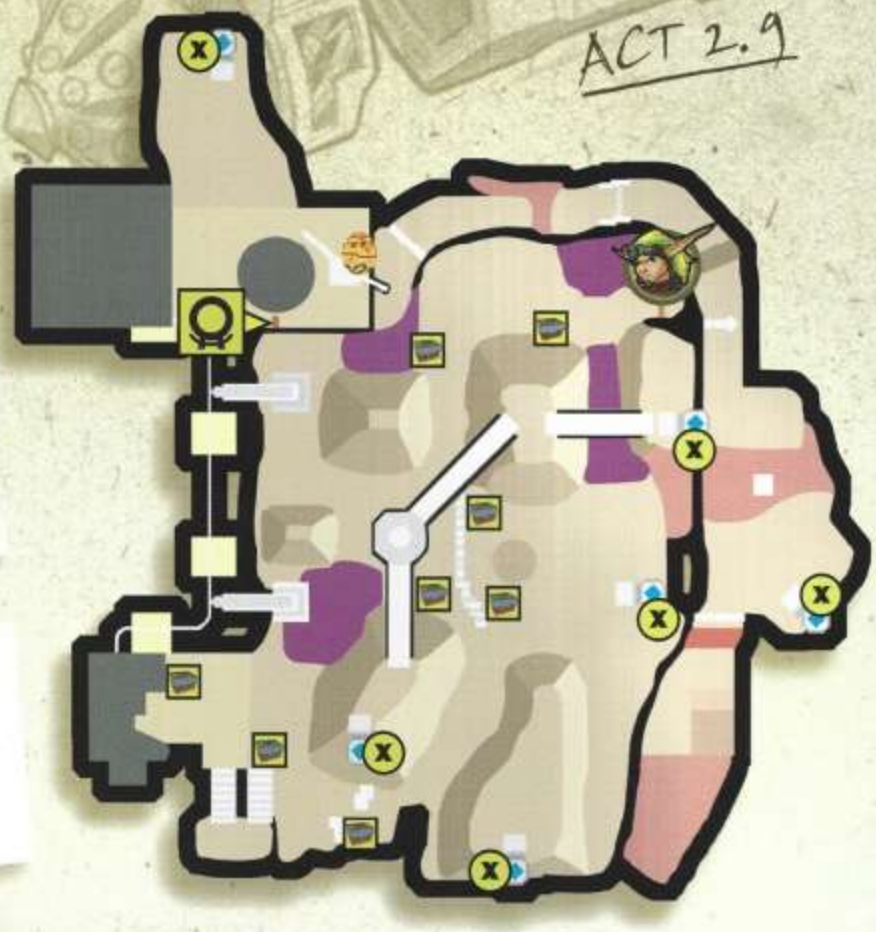
Now you have all the time in the world to attend to your actual task. You have to cut eight different sets of holding ropes attached to the central drilling machine. You can do this simply by grinding over them with your Jet Board. Maybe it is best to let our expert explain everything himself. Here goes ...

As you have perhaps noticed, Jak, lava flows at the bottom of the cave. As we both know, lava does not agree with my sensitive fur at all. It is therefore best to take your time and deal with the eight different places one by one. Position yourself in front of one of the rails (Fig. 11), take out the Jet Board, go to the edge and then jump off. Press ◎ prior to landing in order to grind the rail, making sure that you keep the button held down (Fig. 12). You should also press the analog stick upwards the whole time, so that you don't lose too much speed. Put away the Jet Board with R2 just before the end of the bar and at the same time jump onto the next platform. After that, take up your position to tackle the next bar. And remember: if anything goes wrong, I'm always next to you. And you might like to note, just for reference, that my claws have been freshly sharpened. So you'd better not make any mistakes, am I clear?

Blow up Strip Mine Eco Wells

ACT 2.9

We still have problems in the Strip Mine. I think the Baron has pulled a fast one on me. It seems just about everybody out there is trying to do me in ... The open Eco Wells in the Strip Mine will attract even more Metal Heads. You must throw Plasmite Bombs into them in order to close them. Drop one bomb in each well before they all blow up. The Warp Gate will get you to the Strip Mine. Quick, you only have two minutes.



Instead of letting you throw bombs into Eco Wells, good old Vin would probably be better off popping a few tranquillisers – or taking a holiday in a therapeutic spa resort. All in good time. Right now, the clock is ticking for our two brave heroes. In fact, time is actually your major enemy here, as for once there are no Metal Heads to trouble you.

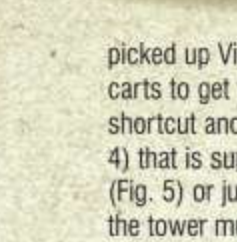
Your skills as a Jet Boarder are in demand again. Your Board will safely carry you over the purple Eco ponds, which is quite a relief. You must visit the six Eco towers (Fig. 1), one by one. Build up momentum and drive your board up the ramp on the side of each tower (Fig. 2). When you reach the top, press ⊗ to jump and gain extra height. If your momentum is sufficient, Jak will automatically and elegantly place a bomb in the basket, er, I mean well (Fig. 3). Get your first attempt right and you should have plenty of time to plant all six bombs.

Four of the towers are within easy reach on the lower level of the mine, as is the sand heap. When you manage to plant a bomb correclty a violet light will appear at the top. The other towers are not as easily accessible. One is situated behind the shack where you picked up Vin in a previous mission. You can either use the mine carts to get there, wasting precious seconds, or you could take a shortcut and ride up the steel girder opposite the Warp Gate (Fig. 4) that is supporting the carts. From the girder, jump on a cart (Fig. 5) or jump right and grind the rail. Either way, you will get to the tower much quicker.

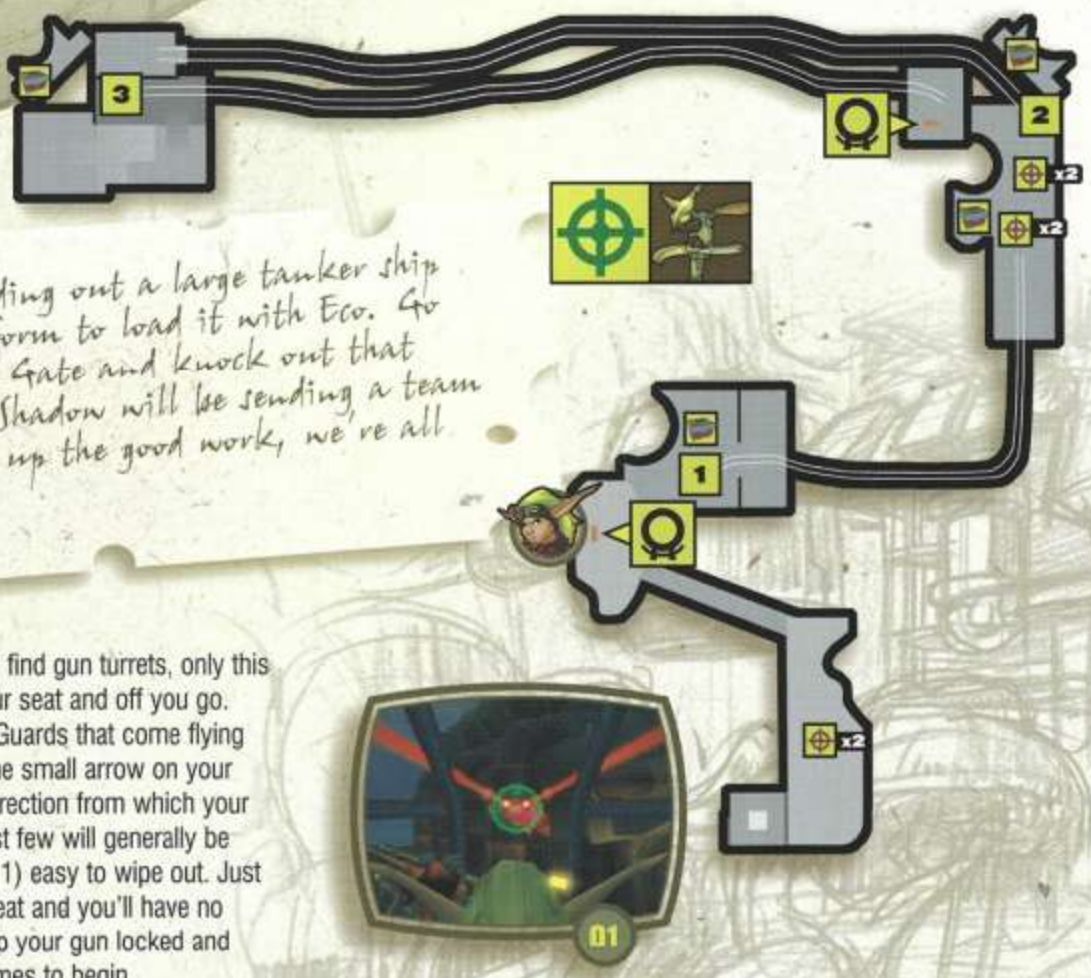
If you go straight ahead from the Warp Gate, then drive up the ramp to the right of the Eco pond (Fig. 6), you will be on the right track for the last tower, albeit a track full of obstacles. After passing the shack with the large drills, (Fig. 7) you will see a particularly wide drop, which you can only cross using a tricky moving platform. You'll need to execute two well-aimed and well-timed jumps to reach the tower on the other side safely (Fig. 8). After planting your final bomb you can then return to the Power Station where you will be waylaid by old Kor with his next mission. Alternatively, if you're in the mood for an Easter egg hunt, look for a few hidden Orbs before you go back.

Destroy Ship at Drill Platform

ACT 2.10



The Baron is sending out a large tanker ship to the Drill Platform to load it with Eco. Go through the Warp Gate and knock out that ship. Later on, the Shadow will be sending a team to pick up the Eco. Keep up the good work, we're all counting on you.



At the Drill Platform you will once again find gun turrets, only this time they move along on rails. Take your seat and off you go. Immediately start firing at the Krimzon Guards that come flying towards you with their rocket packs. The small arrow on your green target display will point out the direction from which your next opponent will be attacking. The first few will generally be coming one by one, making them (Fig. 1) easy to wipe out. Just make sure that your gun doesn't overheat and you'll have no problem. After reaching the corner, keep your gun locked and loaded and wait for the real fun and games to begin.

Get ready to face the following opponents (the directions assume that the energy gate is in the centre of the screen):

- 3 opponents from the bottom right (Fig. 2)
- 3 opponents from the top left above the roof (Fig. 3)
- 4 opponents from the right next to the gate (Fig. 4)
- 5 opponents from the top left (Fig 5)

Afterwards, the fun starts all over again with three opponents attacking from the bottom right, four from the right next to the gate and three from the top left. The last four groups will attack as mentioned above. As soon as 40 guards have been eliminated, the cannon drives thorugh the gate.

Get into the next gun station. The first Krimzon Guard will emerge in front of you from the right. Turn to your left and you will see a gunship moving ominously alongside you. The crew will move different guns into position – one after the other. Firstly, they will start shooting towards the edge of the screen and then turn towards you. You will only have a few seconds in which to destroy each gun before it hits you. The sequence is as follows:

3: top centre
4: top left
5: bottom, middle hatch
6: top centre, on the wing
7: bottom, far right (Fig. 8)
8: bottom, right hatch
9: bottom centre, on the wing tip

Occasionally, Krimzon Guards will come flying from the direction of the gunship using their backpack rockets. Ignore them and concentrate on the gunship's guns. If you don't manage to destroy the guns in good time, the sequence of events mentioned above may change.

When you come to a stop at the next stage, jump past the crates, and get into the third gun station. First of all, two Krimzon Guards will emerge from the right. Deal with them, then swing around to the left and get to grips with the gunship once again:

2: bottom, right hatch (Fig. 10)
3: top centre
4: bottom centre, tip of the wing
5: top right
6: bottom, right hatch
8: bottom, far left
9: bottom, centre hatch
10: bottom, left hatch

An inquisitive Guard will also occasionally hover past from the direction of the gunship. The sequence of the guns may change if something doesn't run according to plan. When the gunship is finally gone, you will receive high praise over the radio as usual, testament to a job well done. Leave the Drill Platform via the Warp Gate.

Hunt Haven Forest Metal Heads

Baxter, I think you're just the person we need for this dangerous gig. Combat Metal Heads have been spotted in Haven Forest. They have special camouflage, so they're difficult to detect, but I'm sure you'll manage. Go get 'em!

Make your way from Mountain Gate to Haven Forest, where an extremely difficult hunt awaits you. The special camouflage, which Sig mentioned, makes the Metal Heads almost completely invisible. This doesn't stop them, however, from shooting at you. As the crates in the forest only contain ammunition, you can only afford to be hit three times during your battle with the 30 invisible Metal Heads. Show them what you're made of, even if you can't see what they're made of!

You can only detect the transparent outline of your opponents from a short distance away, but the yellow glow of their Skull Gems will give away their position from a greater distance (Fig. 1). Sometimes their camouflage vanishes after being hit. You will generally need three hits in order to wipe out your elusive enemy.

Check the map of the vicinity in the menu regularly. You will see the exact positions of your opponents marked by green circles. When you arrive, eleven Metal Heads will be romping around in front of you. Jump on your Jet Board, plunge off the cliff and head for the bottom left passage. Turn around, and start to wipe out the first batch. The initial wave of cloaked opponents can be found to your immediate right and left (Fig. 2).

One other way to detect the position of the Metal Heads is the violet laser beams, which will whirr past you when fired in your direction(Fig. 3). It's imperative that you keep moving, otherwise you'll be a sitting target. Watch where the shots are coming from and try to hit your opponent with the Yellow or Blue Gun. Use cover wisely and don't stay in one place for very long. The cunning Metal Heads can creep up on you easily using their sneaky stealth technology. If you think that you may have shot all the opponents in one area, surf around a little on your Jet Board to lure out any stragglers. It will not be quite so easy for individual attackers to hit a moving target.

If you're able to clear the first part, you're over the main hurdle. Make your way carefully towards the round tower in the upper tunnel. You may find a Metal Head coming towards you. Three camouflaged Spyder Gunners are standing in front of the wooden planks (Fig. 4). As they only shoot at objects right in front of their own falons, you can mow them down safely from a distance with your Yellow Gun. There will be a total of eleven Metal Heads lurking in front of the wooden planks. If you move your way forward carefully and use the tried and tested tactics outlined above, you'll be able to deal with them (Fig. 5) easily enough.

There will now be only eight Metal Heads left down in the large area before the city wall. Three of them will be Spyder Gunners, lurking close to the passageway on the flat riverbank (Fig. 6). Once you take them out even tough Sig will be impressed. To get a round of praise from the great Wastelander himself – isn't that enough? No, not really. But that's all you'll get for your efforts.

ACT 2.12

Get Seal Piece at Dig

Onin says you must find the Tomb of Mar, but only the true heir will be able to open it. Apparently, it contains the Precursor Stone, which the Baron wants to get his slimy hands on. This stone is supposed to possess enormous Eco Energies which may be used for great good or great evil. Take a guess what the Baron intends to do with it?

Go to the Dig, and find the Lurker Totem, one of the three pieces of the Seal which is required to open Mar's Gate to the Canyon.

Samos will assign you the mission in Onin's tent. Afterwards, go to the port and take the shuttle to the Dig site. Quite a few things will have changed in the cave since your last visit. The first Stingers will be crawling out of the ground in the passageway. These creatures can be found in the ground everywhere and will provide you with plenty of Skull Gems. You can ward them off with your Red Gun. Go along the wooden planks and grind down the pipe in the passageway (Fig. 1).

You will reach a second cave further down the passageway. You should keep to the left first of all. Once you have passed two Manic Heads you will reach a wooden switch (Fig. 2), which you must ram into the ground. This will cause a wooden pillar to rise at the other end of the cave. You will now have to find four more switches before you are able to get out of the cave. You can spot their positions by checking the map in the menu.

Turn to your right where a tree trunk cut in half, with spikes on the underside, is rotating. Fire at the Sling Blaster who will be guarding the second switch on the small island behind (Fig. 3). From there move towards the large pillar in the centre of the hall. The third switch will be beneath you on the floor of the hall. Watch out for Stingers who will be lurking there as you jump down (Fig. 4).

The fourth switch can be found to the south-east of your position in the small passageway which leads back to the entrance hall. When you reach the small lava moats (Fig. 5) jump up to the left into the small chamber. After having activated the switch, return to the large pillar in the centre of the large cave. There will be two Manic Heads and another Sling Blaster waiting for you behind it. Shoot them all and then jump back to the left and up the wooden tower (Fig. 6).

Now slide down the pipe with your Jet Board to the next platform. There is a conspicuous Lurker balloon hovering in front of you, with a horizontal bar swinging back and forth underneath. Let it swing and take a look down to your right where you will see a kind of hut (Fig. 7). The fifth switch is inside. Jump down, breaking your fall with a spin, and tread on the switch. Then return to the lower level of the first wooden platform tower and grind down the pipe once again. Now it's the balloon's turn.

Take your position on the platform (Fig. 8). When the balloon rises from below, the horizontal bar will swing towards you twice. During the second swing take a double jump towards the swinging bar. Let it take you down and then jump off. The wooden trunk, which you have just activated using the switch, will rise in front of you. Jump up the steps to your right and then from the top of the trunk head into the next cave.

Afterwards, cross the lava lake. Be careful, since the rocks will sink. However, as soon as you jump into the air, they will return to their original state. After this, you will reach two more hot air balloons (Fig. 9). Simply jump up as soon as the first swinging bar is immediately above you. You will have to jump off in the direction of the next island when the horizontal bar swings forward for the second time: With the second bar the jump-off point will also be when the bar has reached its zenith for the second time (Fig. 10).

You will now have reached the back part of the main hall. Jump over the platforms of the wooden wheel one after the other and eradicate the Sling Blaster (Fig. 11) by blowing him off the platform at close range with your Red Gun. Then make your way carefully up the slope past the spiked balls. Run up quickly between the two balls and get yourself to safety at the top (Fig. 12). Once there, choose the right moment to move to the centre between both tracks. You must now wait for the right moment to jump over to the left and to reach your goal. The object you're looking for is in the large totem pole. A Warp Gate behind the totem pole will take you back to the Power Station. You might very well ask yourself, why couldn't that also have worked in the other direction? And miss out on all the fun? Surely not!

Destroy 5 HellCat Cruisers

ACT 2.13

The Baron is gradually becoming nervous. That is the reason why new Krimzon Guard HellCat Cruisers are now on the streets and causing a stir among the people. Your next mission is to destroy five Cruisers.

