BASIC CONTROLS

BUTTONS AND BASIC ATTACKS

The buttons in Marvel vs. Capcom 2 are simplified from earlier Capcom fighters in that there are only two punches and two kicks. You have a Light Punch (L Punch) and a Light Kick (L Kick), which are usually fast, short-range attacks. Next, you have a Heavy Punch (H Punch) and a Heavy Kick (H Kick), which are slower, more damaging, and typically longer ranging than their lighter counterparts. In addition, you can sometimes execute a Medium Punch or Kick (M Punch or M Kick, respectively) by performing two light attacks in a row (you see a different animation for the medium attack).

The other two buttons are used in some partner-related activities, which will be described later.

DEFENSE

You can't win without knowing how to avoid damage, as well as how your opponent will try to avoid damage, so blocking skills are paramount. To block or guard high, simply press ←. To block or guard low press ↙. A high guard can defend against any attack above the thigh of your character. A low guard can block any attack below the thigh of your character except those designed to hit over a low guard (called overheads) or a jump attack.

When you guard a move successfully, you don't take any damage from it, unless it's a special move. When you block one of these you suffer slight "guard damage" due to the power of the move being blocked.

COUNTERS

There are many types of counters. General move counters are moves like Ryu's Shoryu-Ken, which can hit low level, high level, and jumping opponents, these counters tend to win out over other attacks. Anti-air counters are specially designed to defeat airborne opponents and airborne attacks.

ADVANCING GUARD

This is a useful guarding technique that pushes opponents away from you if you guard one of their attacks. To perform an advancing guard, press both punches while you block a move.

JUMPING

To avoid ground-level dangers, you must jump or block. Jumping has several advantages over blocking. You don't take guard damage from special moves, and you can approach your opponent while dodging any ground-level attacks. The disadvantages are that you have less control over your movement in the air, you have less move choices, and you cannot guard as effectively as when you are grounded.