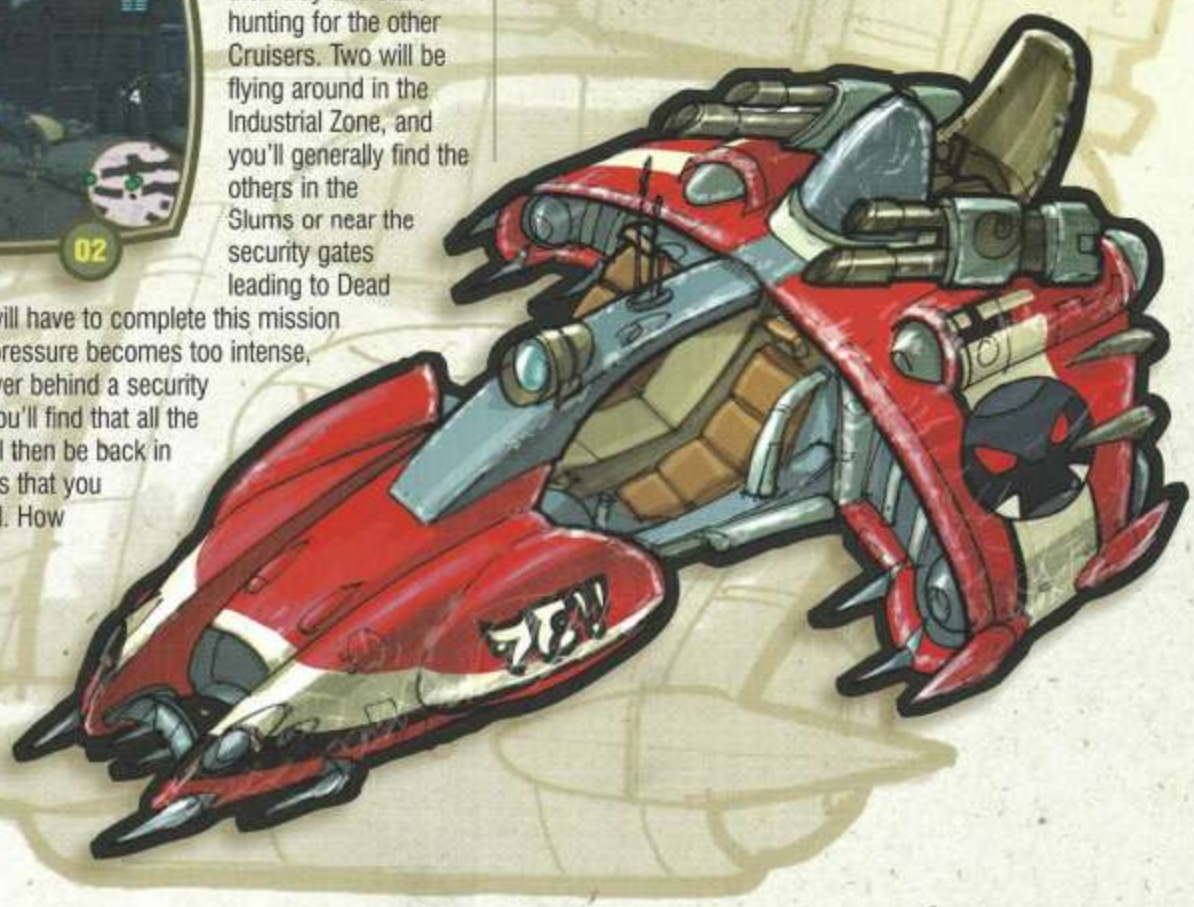
The new HellCat Cruisers will be marked on the map as green blinking dots. You will have to shoot them on the ground or from a vehicle. You'll find this quick to do using the Blue Gun, whereas the other weapons will take a little more time. You will find your first target just in front of Torn's alley. Fly towards the HellCat Cruiser and open fire (Fig. 1). You will need to hit it 15 times in order to destroy it. You should get yourself into a good position beforehand, because the enemy vehicle will try to make a quick getaway from the scene after the first hit. You will find that shooting down their colleague causes quite a stir amongst the Krimzon Guard ranks, bringing them all down hard on your tail.

You would be well advised to get out of their way and start hunting for the other Cruisers. Two will be flying around in the Industrial Zone, and you'll generally find the others in the Slums or near the security gates leading to Dead Town (Fig. 2). You will have to complete this mission all in one go. If the pressure becomes too intense, and you look for cover behind a security gate, for instance, you'll find that all the Hell Cat Cruisers will then be back in action, even the ones that you previously destroyed. How frustrating!

You can hide from the guards by keeping close to the wall in the gap between ramp and wall in the Industrial Zone, near to the Bazaar exit, or in a ditch within the Slums. The guards can't get to you and they'll give up after a while.

However, you can also return to your hideout in the midst of the onslaught and wait until the alarm stops. You mustn't, of course, talk to Torn, but nobody would do that in any case if they didn't have to ...

Try and shoot down the HellCat Cruisers really quickly as they'll pepper you remorselessly with gunfire when pursuing you. A prolonged chase will enable the remaining Krimzon Guards to fire at you relentlessly or, even worse, to ram you with their Zoomers. Remember, if your vehicle explodes beneath you, it will cost you two energy units, so you can only afford to get rammed three times at most. If you have to start this mission several times from the very beginning you'll soon find yourself running dangerously short of ammunition. If this is the case, simply select Restart Mission, and open the ammunition crate in front of the hideout now and again.



Get Seal Piece at Water Slums

ACT 2.14

You will find a piece of the Seal of Mar in front of my hut to the far north-east of the Water Slums. It's yours if you can manage to reach the exit of the Water Slums, which lies to the south-west.

Wow, get to the exit ... now that's really difficult. Simply get hold of the next Zoomer and off you go. What do you mean there are no vehicles? OK then, we'll just switch to plan B. You know how I hate getting wet. You can't get that stinking smell out of your fur for weeks afterwards.

However, in this case I'll make an exception and will bravely swim to the exit with you. What? I've just heard that the robot guards from the Pumping Station are paying a visit and zap anyone who's swimming in the water.

Well, if my suggestions aren't welcome here, you'll just have to find out for yourself how to get out of this mess.

The Krimzon Guard will be trying with all their might to stop you in your tracks. Red shuttles will constantly be flying by and setting soldiers down – eight per load. You can't shoot down the shuttles, so make sure you keep them at a safe distance. If you see that the guns on board are aiming at you with their red laser targets, take a few steps back as quickly as possible (Fig. 1). Attempt to shoot the soldiers from a distance, and keep moving forward as soon as the shuttle hovers off. Much more effective than going in with your eyes closed and hoping for the best.

You can wipe out the Krimzon Guards as usual with two hits. This can be speeded up if you can manage to knock them into the water with your first hit. As your opponents will only leave behind ammunition and no Dark Eco, you won't be able to rely on your Dark Jak powers. The shuttles will continue to offload reinforcements so don't waste any time. Fire at the soldiers as they land (Fig. 2) - preferably with the Blue Gun. As soon as the shuttle has disappeared, make for the next landing. Take a look at the map so that you don't end up in a dead end. At the first turning you must, for example, go left, but after that virtually all paths lead to the destination.

Don't get too distracted by opponents who will come at you from the rear. Of course you will have to keep an eye out for them, but as long as you don't stay in one position for too long, you shouldn't have to keep turning around. The guys behind you aren't as aggressive as their colleagues in front. It would still be worth your while to fire a volley behind you during the quieter moments but don't turn the camera when you do this.

Beat Onin Game

You've already proved that you're brave and have got muscle. Now it's up to show what brain cells you have. If you pass this test, you will receive the third piece of the Seal.

An unusual test will await you in Onin's tent. Despite the ramblings of her tactless mouthpiece, Pecker, Onin's game is as much a test of your dexterity and reactions as it is a test of your brainpower.

Icons will appear in front of Onin, the colour and shape of which resemble the icon buttons of your controller: △, □, ○ and ⊗. You have to press on the correct buttons as the symbols jump out of Onin's bowl before they reach the bottom of the screen. If you press the right button at the right time, you'll receive points. Your objective is to attain 400 points. The game will end prematurely if you make 20 errors. What constitutes an error includes an icon touching the ground before you've pressed the corresponding button or when the icon is not even featured on the screen.

The first twelve icons will jump out of the bowl one by one, but it doesn't take long before the icons will start appearing in larger groups (Fig. 1). As the sequence is selected at random, there's nothing we can say which will help you on your way. You'll just have to get on with it!

As I have enough time to watch everything, something has just occurred to me: if you press the same button several times in a row, your score will double. You'll receive one point for one ○ (or any other symbol) and two points for the second ○, four points for the third one and eight for the fourth. The only catch is that you must not interrupt your combo with an error.

As soon as an icon touches the ground, your combo will end.

If there are a lot of the same icons in one group, you should leave them until last. And if the same icons appear in the next group, wipe them out immediately to make your combo string as long as possible.

I bet you think that you'll never be able to master this knowledge in all the rush? Well, that's really not my problem, is it? Maybe it will help if I tell you to use SELECT to stop the game? That way, you can take a look at what icons are flying around, and get your fingers poised in the right position...

Or how about getting someone to help you and share the buttons between you, with each person in charge of two icons. Of course, this will mean that there's not much room on the controller pad and may lead to a row, or even romance! Well, at least I've warned you ... Good luck!

If you enjoyed Onin's game, you can play it time and again. Simply pop into the tent when you're not in the midst of a mission, and the old dear will let the icons roll for you once more.

Insert Items in No Man's Canyon

ACT 2.16

An old legend has it that the location of Mar's Tomb was once marked by a light tower. Bring the three artefacts to Mar's Gate in No Man's Canyon. Only then will we find the Tomb.

You've passed the entrance to No Man's Canyon on one occasion already. It is close to Mountain Temple. Jump through the security gates and through the Warp Gate as usual. Get on top of the elevator platform. Once you've reached the bottom turn to your right towards the round gateway in the rock face (Fig. 1), which will open with the power of the three Seals.

Once you're through, you will then have to master a small test on the Jet Board. Jump onto the pipe, grind along, then jump before changing directions (Fig. 2). While in the air, steer towards the left in order to land in the middle. Immediately afterwards jump to your right onto the third pipe. At the turn-off go to the left through the archway. Follow the gorge until you reach the end, where Jak and Daxter will activate the light tower together. Low and behold, the entrance to Mar's Tomb will appear down below in the city.

You have done a good job here, so off you go to the Tomb. Go back to the turning and then continue left. The path will end at a platform above the Warp Gate, and you can jump down to it with a long jump (Fig. 3).

ACT 2.17

Pass the Second Test of Manhood

The entrance to Mar's Tomb is marked on the map with a skull. Just as well, as it would have been an impossible task to find the gates beneath the destroyed Statue of Mar, directly opposite the palace gates. Samos, Kor and the Kid will already be waiting inside, and due to a chain of unavoidable circumstances Jak, together with Daxter, must undergo the test instead of the true heir of Mar. Such are the twists and turns of fickle fate…

You will have to pass two sets of challenges in order to open the large Crypt Door at the end of the hall. Actually, this is really the task for the heir of Mar, but as the kid is, well, so small, it's yet again up to us to tackle the whole thing. And when I say we, you know who's left to clear up the mess. (I'll give you a hint: strong, brave, furry…) We can choose to take on either the challenges in the left or in the right passageway, so let's go for the right one as it's the easiest (Fig. 1). Even if it is number two according to the official legend. By the way, when I say right, I mean from the entrance. If you take a look at the map, it's the left passageway. Oh boy, how confusing …

Fodder will be hanging around in knee-deep water in the main hall, but they're only looking for playmates and aren't really that dangerous. Go right and climb the steps but watch out for the pit at the very top. The challenges will start in the first chamber. Step on the switch on the floor. Beetles will fall from the ceiling and land on their backs. Take a closer look, because three of them will have a red cross marked on their stomach (Fig. 2). Quickly memorise which three carry the mark. The insects will then turn over and it's up to you to hit the three marked ones. If you hit all three correctly, each one will fly up and stick to the door on the left (Fig. 3). If you get it wrong, you'll lose a unit of energy. When you have found all three, the door will open.

Waves of energy will be flashing across the moat. Jump in as soon as the energy discharge stops for a second. Press and keep holding ⊡ in order to dive underneath. Swim through to the other side (Fig. 4). As soon as the lightening flashes have disappeared, you can come to the surface (simply let go of ◎) and then jump quickly out of the water shaking hands with the Spyders who greet you. When you reach the second moat, the energy discharge will only stop very briefly, so you'll have to be quick. Stay at the edge and as soon as the energy rays stop, jump into the water and dive down. Remember, you'll have to rise to the surface and jump out of the water just as quickly.

Now it's time for a little puzzle. Step on the switch and coloured slabs will appear. The ones on which you need to step will start to flash (Fig. 5). It's best if you jump on them right away, then you won't have to remember the order in which they flashed. If you step on the wrong stone, all the others will crumble away and you will lose energy and have to start again from the beginning. Step on the switch to restart. However, you should be able to reach the next slab without incurring any problems if you take double leaps. It may also help if you do a spin in the air in order to delay the landing.

Tread on the second switch in order to reach the exit after the next sequence (Fig. 6). This will only work if you have not missed out any flashing slabs on the way. The sound that the slabs make when flashing depends on their colour. This may be of use to you when trying to find your way through.

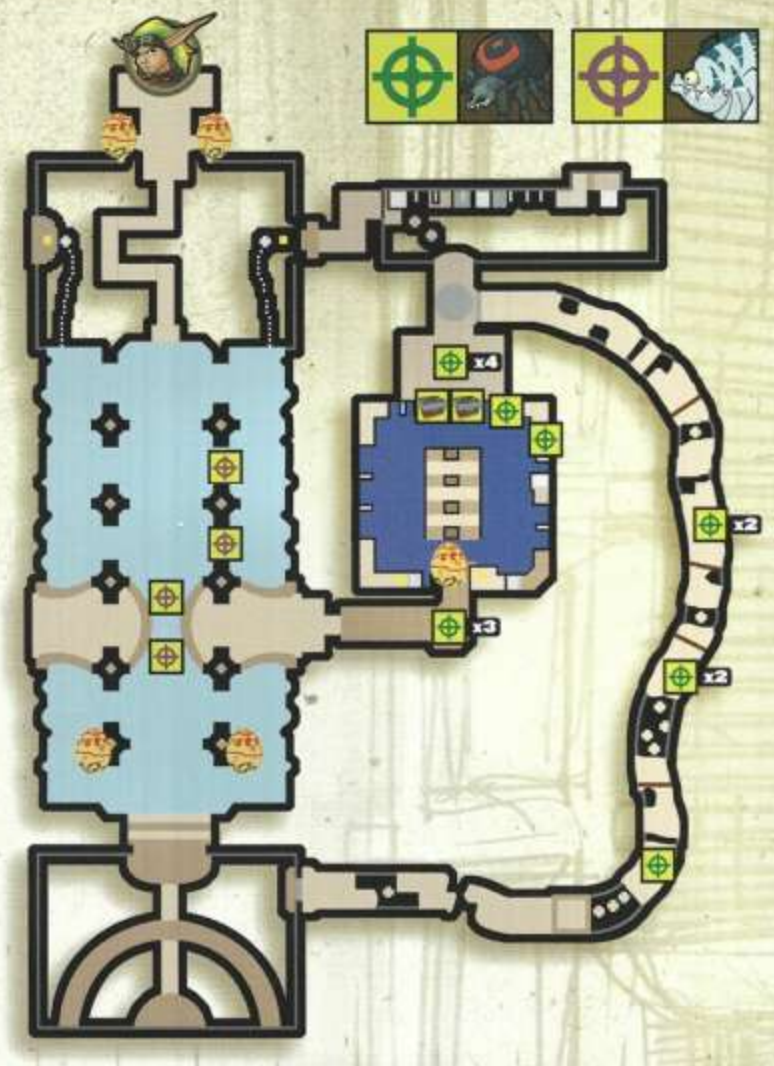
The next passage contains more Spiders and yet another moat. This one has flat areas at the sides where you can't dive. You will then eventually re-emerge back at the beetle chamber. You'll have to find the three marked beetles once again in order to open the other door. There will also be another moat here (Fig. 7). This one will have a wall in the middle as an additional hurdle, which you will have to cross quickly. Finally, you can hop over yet more brightly coloured slabs (Fig. 8). This section will be followed by a very long moat where you will have to surface in the middle to take a breather. From here, fire at the Spyders who are lurking at the end of the moat, so that they don't bite off your fingers when you climb out.

The last puzzle room will contain a music memory test. (If you have turned off the music in the Sound Options, you should now turn it on again.) Hit one of the gravestones (Fig. 9), and you will hear a melody. You'll have to hit two gravestones, one after the other, which have the same melody to make both of them disappear. When all have gone, the exit will open, and you'll be able to activate the switch on the hallway balcony. A pool of energy will light up the icon in the Crypt Door. You'll now have to pass the second set of challenges, and then Mar's legacy will finally be within your reach.

Pass the First Test of Manhood

The second set of tests will await you behind the left archway (shown on the right side of the map) in the great hall. This could also be the first set, depending upon which one you chose first of all. It makes no difference.



In the first chamber you'll have to jump over four pillars where spikes will keep protruding out (Fig. 1). The trick is to jump to the next pillar just at the right moment using double jumps and a delayed spin. From the platform at the back of the wall jump to the right, onto the bar. You will then encounter moving bars and blocks that emerge from the wall. And then, of course, there will be the bars that move to and fro (Fig. 2). If Jak jumps off at the right moment (as you ascend), and does not stay put on the slabs (Fig. 3), you'll be sure to master this first test of dexterity. Step onto the switch at the end to move the pillars into new positions.

Jump over the four pillars once again until you reach the chamber's back wall. This time move along the wall to the left. You will encounter another series of moving bars (Fig. 4). If you jump off just at the right angle, as soon as you have reached the top or the end of its track (Fig. 5), you will reach the next switch more quickly. By activating the switch the pillars will move yet again, opening up a stairway at the foot of the chamber. Before you climb down the steps, you should jump up onto the pillars once again (Fig. 6) – just in case you wish to grab the Precursor Orb which is on the top, in the corner. At the foot of the stairs an incident will occur which means that you will have to leave Daxter to play on his own.

Hi there? Who on earth has got time to read lengthy explanations? There's an almighty rock rolling behind me. Do something! Keep running towards the camera, don't stop, and watch out for the hurdles which will emerge at the bottom of the screen. Take double jumps just to be sure. You can guide me as if I were Jak. Quick, I have very sensitive fur, and it mustn't be ironed!

1: The first hole in the ground will be on the right, so keep to the left (Fig. 7).
2: Quickly run diagonally over to the right.
3: Take a double jump across the gap.
4: Take another jump and land to the left (Fig. 8).
5. Jump over the threshold (Fig. 9)
6. Jump onto the platform, which will be swinging over the gap, and then down onto the other side.

The rock will have gone – but that was just the start of your problems. The rock was in fact an egg, and there will now be a hideous giant spider on your tail, which isn't easy to stop.

1. Take a quick double jump at the right edge.
2. Run past the small Spiders (Fig. 10) or take a double jump over them. You could also knock them out of the way, but don't lose any time in doing so.
3. Jump over the threshold and land on the left.
4. At the edge of the slope jump onto the slab in the centre of the abyss and then down again.
5. Two Spiders will be lurking on the next set of steps (Fig 11).
6. There will be four round slabs hovering above the large shaft: the first one is in the centre, the second one to the right, the third one on the left and the fourth one on the right (Fig. 12). Double jumps will not be necessary here.
7. Jump over the threshold and land to the right.
8. Jump over the abyss.
9. Behind the Spider there will be a wide shaft with three round slabs that move slightly from left to right (Fig. 13). You will find a vertical shaft just behind which won't stop your pursuer with the sticky feet.

1. Jump onto the net at the bottom edge. It will hurl you high into the air, and you will have to guide Daxter to the second net on the right (Fig. 14).
2. Steer Daxter so that he lands on the ledge at the bottom, after the net.

3. Afterwards, run clockwise around the shaft (Fig. 15).
4. Jump to your right onto the third net and then land on the next ramp, which will be on the following level.
5. Run clockwise around the shaft.
6. Jump to the right onto the next net.
7. This time you'll have to land on a net on the lower edge, which will hurl you to the top of the shaft.

Unfortunately, you still haven't reached your destination. Run forward without stopping.
1. Stay to the left, because the abyss will be on your right.
2. Take a double jump and land on your right (Fig. 16).
3. Then run to the left again.
4. Jump onto the round slab above the abyss, and then take a jump to the right.

Daxter is safe, he's reached his destination. Next it will be Jak's turn.

Right then Jak, let's see how you get on without my help. There's a course in front of you with moveable bars and blocks (Fig. 17). Luckily, I have already shown you once how it all works, so you should manage it. After all, I mean, it's me sitting out here on my own waiting for you. Just imagine if we'd done this set of tests first of all. Then I would have had to wait ages. I don't even want to think about it!

Start down in the left corner: jump onto the bar, from there to the block, and then on to the next bar. When the bar has reached its peak, jump off onto the solid platform to the top right, which will be easy to overlook (Fig. 18). The following three bars will be moving to the right of it, and after the large block you can climb up the large steps in the wall (Fig. 19). Now you have to turn back to your left: only another couple of bars and blocks, and you'll have reached your destination. Tread on the switch in the great hallway (Fig. 20), which will open the Crypt Door if you've managed to pass all the other challenges.

Defeat Baron in Mar's Tomb

The Baron has set his heart on the Precursor Stone. But if he thinks he can impress us with his spider robot, then he's barking up the wrong tree. Put up a good fight Jak, and meanwhile I'll think up a cunning plan ... so leave me in peace!

First of all, the Baron will hurl spider robots over towards you (Fig. 1). Each one will land in one of the seven segments between the pillars. Don't touch the things whatever you do. Their energy rays can thrust you into the abyss. Shoot them as quickly as you can. If your ammunition is almost gone, you can reload using the Red Ammo that will appear at both ends of the path. Stand either to the far left or the far right of the path and shoot the spider robots as you make your way towards the middle. In this way, you can avoid being attacked from both sides at the same time.

The Baron will start throwing bombs, and that will be his first big mistake. Before they explode, they must be hurled or punched back towards the Battle Mech. Simply form a line between Jak, the bomb and the Battle Mech (Fig. 2). Then boot the bombs away, and they will fly up and hit the robot. The remaining bombs will explode after a while, and the Baron will send out more of his pet spiders. Make sure that no bombs explode anywhere near Jak, because that would badly injure him.

Four bombs will have to hit the target in order to move onto the second stage. This is possible during a single round of attacks, but it is important for you to aim well and not merely to hurl the bombs around. The Baron will send yet more spiders at the beginning of the second stage, and he will leave his position at the stone in order to fly close behind the pillars and shoot (Fig. 3). Take cover behind a pillar, because it will take the main force of the bullets (Fig. 4). Once you have wiped out all the spiders, the Baron will fly to the rear and throw bombs. You know this pattern already: you'll need to kick them back at the Baron four times. Stage 3 will then begin.

The Baron will grab the Precursor Stone from its anchoring. He will move forward and use the stone's power to destroy part of the bridge with green energy rays (Fig. 5). He will then throw two bombs which you will have to kick straight back towards him. However, he won't fly backwards, but instead dart between the pillars (Fig. 6), shooting and destroying further parts of the bridge. Take cover behind the pillars and jump over the gaps in the bridge. As he will also start shooting at the antique pillars they will gradually fall apart. After you have kicked back four of his own bombs and hit him with these, the Baron will finally make a dramatic exit.

Rescue Friends in Fortress

ACT 3.1

Hey! Shhhh. Jak! Are you really wondering how the Baron managed to get into the Tomb so quickly in order to thwart our plans? I have a strong feeling that the massive statue in front of his palace collapsed and opened up a rather conspicuous security gate right in front of his front door, and that makes you wonder?

There is still one way to save our comrades. And, maybe, the Precursor Stone too. Go to the Fortress and try to free your friends. It won't be easy!

Enter the Fortress by the delivery entrance in the Slums. Luckily for you, nobody takes security all that seriously around here. Once inside, go down the corridor that was blocked by a blue energy barrier during your last visit. First, you'll need to mow down some Krimzon Guards. Several of them will emerge from the depths propelled by rockets on their backs. Deal with them, then stamp on the four red switches (Fig. 1) on the platforms. The yellow elite Guards will put up particularly tough resistance. They are more motivated than their poorly paid red colleagues and can withstand twice as many hits. From now on the yellow peril will also be seen patrolling throughout the mean streets of Haven City.

There will be a constant flow of guards from the room at the back. That will cease, however, once you approach it. Afterwards, you will have plenty of time to take care of the four switches. A fifth switch can be found in the back room, right in front of the energy barrier – stomp on it to disable the barrier. You will now have to face indestructible gun turrets that will swing back and forth at regular intervals and open fire as soon as their red target lasers touch you. The safest place to be is up on top of the guns (Fig. 2), though even that isn't safe enough, as you will be in the line of fire of the upper cannons. You need to jump over all four cannons and run to the half-pipe at the back of the room. When you get there, go right and leap over the laser beams. Jump up and over the right side of the pipe to reach the next area. Stop at the edge and survey the situation before continuing.

You will see a rail running between two more cannons. Wait until the laser beams sweep across in front of you and then use your Jet Board to grind across the rail, making sure that you keep the ○ button held down at the same time as pressing forward on the analog stick. Now turn left. Remember not to dawdle about in this part of the room as the guards will be shooting at you from above. A bit further along, three more Guards will be waiting for you, so make sure that you have your Blue weapon ready (Fig. 3). In addition, there will be men with rocket-propelled backpacks lurking behind the next corner, protected by two more indestructible gun turrets.

After you have crossed the bridge and jumped over the trench in front of the door, go through to the next room where you will find little robot spiders merrily jumping out of a hole. They continuously respawn, so don't waste too much time or ammo shooting at them. Pass through the door and into the cellblock where you will find some old acquaintances. The warp gate will then drop you off in the Power Station – three new assignments will await you in the city.

ACT 3.2

Escort Men Through Sewers

You must escort three of my men to the statue in the Sewers. It is supposed to hold another secret. Make sure that all three of my boys get to their destination safely. They will take care of the rest themselves.

From the Saloon continue in the direction of the manhole cover icon that will have appeared on the map. You will eventually arrive at the Sewers floodgate that you have visited previously. Krew's clowns will be waiting impatiently for you down below. Follow them to the lift and down into the tunnel where a gang of Hoseheads will appear from behind the left-hand bend. Take care when you see one of the Metal Heads stop and cock its head. The creature is getting ready to unleash a deadly laser beam (Fig. 1). A well-aimed shot will, however, stop this harmful attack. The Hoseheads will not use these beams in close combat situations, which is something of a relief. In the next chamber you must defend yourself against a whole bunch of Hoseheads before you can continue. The beasts will even come crawling down the walls. The three nitwits may not be particularly helpful, but they always seem to conveniently be looking in the very direction from which the next opponent appears. A useful, if gormless early warning system.

When the guys try to blow open the passageway, you'd better take cover (Fig. 2). Hide over in the right-hand corner to avoid being hit by falling debris. On the other side of the tunnel you will encounter two Hoseheads, and two more will follow you through the tunnel. Take the next lift down;

Hoseheads will attack from both sides in the next corridor. A group of three will be lurking behind the next corner, waving their laser beams back and forth.

The Hoseheads have a clear advantage over you with their superior range of fire (Fig. 3). One way to deal with this problem is to shoot at them from a distance while always making sure that you jump over the laser beams. Alternatively, wait for a break in fire, then jump into the corridor and run towards your opponents while at the same time firing aggressively. Or you may even want to get as near to them as possible, so that you can take care of business up close and personal, man against monster. If you go for this option you must, however, make sure that your three enemies are in the line of fire of the second trio that will be hiding around the corner to the left. You can make use of the hollow on the left to get closer to your enemies (Fig. 4). The whole run is easier if you change into Dark Jak and assume the role of the berserker.

When you have managed to defeat this bevy of beauties, Krew's men will blow up the last passageway leading to the statue. The whole thing is still far from over, however, since countless Hoseheads will now be flooding into the room (Fig. 5). This would be another perfect time to metamorphose into Dark Jak, provided you have not already used up your precious Dark Eco reserves. Either way, the crates in the corner will contain lots of blue ammunition. If you run low on ammunition, you can also make use of your Red Gun and fire away at everything that crosses your path. Keep one eye on developments in the background: when the Hoseheads get ready to shoot their laser beams, you must either rush forward and start shooting rapidly or jump out of the way.

You must keep an eye on Krew's three guys as there will be lots of Hoseheads dropping from the ceiling right next to them – they may even land right behind you. As you will have realised by now, the three stooges seem incapable of wiping out one single Metal Head on their own. Always heed their calls so that you are right on the spot when needed. Once you have eliminated dozens of Hoseheads, you can finally pop down to the statue. After your visit continue on to the next lift and return to Haven City. Your present will already be waiting for you near the Gun Course at the port.

Black Gun

You will find a Gun Upgrade for the Black Gun lying in a crate. To activate the new mode, press right on your control pad. You will now have your own Peacemaker, which works without the long charging-up time that hampers the performance of Sig's pre-historic model. Admittedly, the rate of fire is low, but the bullets send out energy rays upon impact, which means that they can hit several targets at once . The gun only holds a few bullets, new ammunition is rare, and each clip only contains one cartridge. But apart from that, it's great.

Of course you've probably thinking that the colour code of the Peacemaker is not, strictly speaking, black but purple. But come on, purple isn't really that menacing, unless it's worn by the Spanish Inquisition. Who exactly could you intimidate with a purple gun? "Huh, huh, this guy is pointing a purple gun at us... Hey, mate, that just doesn't work!

ACT 3.3

Win Class 2 Race at Stadium

Erol can be found hanging around at the Race Garage, giving his future female mechanic Kiera the visual once-over. He's hoping that she'll fall for a modest, charming, winner such as himself. Following a few ill-considered words from Keira, Jak leaves in a huff. And who's left to save the day, huh?

Daxter, you'll have to win this race for our team. We need this win to qualify for the final championship!

Since Daxter has always paid attention, he knows exactly how to win a race: you hold on tight, head straight for the goal and keep pressing the gadget that makes it accelerate. And guess what – speed is good! Or something like that ... So nothing can go wrong, really. If you're not sure, read up on the basics on how to operate an Air Racer on page 91. It's the same as steering Jak, that's for sure. But the most important thing really is: put your foot down using ⊗.

The good news is that there is a shortcut on this racetrack too. The bad news is that this involves another big leap over a deep and deadly abyss. You will recognise the relevant stretch by the dark pillars with the orange lights (Fig. 1). Race straight towards the gap to the right of the left tower (Fig. 2) and jump off at the last moment using L1 or R1 (Fig. 3). Keep the jump button pressed down until you land. Of course, you must make sure that you are not rammed by anything prior to jumping.

Your jump will only cut a small corner, but it will still save you valuable seconds. If you have problems with your jumping skills you can always try to win the race by taking the regular route instead. Or you could attempt to cut another corner further down the track. To do so, follow the bend normally as mentioned above, take a right behind the blue pillar, continue right, up towards the orange pillars, and then jump over the abyss (Fig. 4, 5, 6). Rest assured, Jak and his fast, furious and furry friend will be reunited after Daxter's inevitable victory. Together again, hopefully never to part. It's all quite moving, really.

Protect Hideout from Blast Bots

Several Krimzon Blast Bots are moving closer to our hideout. These are armoured bombs which seek out targets. If any of those Blast Bots reach this place, we're dead! You must try and stop them in good time. Good hunting!

You will initially see two blinking dots on the map, but be careful – three bombs are actually coming your way. Crafty, eh! One will be coming from the direction of the Water Slums and two will follow shortly after from the direction of the Industrial Zone. Timing is crucial in this mission: if you simply wait in the vicinity of the hideout, all three infernal machines will reach you almost simultaneously. A far from ideal situation, unless you have eight hands. If you snatch a vehicle and dash off in the direction of the Water Slums, you'll encounter the relentless Blast Bot somewhere in the vicinity of the Dead Town gates. You will then be faced with a mad dash if if you want to get back in time to intercept the Blast Bot coming from the other direction.

You will therefore be much better off heading for the Industrial Zone first of all. The Blast Bots are hard to fight from the relative safety of your vehicle, since they paralyse all vehicles within range with their "proximity defences". This means that you must jump out of your vehicle as soon as you see the robot and run directly towards it. The Blast Bot will then unleash its firepower immediately above your head (Fig. 1). It will take approximately 60 shots from your Blue Gun to blow up a single Blast Bot. The Black Gun is a much more effective weapon here, as it will take less than ten hits to do the same job. When the Blast Bots stops firing and collapses into a heap, quickly run to the side to avoid being damaged by the subsequent explosion.

Provided that everything went smoothly, you will now encounter the second Blast Bot just around the corner in front of the Sewers flood gate. Should the nearby gun station spring into action, it would be best to let the Blast Bot advance a little further. Otherwise, there will simply be too many energy flashes with your name written all over them. Don't take too long as you must quickly return to the area in front of the hideout where you will have to intercept the last Blast Bot. When the metallic marauder gets too close to its target, a countdown will be displayed at the top of your screen (Fig. 2). But this will only happen nine seconds before the end – too late unless you are already in the vicinity.

If you find that you need several attempts to complete this mission, it will probably be because you keep running out of ammunition. The crates in front of the hideout will only contain a few yellow and blue magazines. Collect them all and keep selecting Restart Mission until you have fully stocked up on ammunition.

ACT 3.5

Beat Erol in Race Challenge

Krew, the flying member of the underworld, would like Jak to lose his final championship race against Erol, so that he can cream off the gambling proceeds himself. But he is surely counting his chickens before they are hatched: Erol just happens to be here too – what an amaaazing coincidence – and he is challenging you to a race.

In a hurry to die, boy?! Well, we don't have to wait for the big race! We may as well sling it out here and now: a city-wide race through the accelerator rings. Miss even one ring, and it's over! I will prove to Kiera once and for all that you're a loser.

Jak, before you mount the saddle you can use the first person viewpoint to check out Erol's cute little helmet with the fancy beetle design. Wow, totally super macho ... Are you going to get one of those too?

Mount the Zoomer in front of the Hip Hog Saloon and put your foot down! Fly straight through the first ring. As the name suggests, the accelerator rings give you an acceleration boost. And as Erol said before, you must fly through all the rings. If you miss one, you will have to turn around and try to fly through a second time. It is better, therefore, to brake once too often or at least take your foot (finger) off the accelerator than to lose valuable time because you've missed a ring and been forced to backtrack.

As was the case with the stadium race, you can't change the Hover zones here. You can only fly on one level. As usual, the blue triangle on the map will mark your position. The other triangle represents Erol's position. You will also see the next few rings flashing there too. Try to anticipate your next move as you drive. You can usually tell from the direction of the ring which path you should take next. However, to be on the safe side, pause the game at regular intervals using (SELECT). That way you can use the map to see exactly what lies ahead of you.

After having cleared the first ring take a jump at the bridge to the right before turning directly into the street leading to the gardens, where the next series of rings is located. On the other side of the grassy area swerve round and go through the West Bazaar where the last door near the sharp bend looks set for a good ramming. You can, of course, also slow down (Fig. 1), but what fun would that be? The next few rings in front of the Palace are also rather difficult to negotiate, but you can do it.

Afterwards, fly round the Statue of Mar in an anti-clockwise direction, then continue to your right, past the Palace. Turn right, past the hall behind the Palace and head towards the picturesque canal. When you reach the ring on the bridge, race over the railing and down into the canal (Fig. 2). There will be a ramp leading out of the waterway at the far end – make sure you don't crash into one of the house walls (Fig. 3) in your excitement. The rings will then lead you further north-west in the direction of the Stadium.

You must be particularly careful when the next stretch of canal appears in front of you (Fig. 4). A ring will be hidden behind the corner to the right. If you are going too fast and charge straight into the canal, your challenge will be virtually over. You must approach the canal through the ring. Follow the direction of the water, until you reach the Stadium. Envious Erol will be forced to finally admit that Jak & Daxter are the fastest, best-looking and cleverest of men. And Ottsel.

ACT 3.6

Get Life Seed in Dead Town

After you have shown Erol which side his bread is buttered on, Samos will ask for your help via walkie-talkie. You can also choose to help Vin, but Dead Town is more or less on your way.

Boys, you must go and fetch something for me from my old shack in Dead Town. It is something that I hid there a long time ago. And while you're there, it wouldn't hurt if you dusted the place for a change, Baxter!

Near the entrance area of Dead Town you will find a particularly fine toy that weighs in at just under three tons: the Titan Power Suit™. Climb in and turn the nearby wall into rubble. (Everything you can pulverise will be marked in red.) The first Metal Head will come running to see who knocked on the door. Greet them with a nice slap in the face. And because the whole thing is so much fun, smash the next wall on the right too (Fig. 1). Make sure you give the two Grunts behind the wall a taste of their own medicine before breaking down yet another wall.

Titan Power Suit™

Using the Power Suit's huge mechanical arms you will be able to dish out tremendous punishment by pressing either ◎ or □. Thanks to its Dual Thrust Jump Jets, the Mech can also do amazing hops; simply activate the thrust by pressing ⊗. A display informing you of the condition of your Power Suit will appear at the top of the screen. Beware, you will sink rapidly the instant that you venture into water. When you are wearing the suit you won't be able to use the first person view. It will only become available again once you climb out of the suit by pressing △. You'll also discover that by pressing R1 you can make a strange hand movement (Fig. 2). This is actually intended for lifting or pushing boulders, but it could easily be mistaken for an offensive gesture used by particularly irritable people.

Do not underestimate the Metal Heads. Once those monsters have managed to get close to you, they will seriously damage your fine metal suit. They will also be very hard to shake off. After having dismantled a few walls, finish off the monsters in the usual way. Alternatively, you can surf around the walls with your Jet Board and remove any kind of danger to man or machine.

You will see a concrete block on the floor behind the third wall. Push it close to the wall with R1 (Fig. 3) and use it as a step. Climb up and get out of the suit. Now you can get the Precursor Orb on the wall to your left if you wish. Next, wipe out the Rapid Gunner who will be guarding the breakable wall at the end of the corridor on the right. Having done that, get back into the suit and punch through the wall. Go through and push another concrete boulder against the wall on the left.

Climb out of the suit again, then jump up onto the wall and eliminate the two Rapid Gunners who will be hanging around up there. Now take your shiny machine up there and push another boulder against the wall at the back. You must be careful when jumping onto the wall as another Rapid Gunner will be shooting at you from the adjoining building (Fig. 4). Either try to shoot him dead quickly or walk along the wall and head right, towards the next ruin, resplendent in your Power Suit. The latter option is only advisable if your machine has remained relatively unscathed so far. Either way, make sure you knock down the marked pillar (Fig. 5), so that you can use it as a bridge.

If you have not already dealt with the Rapid Gunner just mentioned, he will now start shooting at you. Time to eliminate him for good, especially as there is a chunk of rubble with your name on it on the floor next to him. Lift it up with the Power Suit, turn round, and take a few steps back the way that you came. Turn left near your improvised bridge. On the next platform on the other side you will see another dilapidated pillar (Fig. 6). Using ◻, throw the block at it, so that the pillar collapses. Should you miss your target, another block will appear on the same spot where you found the first one. Use it for your second attempt.

Now walk across the second overturned pillar, lift up the block and throw it through the brick wall (Fig. 7). Jump over the gap and through the newly made opening. You could jump down through the opening in the wall opposite, but we don't recommend it! Instead, turn left and knock down yet another pillar. This will help you get to Samos' old shack. There you will find the Life Seed, which you have to take to Onin in the Bazaar.

Are you still collecting those weird Easter eggs? How about dashing across the water for a while on your Jet Board? I seem to recall seeing a few orb-shaped objects below the building in the east ... And I like the feel of the wind in my fur.

ACT 3.7

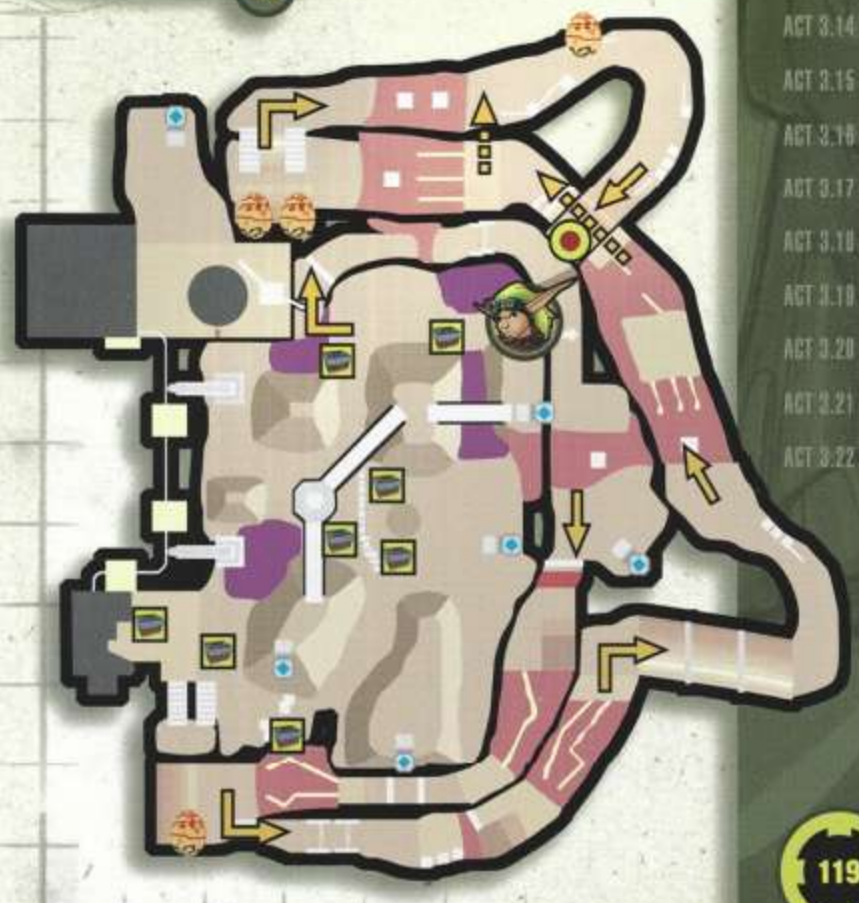
Destroy Eggs in Strip Mine

We've detected a cluster of Metal Head eggs over at the Strip Mine site. Now, you've got to go back there and find a way to destroy those eggs, before they turn into a whole new army of creatures.