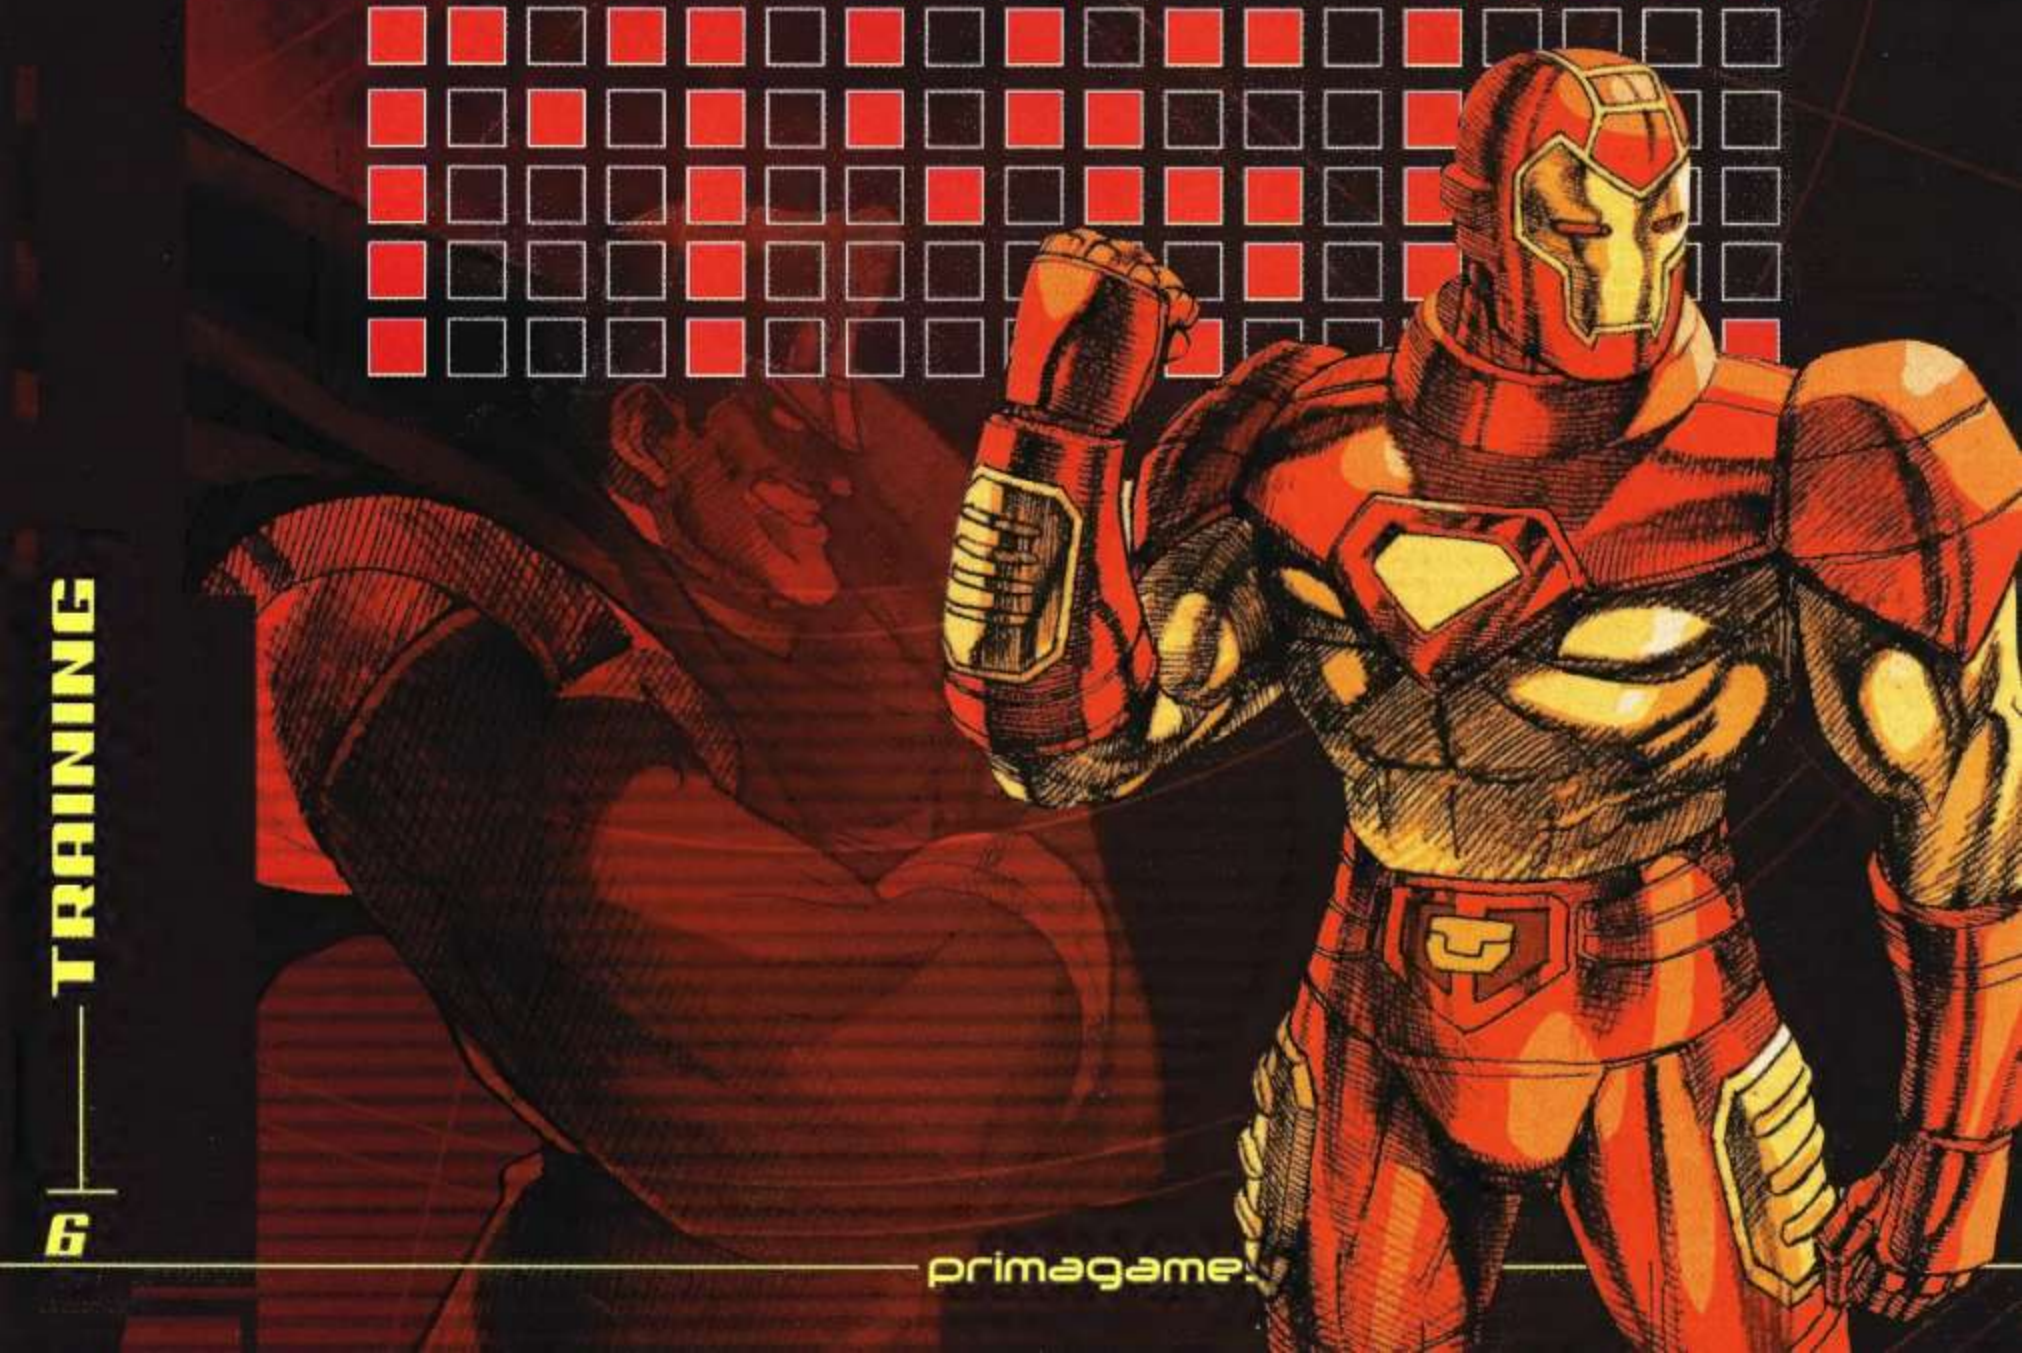
DASHING

In addition to walking, characters can also dash backward (←,←) and forward (→,→) or both punches) for short distances. Each character's dash is different. Some can dash and stop on a dime while others keep sliding even after they've attacked. The length and speed of the dash also varies with each fighter.

TRAINING

THROWS

When an opponent is blocking low, and you are playing a character that does not have an overhead (or you just don't want to use it), you still have the option to throw. The command for each character's throws varies somewhat, but generally it is ← or →+H Punch when standing next to your opponent. Throws cannot be blocked, but if your opponent performs the move for a throw just after you do, your throw's damage is reduced by what is called a tech hit.



ADVANCED TECHNIQUES

GROUND ESCAPES

This game has endless possibilities for combinations, including those where you knock opponents into the air after they have just hit the ground from a previous combination. To escape these extended combos you must enter ←,↙,↓+any attack button. This causes your character to roll and have a better chance of escaping more hits.

SPECIAL BASIC ATTACKS

These attacks have a simple command plus an attack button, such as Ryu's overhead, the "Sakotsu-Wari" (→+H Punch). They are additional basic attacks that are often very useful in rounding out a character's close fighting abilities.