On your arrival through the Warp Gate you will see the Metal Head eggs on your right. Above them, there will be a large container suspended on a crane, perfectly poised to crush those pesky eggs. You will need your Jet Board to get up there and send it crashing down. Surf directly ahead, then turn right near the Eco lake and continue up the slope and past the little house with the drills. Jump over the moving platform. On the left you will see the remains of the turret into which you threw a plasmite bomb some time ago. Ah, happy memories! This time, keep going straight ahead, past the giant chainsaws and over the gap. It will then be time to get off your board and find out how the land lies.

In front of you a yellow pipe will lead up to the next platform (Fig. 1): time for some good grinding action, right? A little yellow mark on the ground is evidently there to point you in the right direction. Get into position, take out the Jet Board and jump onto the pipe. Press ◻ to grind. To maintain speed, press the stick forward, then steer to the right at the sharp bend.

The next set of pipes will be waiting for you beyond two more chainsaws. This time you can choose whether you want to change direction once or twice. The right-hand pipe is the easier of the two to grind. Either way, you must have enough momentum when grinding across the pipe of your choice to make the jump at the end (Fig. 2). Snatch the Orb in the corner, then head left, up to the next section. By the way, should the normal obstacles, i.e. saws and drilling pipes, pose any problems, you can climb over them on foot. The Jet Board is only required for grinding.



Talking of pipes: you will need sufficient momentum to make the jump onto the next set of pipes. You can use the ramp on the right to take a run-up (Fig. 3). You can now have fun in the half-pipe and recover a little before you gear yourself up for the next jump. Leap off the upper lip when you want to move on. At the next gap, you will have to take a massive jump onto one of the moving platforms and from there onto one of the three pipes (Fig. 4). Take off as soon as the platform starts moving from the left towards the right, jump onto the platform and from there immediately jump onto the pipe on the right. (Caution: if your speed is too high and you only jump off at the last moment, you may plunge into the hole between the slab and the pipe). The next obstacle awaiting you will be a pipe with a gap in the middle. Jump onto the pipe, grind for a very short time and then jump over the gap.

Things will really start to heat up behind the little drilling house: your job will be to grind across one of the three pipes. When you reach the end of the pipe, jump onto one of the moving platforms and straight on across the gap. At the back, behind the ramp, you will find not one but two Precursor Orbs. Then continue onto the third stage where you will have to cover a large distance riding on two more moving platforms. You've done it! Breathe a sigh of relief, then surf or walk through the tunnel on the right. At the end, take a big leap onto the container below (Fig. 5). Congratulations, the eggs are flat. Poached or fried? You decide.

I am certainly not trying to suggest that these last few jumps are a bit too hard for you, but I, for one, am keen to dispense with them. Why don't you take a shortcut and jump up to the next level using the rocks near to the little drilling house (Fig. 6). Unfortunately you will have to forgo the two Orbs if you opt to take the easier route. Orbs or frustration? The decision is yours – for a change ...

Protect Samos in Haven Forest

ACT 3.8

Thanks for saving the Life Seed. I will prepare it for Samos. Take the energised Life Seed to young Samos in Haven Forest. It will give Samos the power he needs to finally see the forest from the trees!

After Onin has prepared the Life Seed in her tent – and after a little verbal sparring between Pecker and Daxter – take the energised Life Seed to Samos. You will find the sage – relatively young at present but old in future – under the large tree to the south-west of Haven Forest (Fig. 1). No sooner have you handed him the magic object than the inevitable Krimzon Guards will appear, intent on sticking a spoke in Samos' ecologically friendly wheel. You must repel them long enough to give Samos time to meditate and ask the plants vital questions about the future.

How nice that he gets to sit back and have a rest while you do all the grunt work.

More and more Krimzon Guards will start jumping out of the two transport ships, accompanied by several crack troops sporting jetpacks. The foot soldiers will charge up the two wooden ramps, whereas the airmen will take the more direct route. Some foot soldiers will run to Samos and attack him using their energy beamers. Most of them will attack you first, however. The crates next to the left-hand ramp will only contain ammunition, so you must survive for the duration without any Health Paks.

The first attackers will charge up the left-hand ramp, so give them a suitably warm welcome (Fig. 2). When other Guards start to show up in the background, you should concentrate on taking out the attackers in your immediate vicinity before turning your attention to the newcomers. Samos must survive the mission at all costs. Fortunately, it will take several hits before the herbalist kicks the bucket.

It is imperative not to lose track of the enemy during this mission. Position yourself close to the levitating Samos, keeping your back to the wall. You will be safe there from the rocket-propelled men above you, and it will also be a convenient position from which to fire at the Krimzon Guard with your Blue Gun. Keep moving around your immediate vicinity, eyeballs peeled at all times to avoid being taken by surprise by the guards. During the short ceasefires, jump onto the walls behind and fire at the rocket-propelled men. If you can manage not to tie a knot in your fingers when switching from one weapon to another, use the Peacemaker against them.

By the way, your bullets will not harm Samos even if sometimes you wish they would! This means that you can fire merrily in all directions without any scruples (Fig. 3). The combat will rage for quite some time, but once the red transporters start taking off it means that you are safe to fight another day. At this point Samos will relate what the plants have revealed to him: the Baron wants to break open the Precursor Stone. However, this would release an unimaginable amount of energy. It would destroy the planet ... and all life upon it!

ACT 3.9

Rescue Lurkers for Brutter

My men are being held prisoners by the Baron ... and treated like animals. Please, save six Lurker brothers quickly, and Brutter will kiss your feet!

Brutter

Brutter is a shining example of the development of the Lurkers, from a dangerous animal to a self-employed businessman with his own trinket stand. His special offers are always exquisite. The same can also be said of the rewards he hands out for completing his assignments.

The fish icon on the map will have lured you to Brutter's stand, and indeed the dealer in trinkets won't let you go without another assignment. This time he has a particularly attractive reward for you. Well, finally, a little treat to look forward to...

You will already be familiar with the principle of how to set free the Lurkers. First, fly to one of the blinking dots on the map. One of them will guide you to the gardens in the south, in the direction of the port. Destroy the flying cage, land next to the Lurker and let him climb on board. You don't have to deliver him to Brutter, though. Take him to the location of the dot that will now be blinking on the map. There's a round hatch in one corner of the gardens (Fig. 1) through which your hitchhiker can dive to safety. Afterwards, repeat the action with the second Lurker transporter, which will be patrolling close by.

Turn north. Two more Lurkers must be saved in the other garden area near the Mountain gate. You will find their exit hatch in the north-east of the park. Escort the last two Lurkers around an area even further to the north, through the west Stadium section. You should be familiar with the procedure by now, only the heavy traffic in the crowded city could get in your way. The gun station close to the hatch is easy enough to destroy (Fig. 2), but it will keep re-activating after you've blown it up, so don't waste your bullets. Just make your drop and get out of there in one piece.

Should you happen to leave a Lurker behind, because a vehicle has exploded, for example, don't worry – the position of the waiting passenger will be marked by a green dot. Fortunately, shots cannot hurt Brutter's brood. If you succeed in ferrying all the Lurkers to safety, Jak and Daxter will be appointed honorary members of the Lurker tribe by Brutter. This is probably way beyond their wildest dreams. In addition, Brutter promises to lend assistance at any time. You will be sure to take him up on that offer one of these days.

Destroy Drill Platform Tower

I've underestimated this Baron, and now it appears he has taken the boy as well! You boys must return to the Drill Platform one more time in order to destroy the main controls. It should temporarily stop the Baron's use of Eco to harm us.

Kor will hand this assignment to you in the Power Station. Your job will be to destroy ten control desks in the Drill Platform tower. Get into the Power Suit, which will be behind the Warp Gate, and keep banging against the metal door until it caves in. Take the lift down and tread carefully towards the laser barrier at the back. When you arrive, bang against the door three times and then go through the opening. In the next room place the Power Suit on the lift panel on the platform to the far left of the room, then climb out of the suit (Fig. 1).

You must now press the lever on the upper level. To reach it, jump over the two platforms at the other end of the room (Fig. 2). Naturally, they will fold away soon after you've stepped on them, so tread lightly. Quickly ward off the two Grunts up there and then press the lever so that the Power Suit will be taken up on the platform. Get back into the suit and smash the door. In the next room you must hop over a few platforms in your heavy suit. That shouldn't be too much of a problem, though. Make sure that you land on the flaming platform (Fig. 3) just before the exit, rather than stopping on the small square platform, as the latter will fold away sending you plummeting.

Get out of the suit once you are in the chamber. You will see a few Grunts in the corridor in front of you as well as two levers. The levers serve to move small platforms upward, which will help you to jump over the big gap in your Power Suit (Fig. 4). The simplest way of activating the levers is by taking a well-aimed shot at them. Otherwise, you must cross the gap using a long jump. This means that you will then have to press the levers by hand and go back to retrieve the Power Suit.

You will now have to walk across a small footbridge – beware of the three laser barriers. In the last room in front of the tower you will need to cross a very narrow footbridge under which flames will be blazing. As usual, the platforms on the edge will not support much weight. If you have been careful so far, your Power Suit should still be relatively undamaged. Move when the flames disappear and jump up when they reappear. Jump carefully over the gaps and before you know it, you will be on the other side. Next, go into the lift on the left.

You must eliminate the Grunts in the control room and destroy all ten terminals (Fig. 5): four on each of the two pillars and two in the adjoining room. You will have about one and a half minutes before the whole place blows up. Jak will get out of the Power Suit, and you will have to run all the way back on foot as fast as you can.

The platforms in the first room will now prove useful. Jump off the footbridge and onto the first platform on the right-hand side before the flames start blazing again (Fig. 6). Before the platform folds away, jump over the other platforms to reach the other side. You must make it to the door by the Warp Gate before you run out of time. It's a close call, so don't mess around unnecessarily.

ACT 3.11

Win Class 1 Race in Stadium

I've been building a replica of our crashed Rift Rider machine from old artefacts. But I'm still missing two pieces: an artefact called the "Time Map" and an old energy gem the history books call the "Heart of Mar". But first of all you will have to win the race against Erol. Leave them in the dust, Jak!

As you can see on the map on the bottom right-hand side fo the screen, this track has two official shortcuts. The first one goes down to the right immediately after the start (Fig. 1). If you delay your start briefly and let the others rev past you, you can turn in there immediately. The most dangerous spot on the course is at the end of the long bend (at the bottom right on the map) where someone has carelessly placed a hole in the centre of the track (Fig. 2). The ditches at the side of the track are tiresome, but at least they're not deadly.

Make use of the long straight sections to apply your turbo boost. It's also important that you hit the hairpin curve at exactly the right moment (Fig. 3), cutting into the bend sharply, before speeding up again.

The second shortcut (top left on the map) will enable you to cut off a small part of the track, although you will miss out on a turbo ball (Fig. 4). This is only worth doing if you can manage to negotiate the bend without ramming the opposite wall. And you will still have to watch out for the first shortcut, which will appear on your right immediately after the Start/Finish line. Never forget the hole in the track at the end of the long bend. It's a killer!

Of course the Baron won't be at all pleased about having to greet Jak as the valiant champion. Luckily Erol proves to be a bad loser but manages to unwittingly save the day. In the commotion which follows the Purple Palace Security Pass will fall into your hands. And just guess where that will take you?

ACT 3.12

Explore Palace

You can go through the front door of the Palace completely unmolested once you have the Purple Security Pass from the Class 1 Race. If, for some reason, you have forgotten where it is – a red Ashelin icon on the map will show you the way. In the sparse anteroom climb into the lift and go up to the throne room where you will meet Ashelin. With Vin's help you can convince her that her father must be stopped.

Right now, my father is meeting Krew at a secret Weapons Factory near the Big. Here is my Black Security Pass. This will allow you access to the factory. But you will have to get out on your own. This conversation never took place.

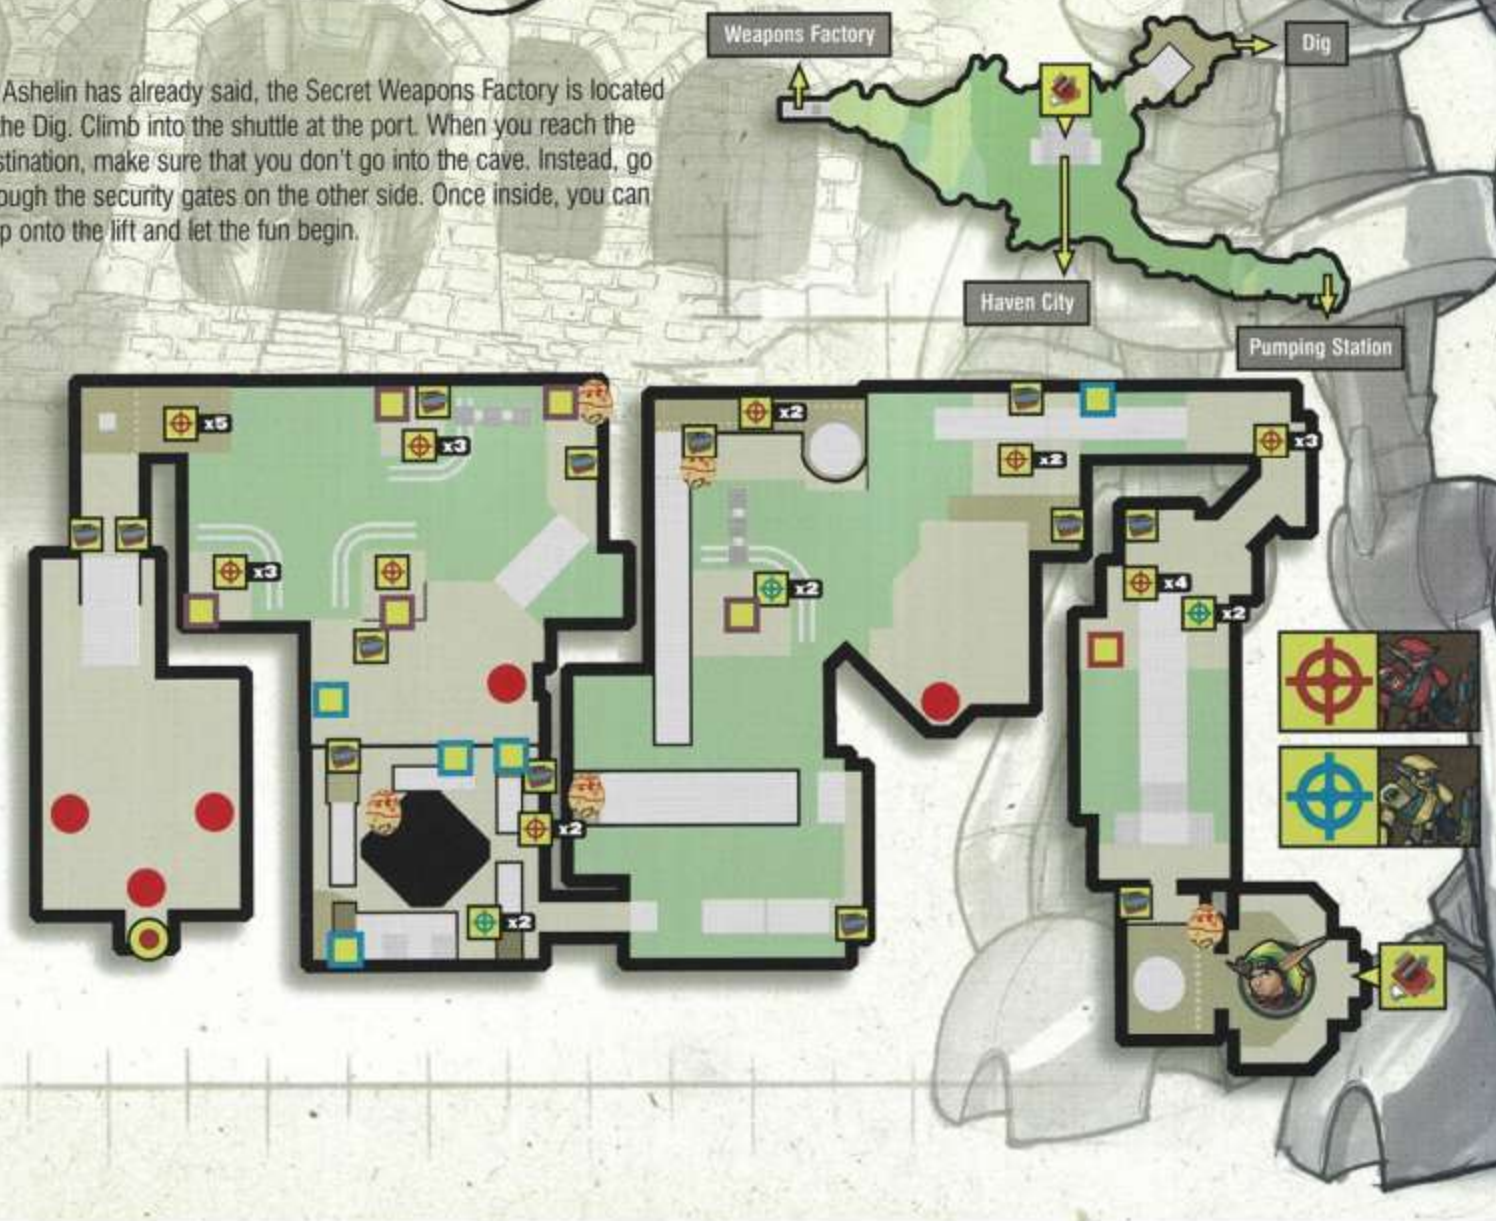
You can reach the outer section of the Palace by dropping down through the duct set into the wall of the throne room. You will then have to cross a large outer chamber, negotiating rapidly folding-up platforms and other annoying hindrances. During this time numerous Krimzon Guards will attempt to stop you by shooting at you. The path will end in front of a large window, which you can break by firing a shot. You will then have to get out your Jet Board and grind along the edge of the window frame (Fig. 1). At the end of the frame jump to your right onto the platform and then put the board away quickly so that you don't slip over the edge.

Take a turn to your right into the lobby, which is in front of the throne room. The lift door will be locked, so go left and grind more rails to return to the outer chamber (Fig. 2). Another delegation of Krimzon Guards will immediately reveal itself over on your right. Once you've mopped them up, you will have to shoot down the large ring from the ceiling. Grind across it to reach the far side (Fig. 3). Now there will only be a few more jumps and Guards separating you from the back entrance of the lift, where you can make your final escape from the palace.

Get Heart of Mar in Weapons Lab

ACT 3.13

As Ashelin has already said, the Secret Weapons Factory is located at the Dig. Climb into the shuttle at the port. When you reach the destination, make sure that you don't go into the cave. Instead, go through the security gates on the other side. Once inside, you can step onto the lift and let the fun begin.



The factory is ahead of us. The secret factory. The Secret Weapons Factory. And you know what that means, don't you? The more secretive the place is, the greater the number of people who know about it. People such as Guards, soldiers, elite troops, let alone the electrical and mechanical staff. Even a few stray moths... I'm looking forward to seeing how you get us out of this mess. Talking of mess: whatever you do, don't attempt to surf over the deadly green stuff with your Jet Board...

There will be six Krimzon Guards waiting at the end of the conveyor belt. That should be fun. Take advantage of your superior weaponry and jump onto the red switch on the left, to turn off the energy barrier. Hordes of opponents will be waiting in the next corridor, so keep it locked and loaded. Shoot at the red switch on the right-hand side (Fig. 1), so that it turns blue, allowing you to ride the conveyor belt to the top. Jump off to your left.

Krimzon robots will emerge from an opening in the ceiling (Fig. 2). First of all, they will roll around like boulders. Don't allow yourself to be rammed! Fire at them to make them open up and then shoot them quickly before they start to roll up again. You will be safest on the level behind, where they will be unable to hit you. As soon as you've dispatched the droids, the bridge swings over. Eliminate the guards on the other side and cross over the bridge. When you reach the other side, you will have to turn another wheel to make the bridge swing back to its original position. To do this, step onto the wheel or jump up beside it and do a spin (Fig. 3). Then go over the bridge and step on the lift over on the right. Ride it you up to the next floor. Take care, two Krimzon Guards will be waiting for you when you arrive.

After dealing with the Guards you will have to run up the conveyor belt which will be rolling in the opposite direction. Two circular saws will make matters even more difficult for you. When the front saw is turned towards you (Fig. 4), start to run and take a forward roll followed by a long jump. This will be your fastest way of moving forward and leaving the danger spot behind you. Once you have reached the end, jump onto the conveyor belt. At the bottom you will see two folded-up platforms with red crosshair markings on the underside (Fig. 5). If you shoot at them, the platforms will drop down and you can jump on them. Hop onto the sloping conveyor belt to your right. When you reach the end, you will then have to shoot at another platform opposite to make it fold down too. If you take a long jump from the edge you will reach the other side.

Wipe out all the guards in the next room and turn the conveyor belt switch to blue. You can also change the direction of the second conveyor belt higher up. The switch for this will be at the upper end. The third conveyor belt, which will be moving towards you, is very quick. However, on the right side you can fold down two more platforms by using the same methods as before (Fig. 6). Next there will be two short conveyor belts awaiting you. The switch to change directions will be hanging over the bottom end.

There will still be plenty of work to do. Jump to the next level. Krimzon robots will emerge from the machine in front of you. There will be a switch on the left side, which is protected by an energy barrier (Fig. 7). The barrier will disappear once you have destroyed all the robots. Then you can turn the switch to blue by firing at it before continuing onwards up the wide conveyor belt. From here, you will have to reach the north-west end of the hall. First of all, you should wipe out as many Krimzon Guards as possible in order to swing the bridge to and fro using the screws.

Always keep an eye on your opponents. There will be a large group of them stationed very close to your destination (Fig. 8). They intend to stop you from stamping on the conspicuous panel on the ground. However, don't let them have the satisfaction. After stopping them in their tracks you will arrive in a hall with three openings. As you approach, five robots will emerge from each opening. Once you have eradicated them all a lift will open up to take you to the meeting with Krew. The final meeting! And the Baron isn't even there. Pity.

ACT 3.14

Beat Krew in Weapons Lab

My Piercer Bomb is able to penetrate the Precursor Stone and release the untold energy inside! Just take this Gun Upgrade and forget what you saw here. If you don't, it will mean war!

Gun Upgrade 3

This Gun Upgrade increases the damage that you can cause with each shot. It was a bit stupid of Krew to give it to you!

Krew will be hovering around outside, far beyond your reach, and will start by sending numerous little green ectoplasm Krews after you. They steer relatively slowly, but will head steadfastly towards you. If you touch them at any point, it will cost you two energy units. Above all, try and avoid hitting them. Use the Red or Blue weapon to wipe them all out; you will need two hits for each one. After having eradicated approximately 20 mini-Krews the original Krew will come flying towards you in the very real, very wobbly, flesh.

Krew's energy meter will appear on the bottom right of the screen. This is your cue to fire at your old employer with all guns blazing (Fig. 1), in an effort to reduce his energy by one third. Afterwards, the green substitute Krews will reappear and the fight will go into the second round. You will now have to survive another attack by the cloned fighters. It isn't nice, but there's nothing you can do about it. The original Krew will only appear when all the clones have been destroyed. By the way, they will become more menacing from one round to the next.

The threshold to the lift shaft is a good spot for warding off the doppelgangers (Fig. 2). This position will have the advantage that all the attackers will be coming towards you and therefore nobody can attack you from the rear. The disadvantage is this: if the attacker manages to get through, you will most probably be pushed into the shaft. There's not much else to point out regarding your fight with Krew. Just make sure that you have your trusty Blue Gun to hand. After winning, you will be picked up by Ashelin (at last!) and then set down at the port.

ACT 3.15

Beat the Whack-a-Metal Game

Krew has hidden something in this Whack-a-Metal machine. I think you should have a go and see what happens. Off you go, Daxter, you animal you!

So, blondie, leave me alone for just a second, won't ya? I know I'm adorable, but I have important Ottsel work to do. Krew has hidden something in his slot machine in the Hip Hog Saloon, and we both know that he probably won't need it any more. And I know how to get it – with an extra portion of Daxter's dextrose.

The principle of the game is quite simple: there are eight openings where heads will pop up. When you see a grey or gold head, hit it with the club! Don't touch the red heads, which are surrounded by electrical discharges. Each opening has been allocated a button on the controller. The four on the left side can be activated using the directional pad and those on the right can be activated with the four corresponding icon buttons (Fig. 1).

A grey head will always pop up first. Hit it! You can also strike the empty openings. That won't do anybody any harm. The main thing is to make sure that you hit the right heads. You will receive ten points for each head. Daxter will "store" your commands. If you should happen to press the respective buttons too fast the result will follow on immediately afterwards. Therefore, don't go blindly bashing away on the controls without giving it some thought. Remember, accidentally hitting the red heads will give you an electric shock (Fig. 2). When you hit one of them, Daxter will be sent into a spin for a short while and be unable to hit out. Don't, whatever you do, miss hitting the gold skulls (Fig. 3), as they are worth 50 points.

At the start, eight grey heads will emerge followed by a red one and then a gold one. The whole sequence will then start operating randomly. Your ultimate aim will be to reach 1500 points. When you have achieved this, the slot machine will spit out the Time Map. The game will end prematurely after you have made 20 errors. A mistake will be judged to have occurred if you fail to hit a gold or grey Metal Head before it disappears. It will be considered as two mistake if you hit a red head. The display on the left side of the screen will show how many mistakes you can still afford to make.

As with Onin's Game, we can't give you too many hints for this game which is designed to test your reactions. If you find it too difficult, you'll have to find a second person to take care of the other half of the controls. The joy at finding the Time Map will be short lived, because the Metal Heads have finally penetrated the security wall surrounding the city, and the streets will no longer be safe. Wonder how Vin will be feeling? As there will now be a permanent red alert, you can no longer tackle the mini-missions at the "question mark" booths. You can try for a High Score on the Whack-a-Metal Game any time you like, when you visit the Hip Hog Saloon.

ACT 3.16 Find Sig in Under Port

I think Krew sent Sig on one last mission. Something about using Mar's Ruby Key to open a secret door in the Under Port. Be careful when you search for him!

A new icon on the map will lure you to the western tower in the port. After the door has opened, take the lift down and then climb into the Titan Power Suit™. The room will start to flood and a gate will open. A display on the right of the screen will show you how much oxygen you have left. If the display falls to zero, your underwater excursion will end prematurely. You can easily fill up your oxygen supply by standing on one of the bright blue fields (Fig. 1).

As you make your way towards Sig, you will pass numerous magnetic underwater mines (Fig. 2). You should either destroy them immediately or go around them. You can force open the grid gates that bar your way with a couple of blows.

The cockroach-like Metal Heads love to eat you (Fig. 3). Send them into the world beyond with one hit from your powerful metal arm. If one of the monsters manages to wind his tentacle around your machine, this will use up a lot of energy. In the first room, go up the stairs where one of these sea monsters lurks and fall into the hole. When you've reached the bottom, break through the grid and follow the path lined with mines until you reach a larger room where four platforms are fixed with clips (Fig. 4). Hit all of them to loosen them from their moorings. The platforms will now float to the surface.

Step onto the square block that will also take you up to the surface. Hop over the platforms... this is easier said than done, because they move around slightly on top of the water. Aim to land in the middle, and try not to dither for too long. When you reach the other side jump through the hole, take the Orb from the corner, and then smash through the grid.

Continue on your way upward, over the bridge, and onward until you reach a room with a deep ditch at the end. Two moving pillars will help you to get across here (Fig. 5). Take a big jump from the edge of the taller pillar to cross the ditch. The next chamber will bring you to a floodgate where you can climb out of your high-tech machine. Shortly afterwards you will stumble across Sig.

ACT 3.17

Escort Sig in Under Dort

Krew sent me down here to open some old doors with that Ruby Key you found, and when I did, Metal Heads came streaming in from some passage outside the city walls. Man, was I set up! Come on, let's get out of here!

Take a long jump towards Sig, and bring him up to date about Krew. Then start on your way home together. After only a couple of steps it will soon become clear why Sig is still here in the cellar: two blocks have to be pushed into hollows in the ground. This was evidently a task too far for the old Wastelander. You will only be able to move the blocks using brute force: blows, spins or shots will do the trick, with shots being the quickest. This should have been right up Sig's alley.

Stand at the corner between both blocks and do a spin (Fig. 1). This will cause the left block to be pushed one space to the left and the right one to move one space towards the door. You will now have to punch or spin the left block four times in the direction of the door until it lands in the hollow. Then run to the other one and hit it forwards twice – into the second hollow. The door will then open. Don't waste any time, because ten seconds after you have moved the first block, both blocks will explode and you will have to start from the beginning again. The explosion can also be dangerous if you're standing too close to it.

There is a la…aarge surprise waiting for you behind the door. Even for Sig's Peacemaker this Metal Head is way too big. Run away from the monster immediately (Fig. 2). Keep jumping from one block to the next, and don't let the moving platforms at the back of the room stop you from reaching your goal. They will never disappear totally into the wall. When you're in the passage jump over the energy beam to reach safety.

Push another block into position. It must be moved three spaces forward and then two spaces to the left. Step onto the small area behind the block and fire at it three times with either the Yellow or Blue Gun. Then jump quickly back over the crevice and fire at the block again twice (Fig. 3). It will land in the hollow, and the door will open.

You will be put under time pressure with the next puzzle, because Sig is continually under attack from Metal Heads, and this unwelcome attention will slowly but surely drain his energy. Meanwhile, two blocks must be pushed into the holes. Shoot the left block (Fig. 4) three spaces forward (towards the door), two to the left, two forward and then one to the left. Afterwards, shoot at the right block so that it moves two spaces to the left (Fig. 5), five spaces forwards (towards the door), and one to the right. The whole exercise must be carried out quickly and smoothly, otherwise the first block will explode before the second block is in the correct position. In this case, you should make sure the second one is in the correct place and then go back to the first block. Before disappearing through the door don't forget to collect the Skull Gems of all the Metal Heads that Sig has just defeated.

You will once again encounter the huge Metal Head monster on the other side of the door. Run behind Sig. Watch out for the revolving platforms, which you will need to turn over with a shot just at the right moment (Fig. 6). They will soon turn upside down again. Then jump over a couple of moving bridges and platforms. There will be two more platforms around the corner. Afterwards, there will only be a couple more platforms and energy barriers, which will be straightforward to navigate. Finally, you will have to dive through the grid in the floor and run over the bridge to shake off your pursuer. Shortly afterwards you will say goodbye to Sig and climb into the lift. It will take you to the south-west end of the port, where you will find that Kiera is calling you over the walkie-talkie to join her at the Stadium.

ACT 3.18 Defend Stadium

Kiera's spanner icon on the map indicates that she has finally bolted together the Rift Rider. It will be standing in the stadium forecourt and must somehow be transported to the Metal Head nest. Just as well that you've a friend like Brutter to give you a hand/paw.

Brutter just knew friends would need lift if Metal Headers attack. Lurker balloons are the finest lifters in the world, but they is easy target. You keep Stadium safe while we prep balloon for lift away.

You don't really mean that seriously, do you? Instead of simply landing the balloon next to Kiera's machine, the Rift Rider has to be transported right across the whole square?!

While Samos and Samos slowly guide the Rift Rider across the square, Metal Heads will be coming at you from all directions (Fig. 1): Stingers, Grunts and Hoppers will all rush headlong to join the party. Neither Samos is particularly good on his feet so they will have to tread very carefully. And slowly. They cannot take a lot of damage nowadays, so you will have to protect them from the marauding Metal Heads. Happily, shots and other attacks simply go through their green skins and out the other side. This means that you have various possibilities: you can stay very close to the old ones and fend off the attackers at the last moment with your Red or Blue Gun. Or you can run around like a headless chicken and shoot at anything that moves. To do this, you must continually move the camera with the right stick so that you can see all the attackers (Fig. 2). For example, after you've confronted the first wave of Stingers, a couple of Grunts will come running down the stairs behind you.

You may find it helpful to transform into Dark Jak during this perilous situation. That way you can dart around both Samoses and spread widespread fear among the Metal Heads. Although they don't really know fear, it's good for the visual effect ...Of course, the skirmish won't last forever, just long enough to get the machine all the way over to the other side. Once you have reached your destination, Kiera and her aged accomplices will hover up and away with the balloon. Jak & Daxter will have to remain and defend Haven City a little longer.

Check the Construction Site

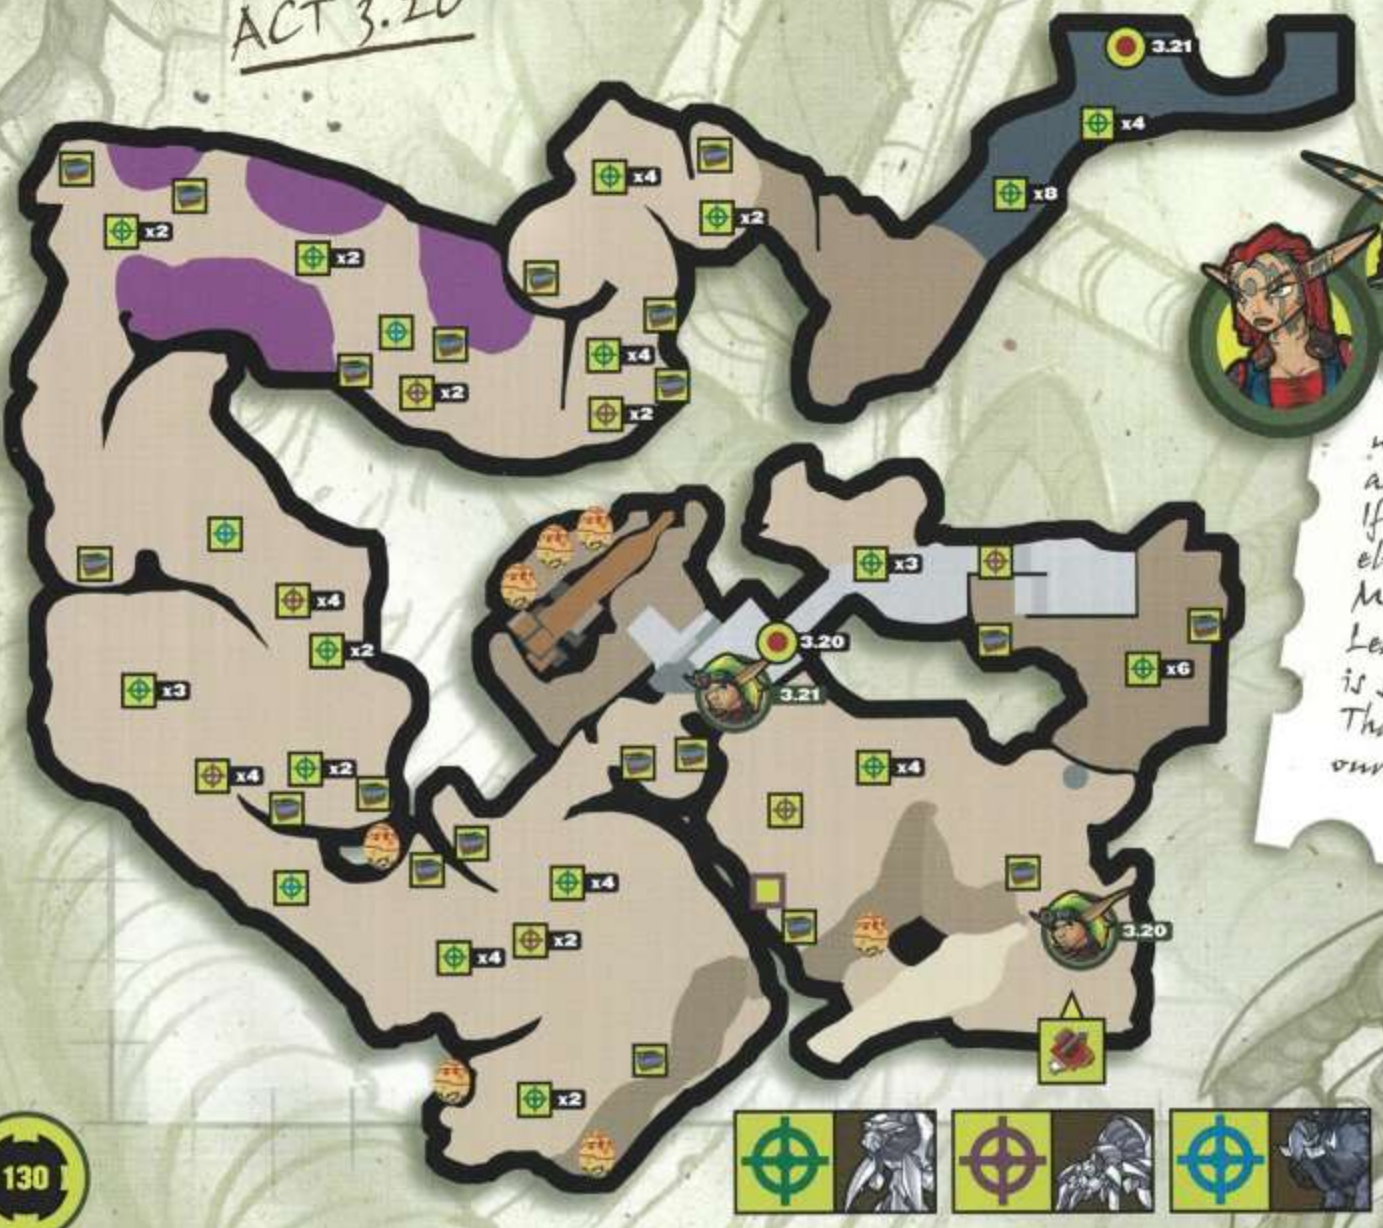
The ... construction ... site...!

A short message on the walkie-talkie will be the only thing that will help you decide what you must do next after successfully defending Samos and Samos at the Stadium. Well, apart from the conspicuous crane icon on the map, maybe. If you are overcome by curiosity and decide to make the icon your next goal, you will find yourself in an isolated area in the western part of the Industrial Zone. When you reach the bottom of the pedestrian ramp, go through the door to the quarry. It will be pitch black inside. Take a few steps ahead of you and then turn to your left and head up the ramp and along the dimly lit passageway. At the top, a door will open automatically, shedding light on the matter.

You will witness a touching reunion scene between the Baron and Kor - and even the Metal Head Leader - in the quarry. Following a short forceful argument between both parties, Jak & Daxter will be left behind. With the Precursor Stone in your luggage set off for the Metal Head Nest. Pick up the Orbs, which are next to the ramp and the cable reel (Fig. 1). You never know where they may come in useful.

Break Barrier at Nest

ACT 3.20



The time has now come to attack the Nest. If you can eliminate the Metal Head Leader, the army is sure to collapse. That is probably our only chance.