SPECIAL MOVES

These are fighting techniques that use a character's unique gifts. These moves, such as Ryu's Hadou-Ken (↓,↘,→+either punch), have more complicated commands than either basic attacks or special basic attacks, but they make up for this with increased power and tactical effectiveness..

TRAINING

HYPER COMBOS

These are "extra special" special moves. In addition to causing more damage, these moves are usually very difficult to defend against. To perform such moves, you must execute a command combined with both punches or both kicks. Not only that, but you must expend one or more Hyper Bars (the glowing gauge in the bottom of the screen).

By executing moves, connecting with them, or sometimes even being hit yourself, your character earns Hyper Combo energy that fills the Hyper Combo Gauge on your character's side of the screen. When you perform a Hyper Combo you use up one of these Hyper Bars (you can have a maximum of five at any one time). Needless to say, you must earn Hyper Combo energy quickly during your fights so that you can use these very powerful moves during battle.

PARTNER-RELATED MOVES

PARTNER CHANGES

To change characters during battle you press two light attacks or two heavy attacks at the same time. Your teammate then flies onto the screen performing a jumping kick. Changing characters is useful for many reasons, but especially because it gives the character currently in play time to heal. While your character is out of play, he or she slowly regains whatever health is red in the energy bar at the top of the screen.

PARTNER ASSISTS

During play, you can summon a partner to come out and perform a move while you fight. To do this, you simply press your Partner A (default L) or Partner B buttons (default R) when you are not currently attacking. The moves a character performs are listed in the "Partner Assists" section of each character's chapter in the row titled "Assist Attack."

PARTNER COUNTERS

You can also call upon a partner to help you counter in a sticky situation. To do this, enter (while blocking) ←,↙,↓+Partner A or Partner B. The move your teammate performs is listed in the "Partner Assists" section of each character's chapter in the row titled "Counter."

SNAP BACK

This command (↓,↘,→+Partner A or Partner B) requires one Hyper Bar. It executes a short-range attack that knocks your opponent's character off screen and brings in his A or B partner (depending on the button you use). This allows you to keep your opponents in play so that you can finish them off before they have much chance to heal.

TRAINING

TEAM COMBINATIONS

During a Hyper Combo you can perform the command of one of your next partner's (Partner A) Hyper Combos, and he or she will jump in and perform it as your in-play character continues his or her own Hyper Combo. Perform another command, and the second partner (Partner B) will do the same. For example, if Partner A is Ryu, during a Hyper Combo enter ↓,↘,→+both punches to have him hop onscreen and perform a Shinku-Hadou-Ken. Obviously, you need enough Hyper Bars filled for all the combinations you perform.

Some truly amazing combinations can be realized with practice, study, and creativity on your part. This game has no equal when it comes to original combinations, and this teammate combo ability is a big reason why.

DEVASTATING COMBINATIONS

If you have two or three Hyper Bars, you can forgo the team combination and just have all your characters come out at once by pressing both Partner buttons at the same time. The moves your teammates perform are listed in the "Partner Assists" section of each character's chapter in the row titled "D Hyper Combo."

UNLOCKING CHARACTERS

You can buy the characters that you do not currently have available by earning points. These points can then be used to purchase characters, cool secret stages, and extra character colors. You can also earn experience and levels. You get one experience point every ten play points, and gain a level every hundred experience points. The way points are earned is explained in the following tables.

MOVES LIST

AKUMA

Akuma is one of the most versatile characters in the Capcom universe. He has moves for every situation and is, therefore, hard to play to his potential at first. However, you can still win without using all his tricks.

THROWS

Seoi-Nage
(when close) ← or →+H Punch

Tomoe-Nage
(when close) ← or →+H Kick

Jigoku-Guruma
(when close) →,↘,↓,↙,←+H Kick

SPECIAL BASIC ATTACKS

Zugai-Hasatsu

Damage: 10

This hits an opponent in a crouching block.

Sempuu-Kyaku
→+H Kick

Damage: 13

Use this as a low attack counter.

Sempuu-Kyaku (air)
(when airborne) ↑+H Kick

Damage: 13

This Jumping H Kick is more effective when you and your opponent are both airborne.

Mae-Geri
(when airborne) after L Kick have hit ↑+L Kick

Damage: 7

You can get two aerial hits before you land by using this move.

SPECIAL MOVES

Gou-Hadou-Ken
↓,↘,→+either punch

Damage: 41

The button you use controls the speed of the projectile.

Zankuu-Hadou-Ken
(when airborne) ↓,↘,→+either punch

Damage: 33

These aerial Gou-Hadou-Kens descend at an angle toward your opponent.

Gou-Shoryu-Ken
→,↓,↘+either punch

Damage: 60, 74

This is a typical uppercut move counter. During the H Punch variant, Akuma flies very high. You don't want to miss that one.

Tatsumaki-Zankuu-Kyaku
(when grounded or airborne) ↓,↙,←+either Kick

Damage: 48, 52

If this smoke opponents at all, be careful since it can be ducked, leaving you vulnerable to a counterattack.

Ashura-Senkuu
→,↓,↘ or ←,↓,↙+both punches or both kicks

Damage: 0

This dash-type move can be used to throw your opponent off of you.

Tenma-Kuujin-Kyaku
(when airborne) ↓,↘,→+either kick

Damage: 53, 58

Even though you can't combo from this, you can fool your opponent by randomly following up with a Zugai-Hasatsu, Crouching H Kick or Gou-Shoryu-Ken.

HYPER COMBOS

Messatsu-Gou-Hadou
↓,↙,←+both punches

Damage: 140

This beam Hyper Combo isn't very thick, so your opponent must be grounded for this to hit well.

Messatsu-Gou-Shoryu
↓,↘,→+both punches

Damage: 141

Akuma crosses the length of the screen very quickly during this move, and since the last hit does the most damage, it can be used well at long range.

Tenma-Gou-Zankuu
(when airborne) ↓,↘,→+both punches

Damage: 95+

This thick spread of projectiles can punish opponents who like to perform anti-air counters.

Messatsu-Gou-Rasen
↓,↗,↗,←+both kicks

Damage: 82

Your opponent must be quite close for you to hit with this close-range counter.

Shungokusatsu

L Punch x2, →+L Kick, H Punch; NOTE: This move uses three Hyper Bars when used.

Damage: 90

This move is good in an emergency, such as when time is running out, when you have three supers and are opening to attack.

Amingo is a fascinating, cactus-based fighter from the far south. His funny-looking moves tend to fool opponents into being lax, until they realize how much damage they've lost. He is a slow walker, so in order to deliver good attacks, you must make good use of his cacti friends.

B.B. HOOD

Little B.B. Hood is a funny character to play, but her drawback is that her reach is so short compared to other fighters. To combat this weakness, she attacks her opponents' attacks themselves, wreaking havoc when in close.

Damage: 01 04

This is a very nice anti-air counter.

CAPTAIN AMERICA™

CAPTAIN COMMANDO

Captain Commando's style is a refreshing change from the norm, and it suits this game well. Like Jill, he has helpful partners of his own in addition to the teammates you've selected for him. Aside from that, he is a solid all-around character with a couple of good launchers.

SPECIAL MOVES

(when grounded or airborne)
↓,↘,→+either punch

Damage: 15

Captain Corridor

Damage: 23
This is a specialized general move counter. The L Punch version is centered around Captain while the H Punch version is centered a little ahead of him.

Captain Kick
↓,↙,←+either kick

Damage: 23
The high flight of the H Kick version allows you to use it in certain situations as an anti-air counter or an advancing move.

Commando Strike (Ginzu)
↓,↘,→+L Kick

Damage: 15
Captain's ninja buddy comes out of the shadows and descends with a slice. This can be used as an anti-air counter and a medium-range attack.

Commando Strike (Mack)
↓,↘,→+H Kick

Damage:40

This anti-air attack covers the same lateral range as Jiffy Crow Escape. Anything in the upper portion of the screen is dead.