The shuttle in the port will set you down close to the Nest. You will then have to fight your way through the last few metres. And they will seem never ending! A hoard of Mantis will hop out of the sandy ground (Fig. 1). These quick Metal Heads will suddenly come jumping towards you, and they can cover extremely long distances with just one jump. You should either shoot wildly with the Blue Gun or wait cold-bloodedly for your attackers and then send anything in your vicinity to the devil using your Red Gun. The Flying Spiders are particularly unwelcome new arrivals. The first of these creatures will land some way in front of you, and it will take a while before it appears to be doing anything. However, it will suddenly start to shoot at you using its built-in weapons (Fig. 2). Prevention is better than cure, so make sure you wipe out the Flying Spider before it's too late.

In the background, by the wall, you will see a screw. Turn it with a spin attack to make a metal piston emerge from the ground at the rear of the landing spot. Climb up and follow the path through the concrete rubble, along the wall until you reach the top (Fig. 3). Here, too, numerous Mantis will attempt to stop you. You will finally reach Mar's old Super Weapon behind a crack in the wall. He intended to use this weapon in order to force open the Metal Head Nest. How careless of the Metal Heads not to dismantle it!

ACT 3.21

Attack the Metal Head Nest

What? You mean go in there? Ahh... I'm right behind you!

After you have blown up the entrance to the nest, you will still have to cross a heavily Metal Head infested section. Much easier said than done. If you're arachnophobic it's time to close your eyes. Go down to your right to the large, empty clearing. There will be a small army of Mantis hiding in the sand, and a couple of Flying Spiders are also in the vicinity. This means that you should move forward very carefully, step by step, so that the greater strength and sheer numbers of the enemy doesn't overwhelm you (Fig. 1). As long as you don't move forward any further, there should not be any more opponents. Don't run towards the Mantis or try to dodge them. Just keep your progress slow, steady and simple.

You can continue towards the Nest by going to your right up the slope. Several Flying Spiders will be lurking around in the background. In addition, a giant Grunt Elephant will be slowly approaching you. These giants are harmless as long as you make a detour around them. You should also avoid the energy flashes emanating from the side (Fig. 2). There aren't many special features on your way to your goal apart from the continual hordes of marauding Mantis. On a positive note, there are, surprisingly, many Krimzon Guard crates on the edges of the pathway. You'll certainly be grateful for the ammunition and Health Paks.

Make sure that you can always see what is coming towards you. Once you have cleared an area, you will be safe from any further opponents there. Always go to the corners and take a look at what is hopping out of the ground to pre-empt any nasty surprises. And don't, whatever you do, storm impatiently towards tempting crates; you may be ambushed by crafty Metal Heads lying in wait (Fig 3). If an elephant comes towards you at a particularly narrow spot, you should give way and try to avoid it by using your Jet Board to fly over the Dark Eco lake. The Mantis will make a couple of desperate attempts to stop you on the final stretch. The calm will precede the storm for a few metres prior to the next big attack from the nest (Fig 4). And then, you will have arrived at the final major conflict with the leader of the Metal Heads.

ACT 3.22

Destroy Metal Head Leader

The Metalo-Maniac has taken us for a ride. We can't put up with that! Let's show him what's what, Jak! And just to show you that you're not on your own, I'll give you a tip: don't fall into the hole in the middle!

The Metal Head Leader will have the three-stage energy meter that will be familiar from all previous boss battles. During the first two stages the boss will generally keep out of the fight, but watch out if a bright light appears around his mouth (Fig. 1). Shortly afterwards, he will aim an energy beam, which you can dodge by taking a step to the side or away from him. At the very beginning he will distribute many small eggs around the room. They will soon turn into Stingers that quickly charge towards you. After you've shot down all the Stingers, you will have precious little respite before the next wave.

Fire at the Leader's face. Choose a position from where you have the entire area in view, as you will have to continually fend off the Stingers. This is best done with the Red Gun, which is pretty much useless against the Metal Head leader due to the distance. If you fire at the boss using the Blue Gun you will need at least 100 shots to reduce his energy level by one third. The Yellow Gun is considerably more effective but not so fast. You will need to hit the Leader's face 30 times (Fig. 2). The Black Gun is the most effective. When the energy meter drops to the yellow third, stop firing, because your opponent will be invulnerable for a short period.

Fewer Stingers will appear during the second round of the fight, but their place will be taken by some old friends: Wasps (Fig. 3). Take a little breather, then switch over to the Black Gun, provided you still have some ammunition left. Although this weapon is very slow, it has the advantage of releasing an energy beam from the Leader's head with every strike, eliminating the nearest helper. After you have used up all your ammunition, make do with the Yellow or Blue weapon mode once again. You must continuously keep your eye on the glow from the Leader, which will warn you of pending shots. To celebrate reaching the second round he will now always fire two consecutive shots.

When the energy level drops into the red area, your opponent will become agitated. He will move from his usual position in the centre and will start to come after you (Fig. 4), firing three shots in a row. You can easily avoid these by moving continuously and running away from him in circles. It is best if you turn the camera with your right stick in such a way that you can always keep your opponent in view. There aren't any menacing enemy helpers any more. If you are too close to the Metal Head Leader, he will strike you down or sting you. As soon as you have sufficient distance, fire everything you have at him. A hit from your Peacemaker will usually ensure that your opponent stumbles. If you can now manage to avoid falling into the hole in the middle, you've just about won!

You can shorten the fight with the Metal Head Leader considerably, simply by transforming into Dark Jak. You can then use one of the special abilities that you've learned from the Oracle, such as the Dark Bomb. This will completely empty one third of the Leader's energy gauge. It is best if you use this ability at the start of one of the three rounds, so that you don't waste the effect. Choose the stage of the fight where you encounter most problems. Good luck!

ENEMIES

Jak & Daxter have a hard job on their hands: everyone is after them. Baron Praxis, his ubiquitous Krimzon Guards, numerous Metal Heads and even the usually mild-mannered local fauna are all united in their burning desire to turn Daxter into a decorative fur collar. We certainly can't blame them for such an understandable aim, although it's possible that the fluffy little treasure would look more fetching as a kidney belt. He'd probably enjoy it, too.

Just as well that you will be collecting a powerful arsenal of weapons during the game in order to keep this alarming situation under control. As some old military strategist probably once said, attack is the best form of defence. Don't be nervous, because your opponents certainly won't be. Unless they get anywhere near water, that is. Most of these critters don't like to bathe and will do anything to avoid it. If you can throw, push, prod or persuade your opponent into water, he'll never bother you again. Good to know. Also, don't forget to keep a look out for the yellow Skull Gems that defeated Metal Heads leave behind. You can trade these in at the Oracle's shack in the Water Slums to learn special abilities for Dark Jak. Good luck! You'll need it.

Hostile Creatures

Glub

ATTACK POWER: 1
ARMORED PLATING: 1
ATTACK GROUP: 2

Glubs can be found mainly in swamps and sewers. But that's no life in the long run. Even a small green Glub needs an occasional holiday from such a glum existence, and where better than an idyllic Pumping Station? Sadly, even on vacation the hapless Glub is not safe from Jak & Daxter.

The goggle-eyed Glub's main mode of attack is to hop tentatively towards Jak and try to look cute. Halt this opponent's progress instantly with a well-aimed spin attack. It will only take one hit to send the friendly animal into the world beyond. One hit from a Glub will cost you a single energy unit. Glubs are ill-equipped to counter-attack your superior firepower.

Znorkle Tooth

ATTACK POWER: 1
ARMORED PLATING: 2
ATTACK GROUP: 2

Biologists have deemed the Znorkle Tooth to be the greatest discovery since the duckbilled platypus: what other living thing can znorkle, I mean snorkel with its teeth and swim so gracefully at the same time? This animal has been gliding through water ever since prehistoric times, but sadly hasn't gained any more intelligence since then.

When these creatures are on land, they will waddle towards anything that their short-sighted eyes think they can eat. Should they sense that their territory is under threat their cheeks will puff out alarmingly as a warning signal. After emitting a strange frog-like croak these opponents will lash out with their impressive tongues at their startled prey. Don't be alarmed by all the posturing, a Znorkle Tooth can generally be overpowered with two hits, and a gun is even more effective.

Fodder

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMORED PLATING: 1
ATTACK GROUP: 1

The Fodder is a bizarre cross between an aromatic flatfish and an aggressive bulldog. In actual fact this opponent only wants to spend the day (and most of the night too) wallowing in tepid water and sleeping. If a Fodder happens to be disturbed by a hero and his furry friend it will usually get stinkingly angry. As if a Fodder doesn't stink enough already...

Fodders believe that they can approach their victim from the water without being seen and can then surprise them. This plan would be more effective if it weren't for the fact that their fins are clearly visible from a long way off ... As a result, you can counter their spongy attacks with a little help from your weapon, which will indeed soon make fish fodder out of them.

Spider

2	1	2

In ancient Egypt these small spiders would doubtless have been fashioned into delightful brooches fit for Pharaohs and Queens. Jet-black, with a tasteful red crescent motif, these Spiders really are the epitome of elegance. However, we aren't in ancient Egypt, and so the wretched creepy-crawlies are reduced to lurking around the dank, dark corners of Mar's Tomb.

Compared to other insects of the same species their feet remain firmly on the ground and we don't just mean metaphorically. Generally grouchy, Spiders hate anything that disturbs their peace and quiet. They like to make a mad dash towards intruders before pouncing mercilessly on their prey.

Metal Heads

Hopper

ATTACK POWER	ARMOURED PLATING	ATTACK GROUP
2	1	3

The nasty Hopper looks like a small dragon that has had the misfortune to be customised by an over zealous blacksmith. What other explanation could there be for the obtrusive chrome armour-plating covering its body? Not only does it look good (once the pain has subsided), it also provides the creature with added protection from attacks.

Well, that's the theory. In practice, however, the Hopper is nothing more than a frog in armour which, when alone, is less dangerous than a grazing cow in the meadow. And less pretty. Just one hit will be enough to lay this opponent flat on his shiny back. A group of Hoppers on the rampage is a much more dangerous proposition. Be thankful that you have a Red Gun by your side that can effectively wipe out a whole host of Hoppers in one go.

LOCATED: MOUNTAIN TEMPLE

These opponents are the first Metal Heads that you will encounter during the game. They arrive happily hopping towards Jak, eager to bite his head off. A classic cultural misunderstanding. How are the poor Manic Heads to know that their traditional greeting might seem impolite in some circles? Most embarrassing.

Manic Heads trot doggedly towards their opponents and don't get easily flustered. Could this be due to the fact that their golden helmets have fallen over their eyes, and they can't see properly? Tricks, surprising moves or evasive actions are not part of their strategy. Two shots will soon determine who the boss is around these parts.

Grunt

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 3
ATTACK GROUP: 2

Maybe the Grunts will manage one day to be promoted to the hallowed ranks of the armed Metal Heads. At the moment, however, they are somewhat impeded by a total lack of any form of intelligence. More importantly, their dress sense is shockingly dated. Don't they know that shoulder pads went out of fashion in the 80s? Honestly! Those winning smiles and sharp incisor teeth aren't fooling anyone.

Grunts are more heavily plated than other types of Manic Heads. You will generally need three hits to wipe them out. They can march on two legs or trot along on four, and usually attack in small groups. We wouldn't recommend fighting them at close range. Always use a weapon rather than opting for a fight with your fists.

LOCATED: SEWERS, STRIP MINE, DEAD TOWN, DRILL PLATFORM

Ram Head

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 3
ATTACK GROUP: 1

This enemy's motto is: always ram your head through the wall. A Ram Head can afford to say this, because it doesn't inflict any pain upon itself in doing so. Actually, it would usually be entitled to a long and fulfilling life, but it's your job to make sure that this is cut tragically short.

The Ram Head will storm angrily towards you, viewing you as nothing more than an appetising snack. Run quickly to the side and then dash in the direction from which it came. Once you're at a safe distance you can turn round and take aim with your Blaster. Your opponent will then turn round and rear up in anger, exposing its one vulnerable spot – the stomach. Blast away and repeat the whole process several more times to fell the mighty beast once and for all.

LOCATED: MOUNTAIN TEMPLE

Hosehead

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 2
ATTACK GROUP: 2

The Hosehead is a low-lying Spyder Gunner who makes even the darkest depths of Sewers unsafe. It has the unnerving habit of crawling around on walls and ceilings. When alone, a Hosehead does not pose a large threat, being rather slow and lacking in any close combat training.

Nevertheless, the Hosehead has one special gift: it can fire laser beams, and not just any old laser beams either. We're talking about a penetrating ray that slowly sweeps from left to right and back again. When several of these creatures combine to put on a laser show it certainly turns up the heat.

Stinger

ATTACK POWER	ARMOURED PLATING	ATTACK GROUP

These armour-plated scorpion mutants lie in wait for their prey hidden flat in the ground. Their enormous sense organs are able to detect the heartbeat of their victim from ground vibrations several hundred metres away.

However, Mother Nature only gave the Stinger one limited mode of attack. Its strategy is to jump out of its hideout prematurely and run in a zigzag direction towards its victim to sting him. As long as you see the Stinger coming towards you, you still have enough time to greet him in the appropriate manner. Shoot him as quickly as possible and avoid any contact with the sting.

Metal Jacket

ATTACK POWER	ARMOURED PLATING	ATTACK GROUP

It's probably not the wisest choice to wear a metal jacket for flying purposes. But then whoever said that Metal Heads were clever. If Metal Heads feel comfortable in their attire, who are we to condemn them?

The problem with these creatures is the fact that they fire targeted energy balls at Jak from their rear. They prefer to attack from a distance so it makes sense to use a weapon with a longer reach such as the Yellow Gun to bring the cheeky Metal Jacket back down to earth, in more ways than one.

LOCATED: STRIP MINE

Ginsu

2	1	3
ATTACK POWER	ARMOURED PLATING	ATTACK GROUP

When evolution had a particularly bad day, it decided to create the Ginsu. These flying Metal Heads sport bizarre headgear that closely resembles a spiked Prussian military helmet. As their small stunted wings can hardly hold these creature in the air, the metal plates at the end of their bodies are constantly dragging along the ground.

The Ginsu constantly spins metal blades around the centre of its body. You would be wise to forget about trying to hit this creature. A Ginsu will always circle around his victim before attacking, giving you time to shoot it down, preferably with your Red Gun.

LOCATED: DRILL PLATFORM

Wasp

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 3
ATTACK GROUP: 2

What a buzzer! The Wasp is a jet-propelled cockroach with the inherently reckless habit of seeking out dangerous situations. We can deduce this from the fact that Wasps are usually located close to gun turrets. Furthermore, Wasps appear to be magically attracted by gunfire.

As Wasps can absorb quite a few hits when returning fire with their built-in lasers, the whole situation can become problematic if several approach you at once. Luckily, you will normally have extra firepower on hand when facing these particular Metal Heads.

LOCATED: DRILL PLATFORM

Spyder Gunner

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 3
ATTACK GROUP: 2

By a strange quirk of nature the nasty Spider Gunner has mutated over thousands of years to become a Spyder Gunner. Congratulations! The creepy beast also has its own built-in weapon, which can fire high-speed shots. Just as well that it has a problem hitting the target.

First of all the easily disoriented Spyder Gunner always shoots close to its own feet before directing its fire at the opponent. Make the most of this delay, because as soon as the Spyder Gunner is hit, it has to begin the procedure all over again. This will easily allow you to land sufficient hits to wipe out the well-armoured Metal Head.

LOCATED: PUMPING STATION, RAVEN FOREST

Mantis

ATTACK POWER: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 1
ATTACK GROUP: 3

Mantis are by far the quickest of all Metal Heads. Just like the Stinger, they hide in the ground and jump out when someone approaches, before hopping around maniacally. Apparently, they are counting on the possibility that human opponents will dislocate their necks as they attempt to follow the creatures with their eyes.

What a stroke of luck that Krew gave you the red Scatter Gun. This is exceedingly practical in such situations. You simply shoot wildly in their general direction, and down come numerous Mantis from above. It's a real wonder how they ever managed to get the job of defending the nest.

LOCATED: NEST

Flying Spider

ATTACK: 2
ARMOURED PLATING: 2
ATTACK GROUP: 1

Flying spiders, that sounds like a nightmare. Luckily, these Metal Heads fly in at the beginning of the fight, fall to the ground and find that they can't fly anymore. Not surprising when you take a look at these cumbersome beasts with their huge bulbous bodies.

A Flying Spider will sit on the ground and fire towards you using its built in weaponry. This opponent's movements are limited in so far as they can swivel on the spot to keep their beady eyes on you or crawl slowly in your direction. As a Flying Spider is so exhausted from its aerial efforts , it will move really sluggishly. Therefore, you should find it easy to trick this monster and land the required number of hits.

Not only do these Metal Heads have an unusual name, they also behave very strangely. It is said that they have even been spotted at the Pumping Station together with the small green Glubs. However, that doesn't necessarily mean that Juice Goons are tolerant or friendly creatures. Quite the opposite, in fact.

Juice Goons are equipped with energy rods similar to those of the Krimzon Guards. If you are some distance away, you can gain an advantage by using a long-distance weapon. Matters will get much more difficult if you find yourself confronted by a large group of the muscular creatures swinging their way towards you. Should you ever find yourself surrounded by them... well, all we can say is...just don't get surrounded by them!

Stalkers are dedicated loners, and that's just as well. They have an energy-laden protective shield that makes them virtually indestructible. However, instead of sitting it out, they regularly lower their shields in order to fire. Not the sharpest tools in the box, by dropping their guard so foolishly they give you a chance to strike back.

Dodge the volley by taking a double jump and shooting at the same time. Two hits from your Blaster, and the Stalker will know who is the boss. You can even do the job at close range with a clip round the ear to send the Stalker sprawling. However, close-quarters-combat is always a more risky strategy.

Nobody knows how the Rapid Gunner got the name. It has a firearm and fires at high speed ... Okay, it seems that we've just found out together how the Rapid Gunner received its name. Just as well that we talked about it!

Shooting fast is about all that this Metal Head can do. While shooting, the Rapid Gunners will remain rooted to the ground. As they don't allow themselves to be duped easily you only have one possible method of attack : jump out quickly and shoot the monster before it shoots you. Pure unadulterated Darwinism.

The dangerous Sling Blaster hurls its sling of energy balls at anyone who gets too close. "Close" is a relative term in this instance, because the good old Sling, as his friends call him, has an unpleasantly far reach. And he can soak up a lot of hits too.

Furthermore, this opponent also appears to have drunk vast amounts of magic 'target' water, because it seems blessed with a deadly accurate aim. Thankfully the energy ball doesn't fly very fast so you can usually get out of the way in time. You'll be on the safe side with the Blue Gun. Or you could try taking this gawky opponent by surprise, and running towards it with all guns blazing where the terrain allows.

A Krimzon Guard on his own isn't anything special, but they patrol in packs on the streets of Haven City. If numerous Krimzon Guards shoot at you with their energy rods, you won't last very long. Only quick dodging manoeuvres and unrelenting sustained fire will save your hide.

After Baron Praxis lost both his pride and parts of his body in fights with countless Metal Heads, he doesn't take any more risks in battle. To gain the upper hand against his many enemies, the Baron has acquired the very latest line on the market in mobile fighting robots.

Thanks to its modular design the Mech can be customised with a variety of weapons and tools in order to adapt to any given situation. This machine is lethal in any combination, and together with the Baron's impressive combat experience the chances of survival are very low for those unlucky enough to get in the way of this monster.