Commando Strike (Baby)
↓,↘,→+H Punch

Damage: 28

Captain's third partner comes down and fires off a high-level projectile at your opponent.

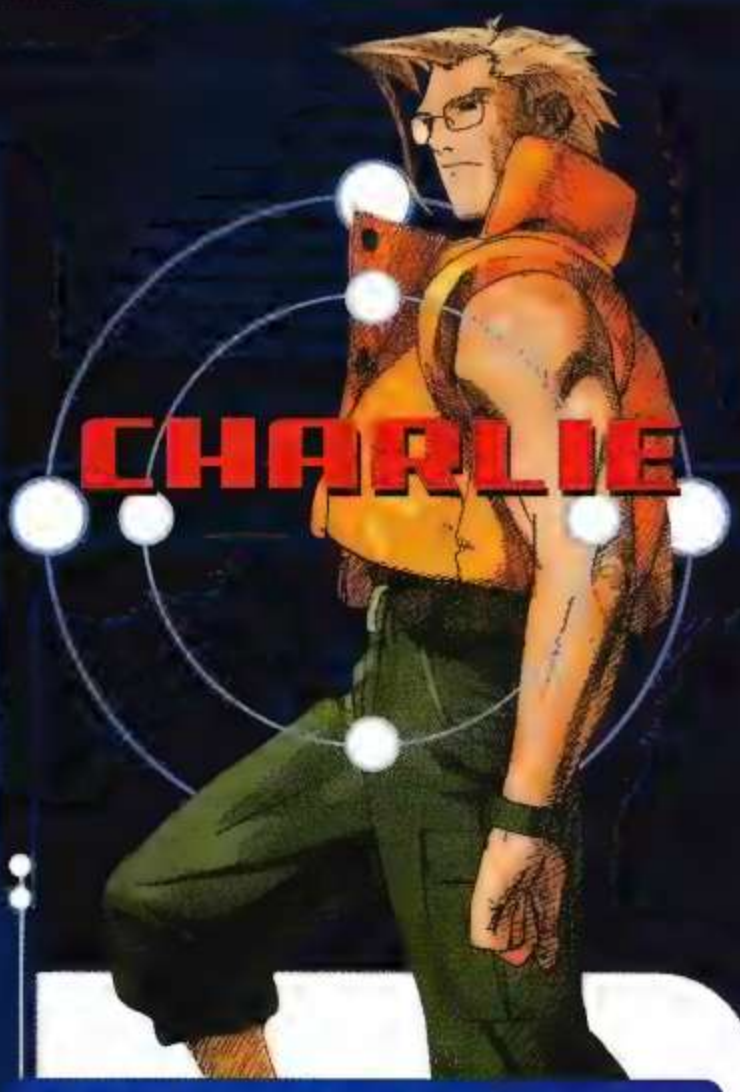
CHARLIE



Charlie and Guile have very similar fighting styles and moves, so if you know how to play one, you know how to play the other. Since you must hold ↙ to be ready to perform a Sonic Boom or Flash Kick at any time, you are primarily a defensive character. However, to play the character well you must learn how to play offensively with him too.

SPECIAL BASIC ATTACKS

Spinning Back Knuckle
→+H Punch

Damage: 12

Use this move after a clash of projectiles at close to medium range. Take a step forward and hit opponents with this before they can recover and block.

Jumping Power Kick
←+H Kick

Damage: 12

This doubles as a low attack counter and a way to advance while still charging for a Sonic Boom.

Step Kick
→+H Kick

Damage: 12

You cannot charge and perform this move; this kick is quicker and more aggressive than the Jumping Power Kick.

Knee Kick
(when airborne)↓+L Kick

Damage: 4

This move lets you hit opponents with a jump and attack and still land close to them. With other attacks you are pushed back farther, thereby reducing the number of combination and throw possibilities.

SPECIAL MOVES

Sonic Boom
← hold 1 second, → +either punch

Damage: 13

One way to advance on your opponent with Charlie is to throw a L Punch Sonic Boom and follow it in. It travels slowly and provides a bit of cover as you approach.