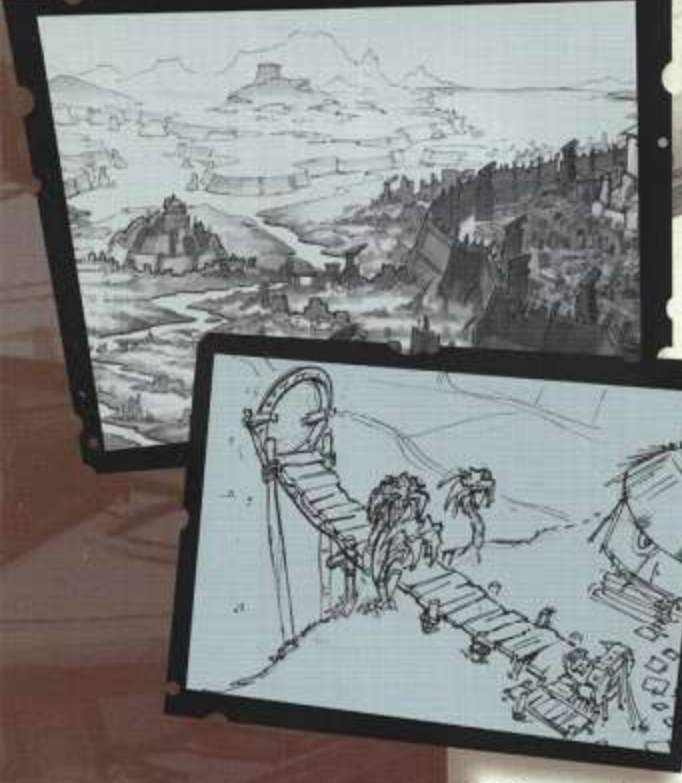
SECRETS

Then and Now



What's Happened So Far – Why I'm an Ottsel

I wasn't always an Ottsel. It wasn't all that long ago that I was a handsome and promising young man – yep (Fig 1)! I was even better looking than you are and all the girls were crazy about me*! Yes, that's right. You can ask Jak if you don't believe me. Maybe he'll reply for a change. Back then he never said a word. How well I remember those halcyon days when we lived in Sandover Village (Fig. 2) and in particular that fateful trip to Misty Island. Needless to say, that old grouch and spoilsport, Samos the Green Sage had forbidden us to go there, because it was so dangerous. He was right about that as it turned out. Jak was desperate to go, but had I known what would happen … well, let's just say that I would still be the less furry one of the two of us. Anyway, we were standing in front of this pool of Dark Eco when Jak got startled by a stupid Lurker, accidentally bumped into me, and pushed me into the pool. I've been an Ottsel ever since.

Why Lurkers are seen as somehow okay now, I really don't know. In my first adventure Daxter & Jak: the Precursor Legacy™ – ouch, of course I mean Jak & Daxter – they were our main enemy, after all. That was when we believed that Gol, the absolute expert in matters of Dark Eco, could reverse metamorphosis. Unfortunately, he had just turned to the dark side, and his medium-term objective was world domination, so he wasn't too bothered about helping us anymore. Jak was, of course, very sorry about the whole thing, which is why he now silently endures cranky despot Samos following us around all the time. The only good thing about Samos is his lovely daughter Keira, one of the few women who doesn't just look at me as a potential fur collar.

Keira is an incredible engineer. She was the one who assembled the anti-gravity Zoomer and stuff (Fig. 3) for us back then. We all jetted off together and ended up stumbling over the legacy of the dusty Precursors. We still don't know any more about them today than we did back then. In the end, Jak was faced with a cruel dilemma, which I would have liked to solve for him: either save the world from Gol or change me back the way I was before. Well, we all know how that one ended: the world is still here, and I still can't wear trousers. But then maybe the transformation wouldn't have worked anyway.

The people of Haven City have their own alphabet, derived from the literary tradition of the mysterious Precursors. Use the following list to translate the city's advertisements and posters. The illuminated advertisement above the Saloon (Fig. 4) for example, reads "Hip Hog" and the posters all around the Stadium say "Erol" (Fig. 5).

Precursor alphabet, okay, I can kind of accept that. But what on earth is this poster (Fig. 6) all about? First I'm wiped off the title of the game, and now these guys have entered my game. That's just too much. Can't they stay in their own game? Sometimes I wonder: What am I doing all this for …

Dark Power

A mysterious talking statue called the Oracle lives in a shack to the south-east of the Water Slums. As soon as you have collected your first Metal Head Skull Gems near the Pumping Station, the Oracle will grant you an audience. If you manage to drag along at least 25 Skull Gems, you will be rewarded with a special ability for Dark Jak to use. There are three more special skills to learn, but in order to get these you must be even more committed to collecting Skull Gems.

Dark Bomb	⊗ □	Skull Gems: 25 Jump with ⊗ and, while in the air, press □ to activate the Dark Bomb.

Dark Blast	□ ⊗	Skull Gems: 200 Press □ and then immediately ⊗, to unleash the Dark Blast.

Invincibility	-	Skull Gems: 200 When you become Dark Jak, your energy level will no longer drop.

Dark Giant	L2	Skull Gems: 200 While you are still in the Dark Jak state, press L2 again to transform Jak into the Dark Giant.

Mini-Games

There are several Mini-Games which can be unlocked after completing certain missions as well as after discovering Secrets. After unlocking them, you can always return and try to beat the Mini-Games records. Your best efforts can then be viewed under High Scores in the menu option.

Gun Course

In the Gun Course at the port you can participate in training sessions with all four gun modes. Of course, you can only do so if you already have the weapon modifications required.

The basic rule is; the faster you hit a target, the more points you will earn. If you hit a "civilian" target, points will be deducted. Gold targets are particularly valuable. They will appear if you have managed to shoot down other targets fast enough.

You can set up records in the Gold, Silver and Bronze categories. To do so, you must first attain the required number of points. You will be rewarded with Precursor Orbs for your efforts: three for Bronze, three for Silver and three for Gold. Should you succeed in skipping Bronze and going straight to Silver, you will get six Orbs. Accordingly, you will get nine Orbs for Gold. It's possible to earn a total of 36 Precursor Orbs on all four Gun Courses.

Scatter Gun

GOLD 12000 | SILVER 10000 | BRONZE 8000
RANKING/POINTS

Prerequisite: Beat Scatter Gun Course (Act 1)

Blaster

GOLD 13000 | SILVER 11000 | BRONZE 9000
RANKING/POINTS

Prerequisite: Beat Blaster Gun Course (Act 1)

Vulcan Fury

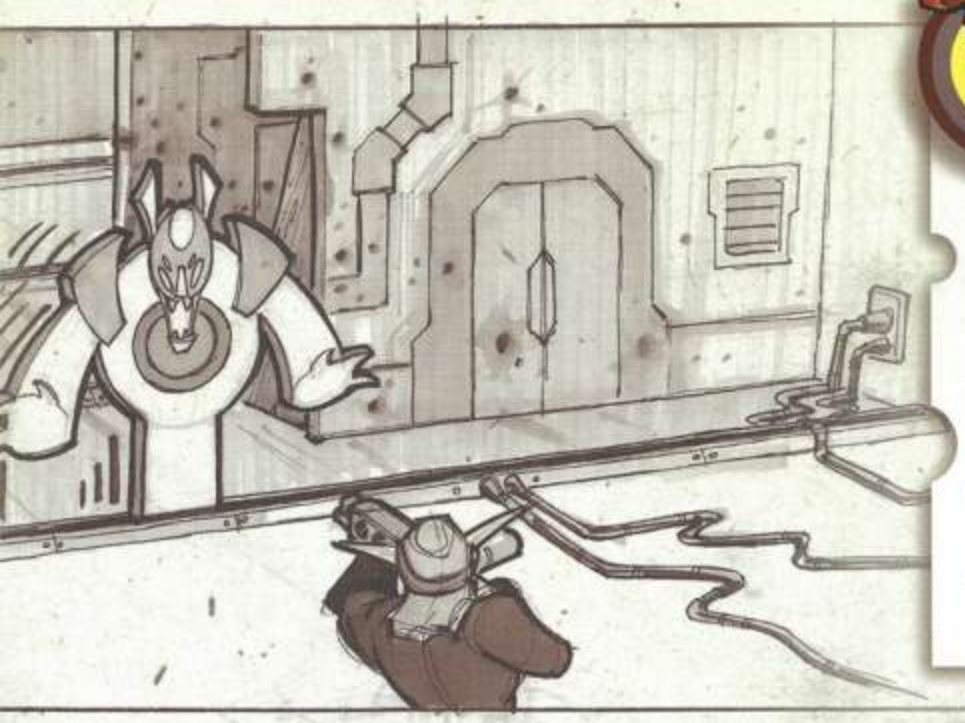
GOLD 15000 | SILVER 13000 | BRONZE 11000
RANKING/POINTS

Prerequisite: Protect Site in Dead Town (Act 1), Secret with 75 Precursor Orbs unlocked

Peace Maker

GOLD 15000 | SILVER 13000 | BRONZE 11000
RANKING/POINTS

Prerequisite: Escort Men Through Sewers (Act 3), Secret with 105 Precursor Orbs unlocked



Jet Board Game

Once you've finished the Jet Board Challenge, you can go for records with your Jet Board in the Stadium. From Act 2: Win Class 3 Race at Stadium onwards the hall will belong to the Air Racers. But don't give up your Jet Board just yet. Go to the cul-de-sac in front of the stadium. You can activate your Jet Board using the bonus mission console and then continue to go after High Scores in the stadium. As with the Gun Courses, you will be awarded three Precursor Orbs for each new record level, i.e. a maximum of nine Precursor Orbs.

Jet Board Game

RANKING/POINTS

Prerequisite: Win Jet Board Stadium Challenge (Act 1)

You will be awarded points for tricks, i.e. flips, spins, grinds, etc. If you repeat the same trick, you will be awarded fewer points each time. If you combine tricks (e.g. by spinning around while jumping), you will get more points. You should also try to perform tricks that involve making a perfect landing after 360° or 720° degree spins. You will receive particularly high points if you string together a series of tricks and link them up by grinding between them.

Yeah, right, spins, vertical flick spins, somersaults ... and who is thinking of me? Nobody. That's the way it is. All this whirling around makes me feel queasy in my stomach. Just between us: the weapons training thing really is marvellous: you are awarded points while at the same time becoming more proficient in the use of your guns. And the more confident you are as a shot, the safer I feel on your shoulder. ... Hmm, I could get easily get used to this you know.

NYFE-Racer

After you've won the Air Racer missions, the races will now also be available as Mini-Games. They can be accessed in the same way as the Jet Board Game, using the energy shield in the cul-de-sac in front of the Stadium. If you manage to beat the prescribed times, you will be awarded with up to nine Precursor Orbs for each Class. You will have to activate the Reverse races in the Secrets menu before you can use them.

and bonus mission: Orb search 3.

Onin Game

In Onin's Tent you must prove your skills as part of the Act 2 mission Beat Onin Game (see page 105). Afterwards, the test will be available as a Mini-Game. Enter the tent and talk to Onin. If you manage to get 1,000 points or more, you will be awarded three Precursor Orbs the first time round.

Whack-A-Metal

After the Act 3 mission Beat the Whack-a-Metal Game, you can go back to playing around with Krew's machine in the Hip Hog Saloon at any time. Once again, the best scores will be stored in the High Scores menu, but sadly there is no flowerpot to be won.

Well, maybe not a flowerpot. But what about fame and glory ... and being admired by Tess. What are all these Precursor Orbs for anyway? What, that will be explained in the next section? Well, then, let's see if that's any good. I would be happy if we could at least get rid of Jak's ridiculous little beard! He is beginning to look as unkempt as old Samos!

Secrets Menu

You can toggle some of the Secrets functions in the menu on and off. Others, such as the Reverse Races, will be unlocked automatically, and will then be available to you in certain sections of the game. There will also be some options, such as the Scrap Book, that will appear in the additional Secrets menu on the intro screen.

You will need 200 Precursor Orbs to reveal all the secrets. By getting High Scores in the mini-games, completing successful bonus missions or, if you want to do it the boring way, collecting them throughout the various levels, you can get as many as 286 Orbs:

- 94 are hidden in various levels
- 36 are awarded in the Gun Course
- 9 for the Jet Board Mini-Game
- 3 for the Onin Mini-Game
- 72 for the bonus missions
- 72 for the NYFE races

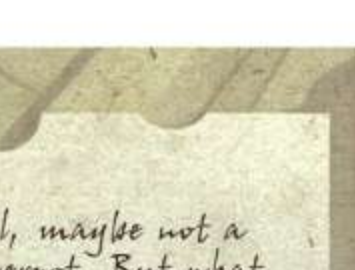
Secrets in the main menu

Secrets can be unlocked with Precursor Orbs in the Secrets section of the main menu. At the top of the menu you will see the total number of Orbs you have collected so far. Below it you will see a list, which tells you what kinds of secrets you can activate. The number next to the individual items on the list tells you how many Orbs are required to unlock it. Many secrets will be initially displayed simply as a row of question marks. This is the case if, apart from the required number of Orbs, you must meet another requirement, before you can have access to a particular secret. Some functions will only be available after you have defeated the final boss. After watching the final video sequence you can continue playing the game in the port.



Toggle Jak's Goatee

Precursor Orbs: 5

Depending on the current fashion, you can switch Jak's little green goatee on and off. "On" means that the beardless version is displayed, i.e. the beard will be gone – in the game as well as in the interim sequences.

Mirror World

Precursor Orbs: 15

The entire game environment is mirrored. This is very useful for co-drivers who always mix up left and right.

Big Head Mode

Precursor Orbs: 30

Jak is carrying a huge melon on his shoulders.

Small Head Mode

Precursor Orbs: 45

Jak has a tiny little head. Big Head and Small Head are, of course, mutually exclusive.

Scrap Book

Precursor Orbs: 55

Sketches and drafts from the development phase of the game will be unlocked. You can view them in the title screen menu, which will become available at the same time.

Scene Player Act 1

Precursor Orbs: 65
After Act 1:
Protect Site in Dead Town

You can view all the interim sequences from Act 1 in the title screen menu.

Isn't this fantastic?! You can view all the greatest moments over and over again. This is great! It allows you to enjoy all my best scenes in all the different language versions. And my friend Mr Pointed Ears is also part of it all. Having switched over to a different language, make sure that you don't get lost in the foreign language menus. You will find the Options in the third row of the title menu. You can view Game Options after that, and Language is at the bottom of that one – you can't miss it because of the multicoloured flags! Good luck!

Vulcan Fury Course

Precursor Orbs: 75
After Act 1: Protect Site in Dead Town

From now on you can complete a training course with the blue gun (Vulcan Fury) too.

Scene Player Act 2

Precursor Orbs: 95
After Act 2: Defeat Baron in Mar's Tomb

You can view all the interim sequences from Act 2 in the title screen menu.

Peace Maker Gun Course

Precursor Orbs: 105
After Act 3: Escort Men Through Sewers

In future, you will also be able to complete a training course in the Gun Course using your black gun.

Scene Player Act 3

Precursor Orbs: 125
After Act 3: Destroy Metal Head Leader

You can view all the interim sequences from Act 3 in the title screen menu.

Reverse Races

Precursor Orbs: 135
After Act 3: Win Class 1 Race at Stadium

The NYFE Racer race can also be undertaken in the opposite direction if you so wish.

Level Select

Precursor Orbs: 145
After Act 3: Destroy Metal Head Leader

All missions can be directly accessed in the title screen menu.

Unlimited Ammo

Precursor Orbs: 155
After Act 3: Destroy Metal Head Leader

An unlimited supply of ammunition for all weapons.

Unlimited Dark Jak

Precursor Orbs: 165
After Act 3: Destroy Metal Head Leader

The collection of Dark Eco balls has now come to an end. From now on you can transform Jak into Dark Jak at any time.

Invulnerability

Precursor Orbs: 175
After Act 3: Destroy Metal Head Leader

Jak becomes invulnerable if you activate this function.

Hero Mode

Precursor Orbs: 200
After Act 3: Destroy Metal Head Leader

The Hero Mode is available from the title screen menu of the game.

Secrets in the title screen menu

Apart from New Game, Load Game and Options, there is a hidden menu item in the title screen. This list of Secrets will appear after you have collected 55 Precursor Orbs and you have checked in the Secrets menu that the Scrapbook is unlocked. More functions will be added step-by-step. You will find a list of all menu options below:

Scrap Book: 55 Orbs
Mega Scrap Book: 200 Orbs in Hero Mode
Scene Player Act 1: 65 Orbs, Act 1 completed
Scene Player Act 2: 95 Orbs, Act 2 completed
Scene Player Act 3: 125 Orbs, boss defeated
Hero Mode: 200 Orbs
Level Select: 145 Orbs, boss defeated

Hero Mode

Hero Mode is an extra difficult level. Your opponents will be more resilient and cause more damage. You begin the game with all four weapon modes. The functions in the Secrets menu are organised differently and you can, in addition, unlock the Mega Scrap Book.

Hero Mode? Sounds exactly like my kind of thing. On the other hand, I would prefer being stroked by Tess. But the decision is all yours. Yes, you heard, it isn't my decision. Now that we are so close to the end I may as well own up to it...

Bonus Missions

You will see small blue energy boards containing a question mark symbol everywhere in the city (Fig. 1). Sometimes the symbol will change to the Underground movement's insignia (Fig. 2). These stations will then be marked on the (city) map with a green icon. By pressing △ you can start a small bonus mission at these stations unless you've triggered a security alert in which case the signs won't work (Fig. 3).

After the first mission others will be on offer at most of the stations. As a bonus reward for successfully completing a mission you will get three Precursor Orbs. You can collect a total of 72 Orbs from these missions.

After having beaten the final boss in the game, the number of completed Bonus missions will be reflected in the percentage figure that indicates how much of the game you have completed so far.

Ring Race

You must fly through the lilac rings on a vehicle (Fig. 4), or at least touch them a little bit. A Zoomer will be provided for this mission. You will have 14 seconds to pass through the first ring, followed by 7 seconds for each further ring. The next ring will always be marked on the map. You don't have to pass the finishing line in your original vehicle, but the tight timescale usually prevents you from changing vehicles successfully. Theoretically, you can also walk through the rings...

Ring Race I

Station: No. 1 (Slums)
When: after Find Pumping Station Valve
Length: 18 rings

First of all, fly towards the Hideout. You can generally reach the rings on the ground from the upper Hover zone. Some rings, e.g. nos. 6, 9, 12, 13, 16 and 18 can only be reached in the upper zone.

Ring Race 2

Station: No. 8 (port/Saloon)
When: after Catch Scouts in Haven Forest
Length: 28 rings

After passing through ring no. 12 you must go through the Bazaar. There are no vehicles allowed in this area with the exception of your Jet Board. Ring no. 17 hangs a little higher, and you will need to do a high jump to clear it. To reach ring no. 19 you will need to access the overpass via a ramp. From there, you can quickly grab a passing Zoomer. Drive through ring no. 27 at the end of the Industrial Zone and up the ramp. You will then be able to reach the last ring by jumping up.

Ring Race 3

Station: No. 1 (Slums)
When: after Get Life Seed in Dead Town and Ring Race 1.
Length: 26 rings

This is a very difficult race. Ring no. 6 will be floating over the top of a small alleyway with lots of traffic. Take your time rather than crashing your Zoomer. Rings no. 8 to 13 will take you past the pedestrian ramps up to the Industrial Zone. Rings no. 14 to 16 will be down below. The jump at no. 20 will be particularly difficult. Remember that you can fly further if you pull the nose of the Zoomer upward and keep the button (L1) pressed down while jumping.

Orb Search

A gold Orb will be hidden somewhere nearby. Its location will be revealed to you for a brief moment (Fig. 5). You will then have to find it before the time runs out. You can undertake most of these missions on foot. The Jet Board is generally quite helpful, and sometimes you will have to take a vehicle.

Orb Search 1

Station: No. 2 (Slums)
When: after Beat Scatter Gun Course
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be underneath a bridge. Turn around immediately and run east, towards the square. Take the first possible turn towards your left, into the ditch. Once there, turn to the right. Get yourself a Zoomer beforehand to save time.

Orb Search 2

Station: No. 4 (Industrial zone)
When: after
Protect Sig at Pumping Station
Time: 22 secs.

The gold Orb will be up on the pedestrian level. Run to the right, up the ramp. At the junction turn to your right and then take the next turning to your left. The Orb will be at the back, in the corner to your right. If you encounter problems, wait until you have the Jet Board before attempting this challenge.

Orb Search 3

Station: No. 7 (port - east)
When: after Destroy Turrets in Sewers
Time: 32 secs.

The gold Orb will be located at the propaganda station, in the street in front of the Statue of Mar. Take a vehicle quickly and race across the port basin.