Flash Kick
↓ hold 1 second, ↑ + either kick

Damage: 22-25

This general rules counter releases a projectile upward.

Moonsault Slash
(when airborne) ↑,↗,→ +either kick

Damage: 18-20

This is a good move to counter opponents who jump at the same time you do and you can be away for a Flying Shoryu Dragon.

Sonic Break
↓,↘,→ +both punches

Damage: 40

Use this move whenever you want to counter something your opponent is doing, or is going to do, and you don't want to get close due to some danger. For example, counter Ariana's Tenou No Megumi with the Sonic Break, not the Crossfire Blitz.

HYPER COMBOS

Crossfire Blitz
↓,↘,→ +both kicks

Damage: 40

Charlie's initial charge travels a little over half the distance of the screen. This is a good way to take advantage of Charlie's mid-range openings.

Flash Kick Justice

Damage: 44

The classic design of the Flash Kick plus the addition of projectiles gives you an awesome general counter Hyper Combo.

Guile and Charlie have very similar fighting styles and moves, so if you know how to play one, you know how to play the other. SPECIAL MOVES

Damage: 12-11

This is a high beam-based projectile. Beware, the recovery from the H Punch version is pretty slow.

Repulsor Blast
→,↘,↓,↙,←+either punch

Damage: 24/ 36

In this awkward general move counter the repulsor rays shoot up and forward at first, then they recede and shoot down and forward (180 degrees clockwise from the earlier ray). This repeats until all four diagonals have been covered. In short, this move is an anti-air counter then a ground attack counter. After that is just recovery time in most situations.

Smart Bomb
(when grounded or airborne) H Punch + L Kick

Damage: 18

This unusual projectile attack is useful in medium-range ground level battles, or when airborne, to punish a projectile happy opponent.

HYPER COMBOS

Proto Cannon
↓,↘,→+both punches

Damage: 55

This Hyper Uni-Beam has two benefits. One, it is high level and thick, so it is hard to jump over. Two, the cannon can hit close-range opponents as it drops into Iron Man's hand. This allows it to be used as a counter against standing or airborne opponents.

STRIDER HIRYU

Strider's appearance in a fighting game is still a shocking sight. It's hard to resist playing this classic character, and since he is quite good, there's no good reason not to play him. He can be played very aggressively, in combination with Partner Assists, to create corner traps that set up combinations following a successful Vajla.

T BONNE

Funny and youthful, T Bonne breaks the seriousness of the game with some good old fashioned passive aggressiveness. Her opponents are usually not amused by her antics, however, since her many multiple-hit moves are annoying for the person being hit. This works to your benefit because a frustrated opponent is a sloppy opponent.

WAR MACHINE™

War Machine, like Iron Man, plays a little oddly. He is definitely a different breed of fighter, but once you get used to his moves, you can play and win with him comfortably. His weaknesses are his lack of a good general counter and a very short-range launcher.

Damage: 18

The unusual projectile reach is useful in medium-range ground-level battles, or when airborne to punish a projectile-happy opponent.

Repulsor Blast
→,↘,↓,↙,←+either punch

Damage: 24-36

This is War Machine's general move counter. The repulsor rays project up and forward at first, then if they recede and come out closer and forward (90 degrees and 45 degrees respectively from the earlier ray). The repulsors still do their damage on their return path. Because they are effective counters, even if ground attacks counter them, you'll still have some recovery time in most situations.

HYPER COMBOS

Proton Cannon
↓,↘,→+both punches

Damage: 32

This Hyper Shoulder Cannon has two benefits. One, it is high level and thick, so it is hard to jump over. Two, the cannon can hit close-range opponents as it sweeps in by War Machine's hand. This allows it to be used as a counter against standing or airborne opponents.

War Destroyer
↓,↘,→+both kicks

Damage: 48

This is a nice switch from the Proton Cannon because, rather than jumping to escape, your opponent must dash instead.