Orb Search 4

Station: No. 16 (Water Slums)
When: after
Find Pumping Station Patrol
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be hovering above the surface, under a footbridge. It is located virtually underneath the starting point. Simply jump down into the water.

Orb Search 5

Station: No. 9 (Gardens - south)
When: after
Catch Scouts in Haven Forest
Time: 27 secs.

The gold Orb will be behind a rock pointing towards a Yakow enclosure. Run to the street and quickly take a vehicle. You will find it on the right in front of the entrance to the Bazaar.

Orb Search 6

Station: No. 5 (Bazaar - east)
When: after Intercept Tanker
Time: 22 secs.

The gold Orb will be under the roof that has been wrecked by the tanker crash. Your goal will be south of the square where the Intercept Tanker mission took place. Swing yourself onto the Jet Board immediately and drive towards the west.

Orb Search 7

Station: No. 3 (Bazaar - east)
When: after
Destroy Ship at Drill Platform
Time: 27 secs.

The gold Orb will be underneath sign no. 5 with the question mark. Turn immediately to your right and take off using your Jet Board. At the corner, turn left and go along beneath the overpass. You will now be on the right path.

Orb Search 8

Station: No. 11 (Gardens - north)
When: after
Hunt Haven Forest Metal Heads
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be underneath a water cannon. Take a vehicle quickly and jet towards the Mountain security gate. The lawn sprinkler is in the middle of the garden.

Orb Search 12

Station: No. 10 (Bazaar - west)
When: after Protect Samos in Haven Forest and Bonus mission "Taxi"
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be located in an inconspicuous-looking corner. First of all take the Jet Board to the square in the west and then head two blocks to the north. The Orb will be in the south-west corner.

Orb Search 9

Station: No. 14 (Stadium Section)
When: after completing Win Class 3 Race at Stadium and Bonus Mission Collection 1
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be hovering near a bridge. Simply drive along the canal towards the Stadium. You will find it at the last bridge before the Stadium entrance.

Orb Search 13

Station: No. 17 (Slums)
When: after
Win Class 1 Race in Stadium
Time: 27 secs.

The gold Orb will be in the alley behind starting point no. 14. Get hold of a manoeuvrable vehicle as quick as possible and drive towards the Stadium, past the security gates to the support tower. Then keep to your left.

Orb Search 10

Station: No. 6 (Industrial-Zone))
When: after
Beat Erol in Race Challenge
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be up on the pedestrian level. Take the Jet Board up the ramp and to the back of the wall. To do this, use your speed boost (jump+ R1 + ←/→). Turn sharp left and jump over to the other ramp using the boost jump. Or, prepare a Zoomer beforehand.

Orb Search 14

Station: No. 12 (Stadium Section)
When: after
Destroy Metal Head Leader
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be located next to a ramp by the canal. Drive along the canal to the north and then to the east. You can't see the Orb from the water as it will be hidden behind the wall.

Orb Search 11

Station: No. 13 (Stadium Section)
When: after
Beat Erol in Race Challenge
Time: 17 secs.

The gold Orb will be in front of the security gate leading to the access elevator for the palace's support tower. Turn around and go, or even better, drive along the street on your right.

Orb Search 15

Station: No. 19 (Palace)
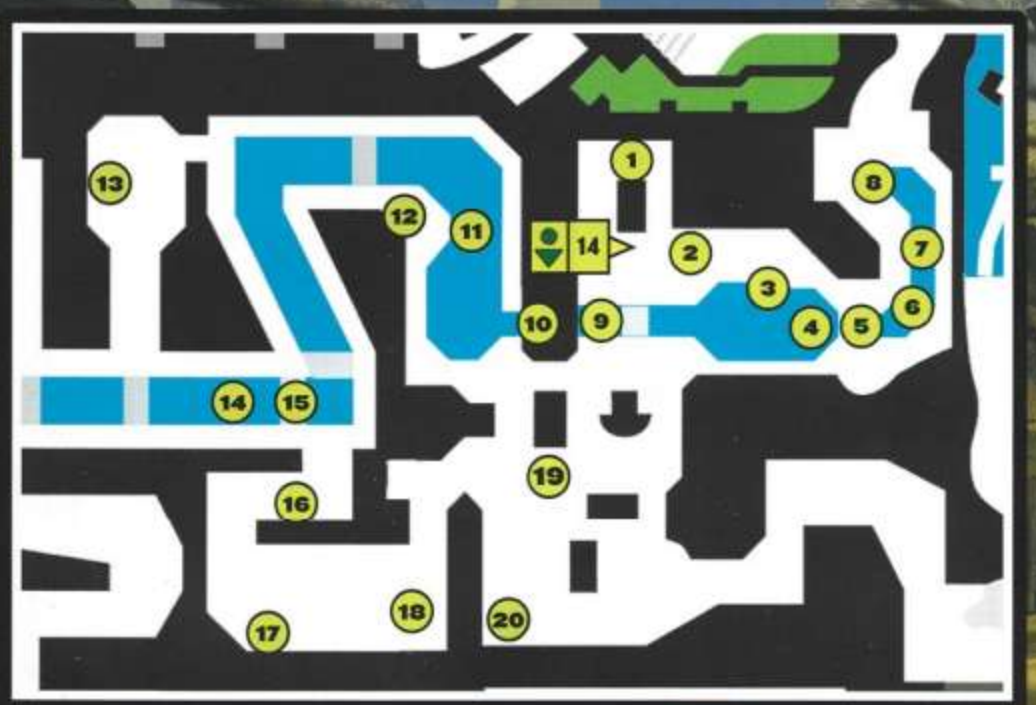
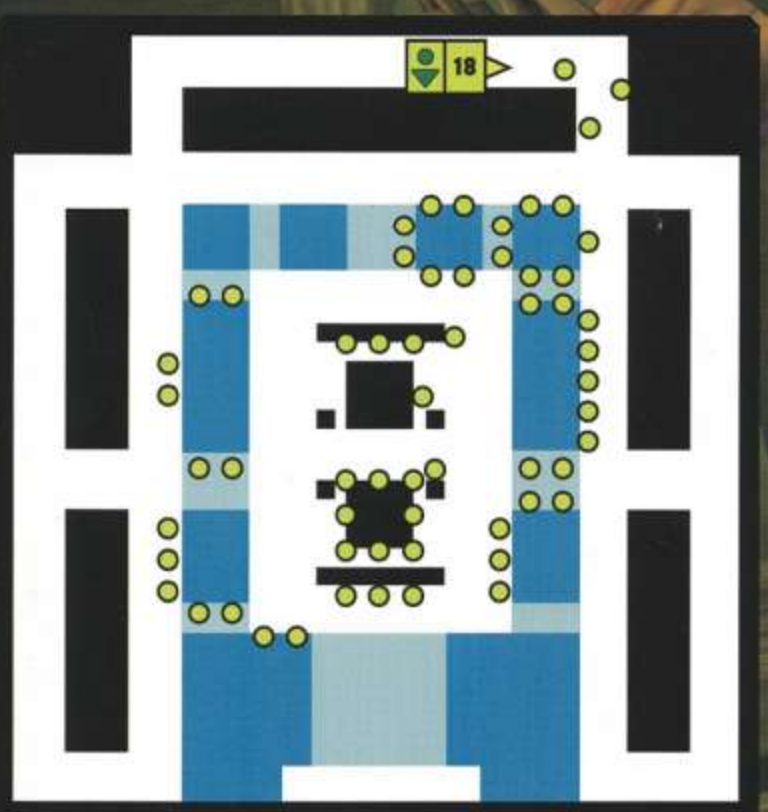
Destroy Metal Head Leader
Time: 37 secs.

The gold Orb will be behind a fountain. Take a vehicle quickly and drive close to the Statue of Mar in the upper Hover Zone in the direction of the fountain. Jump out shortly before it crashes. Take a spin in the air in order to land safely at your goal.

Collection

For these missions you will have to touch a string of objects within a fixed time limit. The first mission will involve Homing Beacons (Fig. 6), the second will evolve Green Eco and the third features Dark Eco. These collections can be undertaken on foot as well as on the Jet Board or in a vehicle.





Collection 1

Station: No. 14 (Stadium Section)
When: after Win Jet Board Stadium Challenge
Time: 1:59

You will have to touch 20 green Homing Beacons. Get hold of a manoeuvrable vehicle. Objects 4 to 7 will be hovering alternately above and below. You don't have to go by the numbering on the map, but this information will be help you to complete the challenge within the time limit.

Collection 2

Station: No. 18 (Stadium Section)
When: after Destroy 5 HellCat Cruisers
Time: 1:59

You will have to collect 60 Green Eco balls. You do not need to have direct contact with the balls, because Jak automatically attracts them when he passes close by. Take care that you don't bump into any Krimson Guards. You should descend from your Jet Board from time to time.

Collection 3

Station: No. 11 (Gardens - north)
When: after Destroy Metal Kor at Nest and Orb search 8
Time: 1:59

You will have to collect 30 Dark Eco balls. To do this, use the Jet Board, as this will be the quickest way. First of all go to the west and collect the balls lying next to the path. You can collect the rest on your way back. Then turn to the south, the middle, before the Mountain security gate that will be your last part of the mission.

Special

If you so wish, you can take on a string of missions, which will be similar to some of the regular missions. As the Underground apprentice you really are the general dogsbody!

Express

Station: No. 10 (Bazaar - west)
When: after Find Lens, Gear, and Shard in Mountain Temple

You will have 90 seconds in which to deliver a package to the alleyway in front of Torn's Hideout. Jump on the Zoomer and put your foot down. A flashing dot on the map will indicate the shortest route. Fly past the Palace to the eastern part of the Bazaar. This stage is critical due to the amount of traffic on the overpass. You simply can't afford to have a collision due to the tight time factor. Keep to the middle as far as possible and make use of the jump, by pressing L1, to dodge out of the way more easily.

Now pull up to the kerb Mr Jak, and take a moment to consider everything you've done wrong. Oh boy, where on earth did you learn to drive?! Well then, taking off immediately, that's out of the question. You should start off by adjusting your seat and then checking your rear-view mirror! Then you should pull your seatbelt tight! As you pull away from the kerb and merge into the flowing traffic carefully, don't forget to look over your shoulders! And then you drive down the centre of the street?! Goodness gracious... no. To think that you want to be a role model for our youngsters! Dear, dear me. Children, whatever you do, don't copy this foolishness at home!

Taxi

Station: No. 10 (Bazaar - west)
When: after Rescue Lurkers for Brutter and Express

In the same way as for the Act 1 mission Shuttle Underground Fighters you will have to fetch agents with a flyer or cruiser and set them down at their destination. The locations will be marked on the map by flashing dots. You will have 59 seconds to reach each passenger. One minute will then be added to the remaining time in order for you to take your passenger to his/her destination. Red alert status will be active throughout the entire mission. Your first passenger will be waiting close by, to the north-west.

Blaster

Station: No. 10 (Bazaar - west)
When: after Rescue Lurkers for Brutter - Part 2 and Orb search 12

There will be three Blast Bots running around in the city – similar to the Act 3 mission, Protect Hideout from Blast Bots. This time, however, the robots will not have any specific goal in mind and there won't be any time limit. You will "only" have to destroy the Blast Bots. If you run up close to them, you will have the best opportunity, since a Blast Bot cannot fire downwards. One of them will run anti-clockwise around the Palace. A second one will be down at the port whilst the third one will be moving around in the Industrial Zone. It can also occasionally be found lurking on the pedestrian ramps.

NYFE-Racer

The races will start at the question mark terminals just like the normal bonus missions. You can, however, enter these races over and again. And you can win Precursor Orbs depending on your best time. The City Race will begin at station 8 next to the Hip Hog Saloon, the Port Race at station 7 in the east of the port. There will also be the traditional races that can be activated at station 15 and will then take place in the Stadium. Please turn to Mini-Games on page 146 for more details. There will be eight NYFE-Racer races including the Reverse varieties, during which you can earn a maximum of 72 Orbs.

Precursor Orbs Locations

You can find some of the Precursor Orbs (Fig. 1) that are needed to unlock Secrets during the course of the game. Refer to the list below to discover where the 94 Orbs are located and when you can obtain them. By the way, you will not find any Orbs in the streets of Haven City.

Fortress: 8 Orbs

You will already have discovered 8 Orbs during the first mission Escape from Fortress. If you have missed them, you will have another chance later on to collect them: after you have defeated the Metal Head Leader and have watched the final video sequence you can carry on playing. Then it will be open season for Orb hunting in the Fortress.

Onin says that whoever searches will find what's/he's looking for. And, indeed, a large amount of Precursor Orbs which are hidden everywhere ... what? You know that already?! Onin says, continue to search ...errr... you will need a lot of patience!

Pumping Station: 7 Orbs

Map in the walkthrough on page 47.
You will visit the island with the Pumping Station for the first time in the Act 1 mission Turn on Valve at Pumping Station. Afterwards, the security gate will always be open and you can return to collect Orbs at any time. One of them is particularly well hidden on a small island in the north-east (Fig. 2). You can get there without being bothered by the robot lifeguard.

Strip Mine: 7 Orbs

Map in the walkthrough on pages 60, 97 and 119
You can obtain two Orbs during your first visit (Act 1: Rescue Vin at Strip Mine) and a further one from Act 2: Blow up Eco Wells at Strip Mine. However, you will only get all seven once you have the Jet Board.

Drill Platform: 5 Orbs

You can collect five Orbs during the first mission on the Drill Platform. Later on, this area will only be partially accessible until after you have defeated the final boss.

Mountain Temple: 17 Orbs

Map in the walkthrough on page 72.
Two Orbs can be found on the way to Lens and one in the Gear section. There are 14 near to Shard, but you will only be able to get some of them after you have acquired the Jet Board (Fig. 3). The Mountain security gate will always be open after the Mountain Temple mission.

Palace: 4 Orbs

You can obtain three Orbs during Act 1 mission: Ride Elevator Up to Palace. You will receive the fourth one after your first victory over the Baron. Afterwards, you can only enter the access elevator in the Station section after having defeated the Metal Head Leader.

Haven Forest: 9 Orbs

There will be an Orb under the waterfall in the first area. Another one will be hidden in the area to the south of the large tree. You will find seven in the large lake beneath the water's surface. Haven Forest will be permanently open after the Catch Scouts mission.

Dig: 8 Orbs

There aren't any Orbs to find during your first visit to the Dig. These will only become available from the mission Get Seal Piece at Dig. Another opportunity for an Orb hunt is provided, for example, by the Act 3 mission in the Weapons Lab or by using the Jet Board link at the north of the Pumping Station (Fig. 4).

Sewers: 1 Orb

Map in the walkthrough on page 88
You will have to return to the Sewers on several occasions, but you will only be able to obtain the sole Orb there in the second act during Drain Sewers to Find Statue. After you have passed the statue go up the stairs and jump into the ditch. Then turn around: an Orb will be lying underneath the landing.

Tomb: 5 Orbs

There will be several Precursor Orbs waiting for a new owner in the Tomb of Mar. You will find one to the left and one to the right of the statues in the entrance. Two more will be at the other end of the large hallway behind the pillars. You can obtain the last one as you undertake the First Test of Manhood.

Dead Town: 8 Orbs

Map in the walkthrough on page 118

You can fetch seven of the eight Orbs in Dead Town as soon as you acquire the Jet Board at the beginning of Act 2 (Fig. 5). You'll need the help of the Titan Power Suit™ to reach the last during the Get Life Seed in Dead Town mission in the third act.

Weapons Factory: 5 Orbs

You will not be able to access the Weapons Factory until near the end of the game. Later on, you will have the opportunity at any time to grind along the pipes in the north of the Pumping Station and to pay a visit to the Factory or Dig.

Under Port: 1 Orb

When exploring the Under Port clad in the Titan Power Suit™, you can pick up the only Orb. It will be in the chamber that you jump into after having freed the four platforms from their anchorings.

Construction Site: 2 Orbs

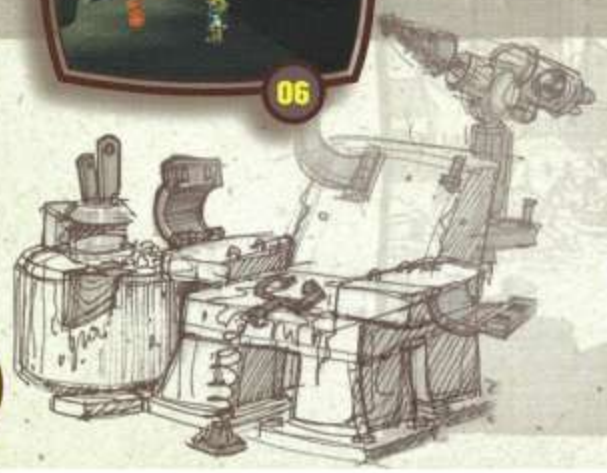
Map in the walkthrough on page 130

After the final meeting with the Baron there will be two Orbs waiting for you in the Construction Site: one of them is beneath the wooden access ramp and one will be on the side closest to the large cable drums.

Nest: 7 Orbs

Map in the walkthrough on page 130

In case you have some spare time while attacking the Metal Head Nest, you will find some objects behind the huge cannon and at the side of the path (Fig. 6). You should take them with you immediately, because you won't have an opportunity to do so later.



Final Words

Onin says: the past ... the future ... it's all one great continuuum. To do or not to do –that is the question! Many secrets remain hidden, but some of them are waiting to be discovered. Just like the mystery of Mar and the small boy with the green eyebrows...

Right then, that's all, you two. Daxter says: The epilogue belongs to me! Some people proclaim, "you don't know jack, or Jak..." but I say: if you've made it to this stage, then you really know everything. My work here is done and I can, at last, pay proper attention to my lovely Tess. But before I do, I want to ask one last thing: do you ever let Jak stand around for a while and not do anything? We two can get up to some interesting antics (Fig. 1) when we're left to our own devices. And while I'm on the subject, you should take a listen to the speeches made by the Baron that are broadcast by the propaganda stations in the City. He certainly makes an effort to motivate his citizens :-) Right then: take care – until the next time!

We just want to HELP

At piggyback we try to produce the highest quality strategy guides possible. Our guides should be easy to use. You should be able to find the information you require within seconds and when you find the right page, everything on that page should be clear to you. We also want to make each guide a book you can cherish and so we put a lot of time into the printing and binding. We hope you can see the difference.

We try to push each new title we publish further than the previous guide. So we rethink our structure, content, presentation and we attempt to add to the results with every new book. If you are a collector of piggyback guides, you may have noticed the innovative back cover fold-out in this book formerly used in our guide to Soulcalibur™ II. We have also enhanced the tab system, first seen in our guide to Kingdom Hearts. What do you think of these features? Comments, criticisms, suggestions or feedback. They help us help you. Send an e-mail to info@authorisedcollection.com

Other official guides also available from piggyback include:

Final Fantasy® X

Free downloads at www.authorisedcollection.com

We offer you a whole range of free downloads on previous piggyback guides. Read through the PDF files at www.authorisedcollection.com to know more about other guides and the games they present. These include: Soulcalibur™ II, Final Fantasy® X, Final Fantasy® IX, Final Fantasy® VIII, Kingdom Hearts, Metal Gear Solid® 2, Gran Turismo® 3 A-Spec and many more. But these are no ordinary downloads – our PDF format means you'll get a super-high resolution printout. Or if you want, just save the files on your hard drive.

Never Miss a Trick

We ensure that you are up-to-date on all of our activities and all of our guides with our free newsletter. Do you know what our next guide will be? Stay up to date on our competitions and winners, all from the comfort of your inbox.

Creative Competitions

What would you say to a Jak II™: Renegade competition where your knowledge of the characters and weapons as well as your creative skills could win you fantastic prizes? Where taking part invites you to discuss your artistic talents and those of other fans from around the world? Sounds good? It is, so drop in for more details and have a look at winners of previous creative competitions.

KEYS

Whenever you open up this key, you will always know what all the strange-looking icons mean on the maps because they are used throughout this guide.

By the way, when you see a Krimzon Guard Crate icon on the map, it doesn't necessarily mean that there is only one crate to be found there. It simply indicates that you will find something there.
